Barrett for Prudence

'Boomism' Passe For B.C.

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

VANCOUVER — Premier Barrett would like to move B.C. out of the era of big "boomism" even if it means leaving precious minerals untapped in the ground.

Richter
. . . senior

Attacking the exploitation of the province's mineral resources, Barrett told delegates to the IWA's western Canada convention here that he was calling for restraint, which he admitted might sound strange "coming from a democratic socialist party."

But what B.C. needs now, he said, is to enter an era of prudent development.

'Better Off'

"If we can't come up with anything better in our new government, the resources would be better off left in the ground until a generation comes along with more sense than has been shown up to now in dealing with them," he said.

Barrett has said right along that there has been a great deal of irresponsibility in not preserving diminishing resources. He wants to put an end to the shipment of raw materials from the province and would have them processed right here as a means of creating jobs.

"We can't tell the rest of North America what to do in terms of setting restraints, but we can set an example here.

Rational Way

"We can say to the rest of North America: 'Stop, we want to get off' and plan British Columbia's development in a rational and meaningful way.

"The boom era is going to end in the West in the last place it existed in full flower. That's what we want here — not so much for ourselves but for our children and their children's sakes," Barrett said.

He said growth was wanted, but on the province's own terms.

"We want to show that prudence and caution is another way, and boomism is not the

Bennett Tabs Richter

Former mines minister Frank Richter has been appointed acting house leader for Social Credit after a telegram from W. A. C. Bennett who has been vacationing in Padua, Italy.

And the telegram also confirmed the recommendation of former MLAs Dan Campbell and Grace McCarthy as executive assistant to the opposition leader and research assistant respectively.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said Thursday afternoon he had a "pleasant chat" with Richter on the telephone about the appointments and orders-in-council would be prepared for the Campbell and McCarthy jobs.

The acting-leader appointment is expected to be discussed at a caucus meeting set for Oct. 12 and 13.

Former attorney-general Leslie Peterson had at one stage been approached for the party leadership and was reported to be interested.

Richter said Thursday he had accepted Bennett's job offer: "As I am the senior minister I had no reason to reject the request.".

Stanfield Charges Power Play

Trudeau 'Indifferent' to Defence

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield Thursday night charged Prime Minister Trudeau with displaying a total indifference toward the defence department and undercutting the authority of federal ministers in general.

In a speech to more than 1,000 persons who packed an Ottawa arena, Stanfield said government policies have caused armed forces morale to sag.

And he criticized the prime minister for concentrating increasing power in his own office, at the expense of government departments.

The Conservative leader was cheered repeatedly by a noisy crowd in this city where the votes of public servants and servicemen count heavily.

It was the second night in a row Stanfield has drawn a capacity crowd to a public meeting in his campaign for the Oct. 30 federal election.

Wednesday night, he drew a full turnout of 2,750 for a speech at Edmonton's Jubilee Auditorium.

Stanfield was introduced Thursday by Ontario Premier William Davis who described him as "a man of integrity, capacity, great judgment and common sense" and said Stanfield had the complete support of the provincial Conservative organization in the election campaign.

Stanfield, opening his 15-minute speech, said Davis' message was "wonderfully encouraging to all of us."

Stanfield charged that Trudeau had downgraded the defence department and turned the defence portfolio into "merely a staging area" for ministers on their way to other positions.

Referring to the succession of ministers through the defence portfolio in recent years, Stanfield said "hardly anyone is there long enough to unpack his bags."

He said decisions must soon be taken regarding Canada's membership in NORAD, its commitment to NATO, and re-equipment of the forces in certain areas.

The department should not

Sensitive Stage, Says Nixon

UPI, AP

President Nixon said in Washington Thursday that Vietnam peace negotiations are in a "sensitive stage" but declined to predict when or if a settlement will be reached.

In a wide-ranging news conference, he also shrugged off his election opponents' corruption charges and condemned "congressional overspending" as a threat to his pledge not to increase taxes.

In responding to a question about the possibility of a negotiated Vietnam settlement before the election, Nixon said the campaign will not influence "what we do at the negotiating table."

He mentioned the possible negotiation of a bombing halt. Later he described as "a very, very great mistake" the unilateral bombing halt ordered by Lyndon Johnson in 1968 because it came without agreements from the other side.

"We are not going to make that mistake now," Nixon said.

Meanwhile, the Times of London hinted today that the U.S. and North Vietnam have reached an understanding which could lead toward ending the Vietnam war.

The Times said:

"There is reason to believe that a broad agreement on Vietnam has already been reached between Mr. Henry Kissinger (President Nixon's national security adviser) and North Vietnamese representatives during their recent meetings in Moscow and Paris."

The Times said the details of the reported agreement will not be completed, "or at least not announced," until after the Nov. 7 U.S. presidential election.

On the war front, U. S. gargantuan B-52 bombers launched their heaviest raids in the Saigon area in more than three years Thursday night and this morning, as communist troops stepped up their attacks throughout South Vietnam, military spokesmen said.

The U. S. command ordered 13 waves of the B-52s to dump more than 1,100 tons of bombs within 39 miles of the centre of Saigon.

Two Missing

Yacht Sliced In Half

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — U.S. Coast Guard and commercial vessels searched in thick fog Thursday for a young girl and her brother after their foster parents and five others were rescued from heavy seas after their yacht, en route to South America, was hit by a freighter.

The coast guard said Michel Lacy, 18, of Vancouver, Wash., was seen floating on a mattress in the heavy fog near the collision site, 12 miles southwest of Cape Mendocino, in 12-foot waves swept by 20-knot winds.

The Norwegian freighter Evamo radioed the coast guard earlier that the 100-foot motor yacht Morning Star had been sliced in two by an unidentified vessel at about 7:30 a.m., and that six persons were rescued immediately.

The seventh person rescued about four hours later was Hal Lacy, owner of the Vancouver-based yacht. The coast guard said he was spotted through the fog hanging onto debris from Morning Star.

The others rescued were Lacy's wife; their 18-year-old daughter, Donna; her husband, Tom Dennis, 20, who suffered a broken leg; Dean Lacy, 20, Becky Harris, 18, and Greg Duvic, 20.

Child Killed In Blaze Near Duncan

DUNCAN — A child died Thursday night as fire swept through a two-storey home in the Mission Road area on the Cowichan Indian reserve, about three miles southeast of Duncan.

Volunteer firemen from Duncan and the North Cowichan Southend fire department continued to fight the blaze, which broke out shortly after 11 p.m., and was still flaring at midnight.

Bomb Blasts Saloon In Belfast

BELFAST (AP) — A bomb blasted a crowded saloon Thursday night in a Protestant district here, killing one person and injuring at least five others, three seriously.

The explosive was planted in a car outside the pub on Bruce Street in the Sandy Row area. It went off without warning, causing widespread damage to property.

Guerrilla bombers in Londonderry infiltrated a security cordon and blasted a city centre garage with 60 pounds of explosives. The blast caused no casualties but wrecked the building and cars inside.

Canada Slams Import Of U.S.-Banned Cars

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport department has made representations to the United States government and General Motors over a proposal by the company to sell 1,100 1972-model cars in Canada because they do not meet U.S. safety standards.

The cars, Camaros, Novas and Firebirds, were manufactured in the U.S. after new safety regulations regarding bumpers, inflammability of interior materials and illumination of instrument panel controls, went into effect.

General Motors attempted to have the vehicles exempted from the regulations for sale in the U.S. However, when the exemption was turned down by the U.S. transportation department, it proposed to sell them in Canada.

Similar safety regulations do not go into effect in Canada until Nov. 1, 1972.

Oil Firms, Arabs In Accord

NEW YORK (AP) — Western oil companies announced Thursday a tentative agreement with five Persian Gulf countries which would eventually give the Arab states a 51-per-cent interest in oil operations in their countries.

The agreement calls for each gulf state to negotiate separate agreements with the oil companies operating within its territory.

"I am very satisfied with the offer," said Sheik Ahmed Yamani, Saudi Arabia's minister of oil and minerals and chief Arab negotiator.

He said he would leave for the Middle East Thursday night to submit the agreement to his government.

The five Arab states, Abu Khabi, Qatar, Kuwait, Iraq, and Saudi Arabia, account for approximately 28 per cent of oil production in non-Communist countries, an oil company spokesman said.

Observers said they did not anticipate the agreement would result in any immediate change in the market price of oil.

Welfare Woman Hides Nothing

"Some of the things that happen around here you just wouldn't believe," a city of Victoria official said Thursday.

Here's what he was talking about:

To qualify for next month's welfare cheque, recipients must submit a signed statement listing additional earnings during the current month.

One such statement, submitted last month by a Victoria woman on welfare, specified additional income from these sources: shoplifting, $10; prostitution, $50.

Lorimer Favors Upgrading Boards

More Regional Clout

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Regional boards might be given a share of revenue from B.C. timber licences and other sources sometime in the future so that they can assume a more meaningful role, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer says.

In an interview this week, the minister said he is in favor of granting regional boards greater autonomy; there should be less interference in regional matters by the provincial government and regions should have a stronger voice in their future development.

Lorimer said regional boards, "must have a part of the action if they are to function properly."

He said he is very impressed with the regional board concept. The former government should be "very proud of it," but there had been too many restrictions on the boards.

"I haven't prepared any detailed plan of how to help the regional districts toward greater autonomy, but there are quite a number of provincial revenue sources which could, and should, go partly to the regions," Lorimer said.

Newfoundland Ending Ex-Parte Injunctions

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Ex-parte injunctions will be eliminated in legislation being prepared for introduction when the Newfoundland legislature resumes sittings later this year, Labor Minister Ed Maynard said Thursday.

Maynard told about 170 delegates attending the annual convention of the Newfoundland Federation of Labor that removal of the injunction provisions would be accomplished by an amendment to the provincial Labor Relations Act.

The injunctions are used mainly to halt picketing by strikers in labor disputes.

Law and Order

THE CHARGE of the write brigade claims this space has been unfair, through omission. to the candidacy of Conservative candidate Don Munro in Esquimalt-Saanich.

"Why have you ignored this man? He has far better credentials for the office than any other candidate in the race. His long service with external affairs gives him a valuable insight into government and I trust you'll note Donald Munro has come out hard in favor of law and order. Give the man his proper due."

Actually, I have spent little time on the relative merits of the Victoria area canlidates, but I agree, Munro does have a solid background and I applaud his plank re law and order. Let me repeat it.

"AN END TO THE disastrous experiment in penal reform perpetrated by the Trudeau regime, a return to capital punishment and re-establishment of protection from the criminal minority that law-abiding society requires and deserves."

And if this isn't what a great majority of our citizens have been hollering for, something has been lost in transmission. Somebody cracked that Munro didn't know what a golden nematode was. So who cares — he does know that a solid effort must be made to give peace of mind to those who live within the law.

FROM Hugh Keenleyside, now retired, but internationally known as an administrator and diplomat, re hockey.

"The old style of Canadian hockey which emphasized team play, skilful combination and expert stick handling, has now been shown to be more effective in producing goals than the modern NHL type of game. This business of firing the puck into the enemy zone and then rushing after it to try to slap, kick or shove it into the net through a tangle of players by shear force (and luck) is just not as effective. The emphasis on fighting is not only unnecessary but, really, counter-productive.

"It would be a tremendous relief to see some modern players concentrate on stick handling in the Cyclone Taylor and Hooley Smith tradition or poke checking like Frank Nighbor. It would be a return to real hockey instead of the present degraded form of shinny interrupted by constant brawls."

Amen, sir, Amen . . .

IN THE MAIL, the text of a speech delivered by Dr. Peter Banks, president-elect of the Canadian Medical Association and the British Medical Association. The speech was made at the opening of the Victoria General Hospital.

"For nearly 100 years the Sisters of St. Ann have worked in this hospital and it has been their home. For many years it was the only hospital in the city. At first, when they founded the hospital, they and the doctors who worked with them, had little to offer the patients except kindness, sympathy and spiritual solace. And then, gradually, as the science of medicine developed and the doctors became busier and busier and could do more for their patients, perhaps some of the doctors lost some of the essential kindness and sympathy that is part of medicine. But not the Sisters.

"I have walked the wards of this hospital for nearly 20 years and at all hours of the night and day I have seen the Sisters working within the hospital in many capcities and on no occasion have I ever seen their dedication or their kindness falter."

There was more. but I think I've used the meat. Stop and think about what Dr. Banks said and realize just how many hundreds of thousands of hours of love and tireless devotion these good ladies gave to the people of our community. And they never asked for time, far less time-and-a-half. We are all in their debt . . .

PITHY comment from C. T. Overman of our city.

"One of us has misunderstood the change in the Canada Elections Act. I think it is even worse than you suggested in a recent column.

"My interpretation of the change is that ALL British subjects (not Canadian citizens) will be disenfranchised after June 1975. As the act read before, All British subjects could vote after five years residence. After the change was made, the period of residence became immaterial, since only Canadian citizens will be entitled to vote after June 1975.

"As you remarked, this seems unfair since everyone has to pay for Pierre's extravagances. It seems to me that taxation without respresentation is grossly unfair. It is also interesting when one thinks those spend several years at war making it safe for people like Pierre Trudeau to evade their same British subjects were good enough to responsibilities to their country."

Well stated.

Recuperating

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you explain why some operations have longer recuperative periods than others?

My doctor said it would take six months to a year to recover from removal of part of a kidney (kidney stones that would not pass continued to reinfect).

The doctor said to judge activity by how I feel, lie down when tired, etc. I get along on less sleep now, am doing more housework and am finishing a college course by correspondence.

The only difficulty is explaining or apologizing, especially when some feel that two months is a long time, and especially since I am feeling better and better all the time. But I am trying to be sensible.—G.T.O.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Well, just keep on being sensible — and I'm blessed if I see why you should either apologize or explain to anybody.

You are, as your doctor said, the best judge of how much activity you can tolerate, and if anybody tries to push you into more exertion than is good for you, tell them, "My doctor says I shouldn't."

As to rate of recuperation: it depends on several factors, not the least of which is the type and extent of surgery. Having part of a vital organ like the kidney removed is a far cry from something as relatively simple as removing an appendix.

If infection is present, that not only depletes your vitality but makes demands on your system to finish suppressing the infection. If there is no infection, nature heals quite rapidly.

Other factors which may or may not apply in your case are age; state of health before the operation; to some extent the type of anesthesia; type and amount of tissue removed.

These days, and for quite some time, the emphasis has been on "early ambulation" — getting a patient up and moving about as soon after surgery as is safe.

Long Odyssey

Albanian Clan Escapes

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A 14-month odyssey which climaxed a 21-year plot to escape from Communist-run Albania ended Thursday when a 28-member clan arrived here to settle in New York.

The clan, headed by Thomas Mallias, 63, the patriarch, had fled from Albania on Aug. 8, 1971, by seizing a fishing boat and travelling to Greece.

In 1951, Mallias told reporters, the Albanian government took over a 200-acre farm which the family had owned and operated near the small port of Himara on the Albanian coast.

Most members of the Mallias family were then assigned to co-operative farms, Mallias said, where they were forced to work from sunrise to sundown. However, one of Mallias's sons, Vasili, 38, managed to find work on fishing boats and eventually was named captain of the 100-foot Derada,

Eleven months ago, Mallias said, members of the family, which also includes his wife and five other children, overpowered six crew members aboard the Derada, locked them in a cabin and made the 3½-hour voyage to Korfu, Greece.

In Greece, the family was processed by the World Church Services and then turned over to the Methodist relief committee for relocation.

be left at this juncture without continuity of leadership.

"Yet this is precisely what Mr. Trudeau has done."

Observing that E. J. Benson spent only from Jan. 28 to Sept. 1 of this year as defence minister, between his former job of finance minister and his appointment as new president of the Canadian transport commission, Stanfield said this short tenure prevented Benson from having anything to do with either the 1972-73 or the 1973-74 defence budget.

"Perhaps this was intended. That would be understandable given the prime minister's total indifference to the defence department."

Stanfield roused frequent cheers from an enthusiastic crowd with his attack on the prime minister's attitude to the forces and on what he called "a conspiracy of silence" in the government to prevent public gaining information to which it is rightfully entitled.

He said there has been increasing frustration in the federal public service because of the way the government conducts its operations.

There were a number of ways to improve this situation, the first of which was to dismantle "the self-aggrandizing power centre in the prime minister's office."

He accused Trudeau of setting up a "virtually parallel power" to the power vested in government departments.

This had been done by using technocrats, autocrats "and image-makers being paid under contract at public expense."

The wisdom and experience of centuries had been sacrificed in order to allow the prime minister to build up a "cadre of personal political confidants."

Stanfield denounced what he called the government's tendency toward secrecy and attempts which it had made to prevent Parliament and the Canadian people from knowing what their government was doing.

Parliament had been denied its lawful right to scrutinize government expenditures,

The auditor-general, Maxwell Henderson, had been under constant harassment by the prime minister and the government.

Shell Home Comfort announces a remarkable Canadian invention.

This is the Blue-Jet Burner—the most important part of our new water heater.

We call it the Blue-Jet Burner. A new idea that cuts fuel costs and delivers all the hot water you'll ever need.

Here are 6 reasons why the Blue-Jet Burner is the most advanced burner today. And why we're so proud of it.

1. You'll use less fuel per gallon of hot water with a Blue-Jet Burner than with an ordinary oil burner.
2. You will enjoy a definite saving on your heating bill.
3. Due to improved combustion the Blue-Jet Burner is virtually smokeless and pollution free.
4. Your Blue-Jet Burner retains its high efficiency rate even after prolonged use.
5. Servicing is simple and fast. The whole Blue-Jet Burner unit can be replaced in a matter of minutes.
6. You'll find a Blue-Jet Burner is extremely quiet in operation.

Does your water heater run on oil or electricity?

If your water heater runs on oil, installing a Blue-Jet water heater is simple. And the day you install it you can start cutting fuel bills.

If your water heater is powered by electricity and you have an oil powered furnace, switching to Shell and a Blue-Jet Water Heater is also simple. You can buy or lease a new Shell water heater complete with a Blue-Jet Burner.

If you're interested in cutting your fuel bills and getting cleaner heat, call your local Shell Home Comfort representative.

Labor Turns Sharp Left

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — Opposition Laborites adopted a radical new economic program Thursday designed to transform Britain into a socialist state able to curb capitalist power.

A series of unanimous decisions at the party's annual convention thrust Labor's policies more to the left than since the Second World War.

There were proposals for redistributing wealth and income "in favor of the working class;" vigorous nationalization of industry and land; price and monopoly controls; limits on managerial rights of choice; curbs on multi-national companies; restoration of full employment on the basis of a 35-hour week; an annual wealth tax on any private funds above $122,000; a hunt for tax-dodgers, and an offensive against speculators of all kinds.

Over-all aim of that program, as set forth in one of the resolutions, is to permit a Labor government "for the first time in history to stand against the entrenched power of private capital—and to pursue genuinely socialist policies."

Resolutions passed by the party's annual convention are not binding on a Labor government. But leaders of the movement, after the disappointments of Harold Wilson's regime, could ignore the mood and wishes of their followers only at their peril.

Wilson and fellow members of the national executive committee accepted all the proposals.

Real power in the labor movement right now rests with the industrial wing, meaning the labor unions which provide the political wing with campaign funds.

The politicians, therefore, have to court the union bosses. They are doing so even while knowing leaders of the most powerful unions are further to the left than the politicians might like.

In his speech, Denis Healey, a party spokesman on economic affairs, said the Wilson government lost the 1970 election because of a breakdown of its understanding with the labor unions—a breakdown he vowed would not be allowed to happen again.

The party's lurch Thursday toward a left-wing economic policy continued a pattern that ran through all the proceedings of the five-day convention which ends today.

The party's lurch Thursday toward a left-wing economic policy continued a pattern that ran through all the proceedings of the five-day convention which ends today.

Israeli Soldier Plays Deadly Game of Catch

United Press International

A bomb in a cigarette box exploded in the Jordanian Embassy in Beirut Thursday, and an Israeli soldier in Gaza threw a stick of dynamite back at a guerrilla who tossed the explosive into his truck. No one was hurt in either incident.

A Jordanian Embassy spokesman said:

"The explosion was caused by a bomb which was placed in a regular cigarette box, which was left in the room," the spokesman said. "There were no casualties or damage, and Lebanese authorities are investigating the incident."

An Arab guerrilla threw a stick of dynamite in a tin can at an Israeli army truck in occupied Gaza City, but a soldier jumped from the vehicle and threw it back, military sources in Tel Aviv said.

The Israeli Arabic newspaper Al Amba said in its Friday editions that a peace settlement may be signed between Israel and Jordan after the U.S. presidential election in November.

The dispatch by Mohammed Amiri, a resident of the Israeli-held west bank town of Nablus who returned from a visit to Amman three weeks ago, said President Nixon had given guarantees to Jordan.

Jordan's King Hussein has proposed the establishment of a Palestinian state, under a plan of federation with Jordan, but only after a settlement with Israel. Defence Minister Moshe Dayan has said there is an indication Jordan is willing to discuss peace but that the two sides are so far apart that talks are not likely to be held.

The Israeli foreign ministry praised West Germany Thursday for outlawing two Palestinian organizations and confiscating their assets.

The West German interior ministry announced Wednesday the banishment of the General Union of Palestinian Students and the General Union of Palestinian Workers.

Poison Buns Kill Children

CATANIA, Sicily (Reuter) — Two children died and about 80 persons were in hospital Thursday after eating sugar buns bought in a bakery in the east Sicilian town of Acireale.

At least eight persons were reported in serious condition.

The public prosecutor issued an arrest warrant for multiple manslaughter against a husband and wife who run the bakery. Police blamed poisonings on bad flour.

Death Ends Freeway Romance

Morning Without Beep

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — David Menser, 29, and his fiancee Gerda Allen, 32, had a little thing going each morning.

Menser would drive to work on the Golden State Freeway and look for Miss Allen who would be headed in the opposite direction on her way home from her night job.

When he saw her, he would beep his horn. She would beep back.

There was no exchange of beeps Tuesday morning. Menser caught sight of Miss Allen's car but as he watched, a car in front of her changed lanes and she hit it.

Frantically, Menser got off the freeway and circled around to the other side. He found his fiancee dead in the wreckage of her car.

Bug Probe Pales Hiss Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon said Thursday the FBI is conducting an investigation of the Watergate Hotel bugging case that makes his famous probe of the Hiss case look "like a Sunday school picnic."

The affair, Nixon said, is being thoroughly investigated by 133 FBI agents who so far have checked out 1,800 leads and conducted 1,500 interviews.

"One thing that has always puzzled me is why anyone would want to get in or out of the Watergate," Nixon told a news conference. But since the decision was made at a lower level, without his knowledge, it is being thoroughly investigated, he said.

The Hiss case unfolded while Nixon was a freshman member of the house un-American activities committee which investigated security leaks in the Truman administration.

Asked if he thought the alleged bugging of the democratic offices in the Watergate Hotel was a legitimat campaign issue, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said, "that's up to the candidates.

90-Day Extension?

Asians' Deadline Still Disputed

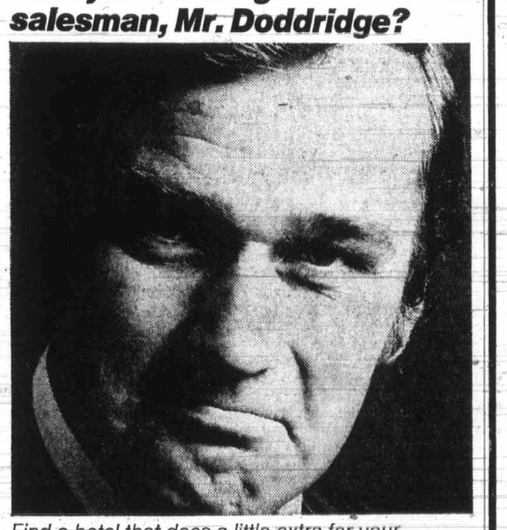

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said Thursday President Mobuto Sese Seko of Zaire (Congo) informed him that Uganda has agreed to a three-month extension of the Nov. 8 deadline for deportation of Asians.

Waldheim's spokesman said, however, that a separate message recieved by the secretary-general from Ugandan President Idi Amin failed to mention such an extension.

In Kampala, Amin said Thursday: "I am not going to extend the deadline for the Asians to leave, which is Nov. 8." He repeated his announcement at a meeting later with the Cameroon minister of posts and telecommunications, Emmanuel Agne.

Earlier in the day, Amin told a group of university students that no country should "waste its time to come here and try to negotiate for the British."

The Law Is Too Lenient

POLICE ALL OVER THE PROVINCE admit they are fighting a losing battle against the narcotics traffickers.

For example: in the first nine months of 1972 in Vancouver there were 617 persons charged with possession of heroin and 151 with trafficking, compared to 258 for possession and 93 for trafficking in the corresponding period a year ago.

Law enforcement agencies chorus the same complaint. The new bail reform laws are overgenerous and the courts too lenient. There is not sufficient deterrent.

The fault, it is generally agreed, lies mainly with the mechanics of the law and processes of correction too easily diverted.

In Vancouver on Wednesday a man was sentenced to life imprisonment for possession of nine pounds of heroin for purposes of trafficking. He was given a life sentence. The National Parole Service is quoted by the Canadian Press as saying he will be eligible for parole in seven years. A review is automatic at the end of that period. Long before that he may go to a minimum security institution.

An official in Victoria who preferred to remain anonymous bitterly complained: "He'll be out in under five years and back in business."

Sources engaged in treatment of narcotics addiction hold much the same view. Another official, in Vancouver, who did not want to be identified because he does not want to enter into any controversy, supported the view that the law is too lenient.

While the use of so-called soft drugs seems to have become pretty well stablized in this province, the use of heroin is growing "by leaps and bounds."

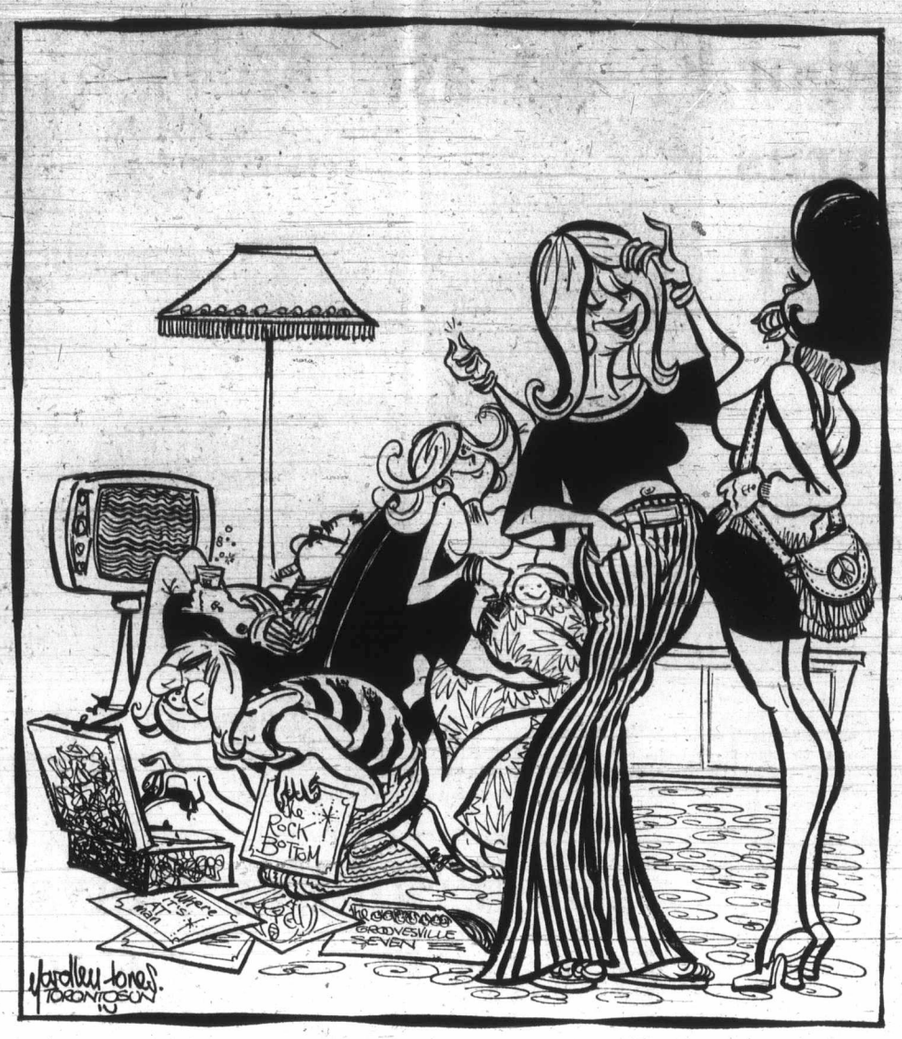

"It has never been more readily available," he said. "And it has never been of higher quality.

"As the trade grows so does the promotion," he added. It is so well organized, so assured of the market in Vancouver, for example, that the price of a cap is $15 — and has been for a year, while in Edmonton where the market is not so well established and the business of delivery more precarious it costs $25 to $30 a cap.

When sentencing the Vancouver trafficker, Judge Arthur McClellan observed: "It is frightening to think of the bodies and souls that would be prostituted and the lives that would be ruined to raise the more than a million dollars this drug (in the convicted man's possession) represents."

It is indeed. That is why so many supported Leslie Peterson, when, as attorney general, he urged Ottawa to take what steps were necessary to make sure convicted traffickers served their full sentences — and that parole or remisssion would not be considered.

Penalties for this most despicable of crimes should be considered for their deterrent effect. There is no place for the soft-hearted in the administration of justice where it concerns the heroin pusher.

"Harvey has a wonderful understanding with the children – they don't try to understand him and he doesn't try to understand them . . ."

Brandt Seeks a Mandate

ONLY AN INCAUTIOUS MAN would dare predict the result of the West German elections. But among the reckless there is a temptation to pick Chancellor Willy Brandt over Dr. Rainer Barzel, chiefly because of the chancellor's current aura of statesmanship, the Nobel peace prize award of 1971 and his partly successful fight against inflation, and the unemployment that so often accompanies that economic malady elsewhere. The average monthly wage is 1,250 D-marks, or $375 in Canadian funds. And unemployment is a fairly steady 0.8 of the labor force, best in Western Europe.

Willy Brandt's stalwart defence of the free market has been accompanied by impressive successes in his diplomatic approaches to the nations of the Communist bloc. He has effected what must be called reconciliation not only with the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Romania, but with the generally far less tractable East Germans, always anxious to prove their complete rejection of old-time culture and philosophy and their steadfast adherence to the theories of Karl Marx, as interpreted by Moscow.

His "ostpolitik", the policy designed to woo the Eastern European nations to accept West Germany as trustworthy and a sincere exponent of peace, at first was viewed with some suspicion by many of his own people — as well as the nations to the east.

Many Germans feared their chancellor was over-generous, as when he surrendered to Poland's determination that the Oder-Neiss frontier demarcation be confirmed. But he won them over.

Recent opinion polls show that well over 50 per cent of adult West Germans support his program where, only a year ago, it was an uncertain 40 per cent.

Dr. Barzel and his Christian Democrats are stressing that they, too, want to improve relations with East Europe and continue negotiations with East Germany. But they emphasize they will seek better bargains.

This issue, important as it is, may not be the decisive one. If it were Herr Brandt could count on control of the Bundestag.

But his enemies point to the numerous defections from his party, the dwindling of a majority until the Opposition could match him, member for member, making it necessary for him to contrive the dissolution of the lower house and look for a majority in a new election. They point to the resignation of such respected ministers as Karl Schiller from the portfolio of economics and finance. He was not satisfied with his leader's policy in face of the current pace of inflation, an alarming 5.5 per cent a year. Pensioners, particularly, remembering the disastrous post-war inflation, fear another such experience.

But Herr Brandt is confident he can convince his electorate that full employment and revision of the pensions system, along with the stability of wages, will overcome the evil effects of inflation. If he does, the chancellor will be assured of the sort of strength in the Bundestag that will allow him to pursue his program without the embarrassment of having to bully reluctant allies or cajole an obstructing Opposition.

President Nixon Keeps It Dark

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP from Washington

FOUR more years, the Republican faithful chant as they greet President Nixon on his campaign excursions from the White House. But the president is remarkably imprecise about how he would use a second four-year term in office — at least at home.

In foreign policy, the general lines he could be expected to follow are already well established, although there could be changes in emphasis and style, reflecting anticipated changes in the cabinet, affecting the departments of defence and state and probably others.

The president himself seems confident that a second term would see the end of the American involvement in the Vietnam war. Indeed, each time his foreign policy adviser, Dr. Henry Kissinger, flies to Paris for secret talks with the North Vietnamese, there is another flurry of speculation about a possible peace agreement even before the November presidential election.

But, in some major respects, the Nixon administration is conducting its diplomacy as if the Vietnam war is already over. The resumption of the bombing of North Vietnam and the mining of its ports did not upset the Soviet-American summit meeting in Moscow. Dr. Kissinger, returning from a follow-up trip to Russia recently, reported major progress in a number of areas. Preparations seem well advanced for the second round of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT). Prospects look good for an East-West European security conference and for negotiations to reduce ground forces in Europe.

Following on a massive sale of American grain to the Soviet Union, Russian experts are in Washington to work on a long-term trade agreement. Trade with China also seems likely to increase, though much more slowly.

If re-elected, President Nixon, it is promised, will show a fresh, more vigorous interest in reshaping the trade and other relationships between the United States and Western Europe to take account of the expansion and increasing wealth of the European Common Market. The United States, at the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund here, has already taken the initiative in the attempt to set up a new international monetary system.

The broad outlines of American foreign policy in a second Nixon term are, therefore, already discernible, and the momentum is there.

On the domestic front just what it is the president would try to achieve by 1976 is clouded in generalized rhetoric about keeping the country strong and preserving its "character," laced with promises of "change that works." Mr. Nixon has not yet attempted to explain his vision of America's future.

If he wins a "clear mandate for change" in the November election, he said at a press conference, "we could have a legislative record in the first six months of the next Congress which could equal in excitement, in reform, the 100 days of 1933" (under President Franklin Roosevelt).

What he appeared to have in mind was the swift passage of his major proposals, once wrapped up in a package he called "the New American Revolution" but most of which have yet to clear Congress.

When he first announced that package in his State of Union message last year, he gave top priority to welfare reform. But, so far in this campaign, he has talked as if his family assistance plan to put a "floor" of $2,400 under a family of four on welfare simply did not exist.

"We are faced this year," he said recently, "with a choice between the 'work ethic' that built this nation's character and the new 'welfare ethic' that could cause that American character to weaken . . . The work ethic builds strong people: the welfare ethic builds weak people."

In a "non-political" visit to a high school in southern Texas, he dwelt at length on the "dignity of hard work" and on the benefits of self-reliance which would enable anyone to realize the American dream and get to the top, no matter what his background.

The implication is that to accept welfare payments is a disgrace and somehow un-American. There is no hint that the majority of welfare recipients are children too young to work, nor any discussion of how to eradicate abject poverty and even hunger that exist in the world's richest country. The president does not explain why he believes his welfare reform plan is better than the proposals put forward by his opponent, Senator George McGovern. He simply ignores his own plan and leaves the idea that McGovern alone is proposing "government handouts" that will weaken the character of the nation.

There is a similar negative approach to the allied problem of race relations. The emphasis is on what Mr. Nixon is against. He is, for instance, against "quotas", racial and otherwise, on the grounds that giving specially favorable treatment to deprived sections of the population, for example in employment, is unfair to everyone else.

The president is against "busing" children to school outside their neighborhoods in order to achieve "racial balance."

"Busing" is unpopular and in many ways understandably so, but Mr. Nixon's approach to the issue ignores the fact that the purpose of court-ordered busing is aimed not at achieving a mathematical racial balance but at removing what remains of racial segregation in schools.

In posing as the champion of rugged individualism, Mr. Nixon seems to be appealing to the selfishness rather than to the generosity of the American voter. "What has made America the economic wonder of the world is not what the government did for the people, but what the people did for themselves," he says. This has led him to the promise (with reservations in fine print) that there would be no tax increases in a second Nixon term — a promise met with deep scepticism even from some Republican economic experts.

The president's enormous lead in the public opinion polls suggests that his approach in the campaign is a politically effective one, although it seems deliberately to blur the issues that the campaign is theoretically all about.

President Nixon seems to be consciously avoiding a debate with his Democratic challenger and not only in the sense of a face-to-face confrontation on television. He does not mention his opponent by name, but gives his own interpretation of McGovern proposals. A "redistribution of income" would mean "that those who do not work are rewarded more than those who do." The country should reject "the arguments of those who say that we should cut our defences so that we become the seond strongest nation in the world."

In his above-party appeal for Democratic votes, President Nixon is suggesting that re-electing him is the patriotic thing to do. He has so far given few hints about the actual domestic policies he would follow, if, as now seems probable, he does win "four more years."

'Dismal Picture Indeed'

The Liberals' Defence Record

By ROBERT CAMERON

WITH the dream of a bicultural Canada facing an uncertain future, unemployment figures still rising, inflation apparently out of control, and a surge of old fashioned nationalism dismaying our allies, Mr. Trudeau's political opponents should have no lack of petards on which to hoist him. However, if none of these has appeal, there's his sorry record in defence.

"Safety in numbers" has usually been a good watchword for defence. But it seems to mean different things to different people. For the prime minister it apparently meant having five different ministers in defence since 1968 and the prospect of a sixth before '72 has run its course. On the other hand "safety in numbers" for several of his defence ministers seems to have meant slashing the armed forces from 125,000 to 82,000.

The rapid change of management hasn't reduced bureaucrats to asking, "Who is minister of the day?" each morning when they arrive in the office—as happened in France during the 30s. Even so, five ministers, only one with a prior claim to expertise, and billions of dollars for them to spend, is probably not what Canadians had in mind when they gave Mr. Trudeau his mandate.

The taxpayer might still have had a break if this ministerial musical chairs wasn't compounded by Mr. Hellyer's unification, which tore the department to shreds and required several reorganizations to re-establish a workable pattern. But the record of inexperience at the top, plus a bureaucracy kept in constant turmoil, adds up to a dismal picture indeed. The cost of such mismanagement is best illustrated by three multi-million dollar aircraft programs.

Number one is the well known CF-5 program. This was a Hellyer baby, picked, over the objections of his principal military advisers, to fulfill a mission which he dreamed up but didn't hang around long enough to make a reality. Cost: about $225 million.

In due course, large numbers of CF-5s sitting in storage became a public scandal. So the minister (at that time) set about finding a role for them. After a few months of frantic searching, he decided that their principal mission should be in Norway — to support an army brigade (previously offered as a face saver for default of a prior army commitment in Central Europe). But with shrinking manpower, the elaborate refueling arrangements needed to ferry the CF-5s, and its isolation, Norway is the last place Canadian forces should be in the event of trouble in Europe, if we don't want to Hong Kong ourselves all over again.

The second aircraft program which invites serious criticism was the sudden scrapping of 12 CC-106, long range transport aircraft, for four (now five) new Boeing 707s. What prompted this deal was simply a rush to spend $50 million in DND's budget before the money reverted to Treasury at the end of the fiscal year. Since more and more government officials were then travelling via military transport, the idea of flying at 600 mph, rather than a tedious 400 in the CC-106s, had great appeal. So this hasty swap excited little opposition at the top.

Nevertheless, there is no way to justify the loss of flexibility in exchanging 12, reasonably good, long range aircraft for four new ones with the 707s margin of performance—particularly when the extra job of refuelling CF-5s was added to Transport Command's mission.

The third misapplication of defence funds is still impending and looks more inevitable every day. This is replacement of 36 anti-submarine aircraft (Argus) at a cost of about $600,000,000. To put this figure in perspective, let me say that $150 million is roughly what DND is now able to scrape up annually to modernize all the equipment in six major commands. Yet the government is now proposing to mortgage DND's future to the extent of $600 million, for the aircraft component of just one command!

Since the present government started life wih great hostility to the anti-submarine mission, this sudden largesse for an unwanted baby represents a drastic change of values. However, the explanation is simple. Since becoming prime minister, Mr. Trudeau and cohorts have created a foreign, commercial threat in the Arctic. While still moderately effective over the Atlantic, the Argus is not quite up to being all things to all people in the Arctic as well. So presto! The A-S mission is back in favor since it can help justify the cost of better aircraft for non-military use in the Arctic.

If the purchase is finally consumated, it will no doubt be sweetened with lavish offset contracts for Canadian industry, and ballyhooed accordingly. Nevertheless, is it wise to saddle DND with $600 million worth of commercial welfare to support a defence philosophy so vulnerable to repudiation by a succeeding administration?

When I ask air experts how they justify, operationally, the exchange of 36 to 40 Argus aircraft for a potential 18 to 20 new ones, as well as this unreasonable concentration of capital expenditures on just one of six major commands, I'm shouted down.

"Listen," they say, "we didn't invent the Arctic mission. It was dished up as government policy. The Argus is ageing. So if the politicians are prepared to buy a new aircraft to do the job, why shouldn't we go along?"

Sailors probably won't fuss about the program since it will take the heat out of criticism over the recent purchase of four, super-fancy destroyers at $265 million, and the Bras d'Or fiasco. But soldiers can have no cause for silence. For them it will be hard to understand the rationale of refusing $50 million for 100 new tanks so they can carry on with a vital combat responsibility, yet spending $600 million mainly to improve Canada's flag-waving potential in the Arctic.

High Noon for Davy

By WAYNE HOWELL

THE good people of Dry Gulch were very proud of their hero, Davy "Quick-Draw" Lewis, the fastest figure-slinger in the county. His legend spread throughout the west and one day the inevitable happened; a mysterious stranger, a masked man on a silver horse, rode into town and issued a challenge.

"It's Roamin' Steve from the Denison spread come to seek his revenge," said some of the townsfolk cowering in the saloon.

"It's a hired gun sent down by those bums at the big INCO spread," said others. But the mayor, who had heard tales of the mysterious masked man, knew better.

"That's the Lone Percenter and his trusty horse Digit," said the mayor. The Lone Percenter!! The man they said wore a mask because he had decimal points for eyes!

The townsfolk rushed to tell Davy his moment of truth was at hand. They found him in his study, nonchalantly polishing up his favorite figures.

"Fear not," said Davy to the worried citizens, "I'll demolish this upstart at high noon."

The pale shadows cast by the hitching posts shortened ominously as the sun climbed higher and higher. When there was no shadow at all, the curious townsfolk drifted out of the saloons to watch the two antagonists confront each other in the dusty street.

Quick-Draw Lewis drew first and sent a round of figures on deferred corporate taxes ricocheting about the street. But much to the amazement of the spectators, who were used to seeing Davy's opponent cut and run, the Lone Percenter stood his ground and fired back that in a recent year the deferred taxes in question represented less than 3 per cent of total tax revenue! That shot hurt Davy but he came back shooting from the hip, claiming the cost of living had risen to 141.3 because of the exorbitant profits of the supermarket chains.

"Supermarket chains have a profit margin of less than 1 per cent," blasted back the Lone Percenter. The townsfolk were stunned — Davy's figures retained their veracity, but somehow they seemed to lose all their velocity when used against the Lone Percenter. Still, "Quick-Draw" fought on gamely.

"Last year the government gave $530 million in grants to corporate welfare bums," blazed Davy, getting off one of the best figures of the day. But it just glanced off the Lone Percenter who fired right back.

"That is just 13 per cent of the amount the government gave away to the people through Health and Welfare in the same period!"

There was a moan from the crowd. Davy was down! Down in the dusty street . . . but not out.

"Thirteen per cent," he gasped. "Why that's just what Shell Oil paid in taxes last year on net earnings of $123 million . . . that's 50 per cent less than most individuals have to pay!"

That shot found its mark and the Lone Percenter bit the dust. There was a roar from the townsfolk, for just as they were about to lose faith in their hero's figures, Dave had struck down the Lone Percenter with his own weapon, the percentage point! But even as they helped the battered Lone Percenter onto his trusty horse and watched him gallop off into the sagebrush crying, "Heigh-ho . . . Digit . . . away," they realized that Davy's figures would never be quite the same to them again. The Lone Percenter had put them in perspective.

There seems to be an increasing feeling among the world's theologians that, to make an impact on society, they must be as with it as the most far out of their contemporaries. One evidence of this was the God Is Dead school of theology of a few years ago. Now we have fresh evidence of the same trend.

Starting on September 1, "more than 3,000 of the world's foremost biblical scholars" (are there really that many in the field?) met in a five-day congress in Los Angeles. Among the papers they were privileged to hear was one on "St. Augustine's Penis" and another on "Phallic Worship: The Ultimate in Idolatry." Not untypically, these papers were presented by women — which is about as with it as you can get.

Syria

The alleged increase in the supply of modern Russian weapons to Syria appears more important in terms of political propaganda and prestige than in any military sense,

This would seem to be true for all the four countries concerned: America and Israel on the one side, and Russia and Syria on the other.

The United States and Israel have been sending cold shivers down their own spines, and those of others who go along with their view, with the claim that this new Russian move increases "tension" in the area.

But two factors produce on air of disbelief here in this thesis: the factual basis for alarm is flimsy. It rests in part on reports quoting "Arab diplomatic sources" in one Beirut newspaper which is well known for being pro-West to the extent that it is banned in Syria.

The paper headlined an "Air Bridge Between Odessa and Damacus," which turned out to consist of just four Antonov transport planes. (Israeli sources say the airlift delivered up to 20,000 tons of military equipment.)

Beef

Uruguayans, accustomed to having huge quantites of beef on their dining tables, are grumbling as never before following imposition of a four-month ban on beef consumption.

Across the estuary of the Rio de la Plata, Argentines continue to grumble about their country's beef ban which takes place every other week.

And across the Andes mountains, Chileans also are complaining about beef bans and shortages.

For three countries which have traditionally been major beef producers and consumers — the Argentine traditionally eats more beef than any other people in the world — the beef ban is particularly galling.

They know all the reasons for the ban — basically a desire on the part of governments to conserve beef for export to earn needed foreign exchange. But whenever governments take away beef from their tables, they are bound to complain.

Lead-Free Gasoline Demanded as Price for 'Clean' Cars

Cost Puts Auto, Oil Firms at Loggerheads with Washington

By PETER TONGE, from Boston, Mass.

The United States auto industry — biggest in the world — wants outside help in its race to meet the federal government's standards to control exhaust emissions by 1975.

In effect, it wants lead-free gasoline available for all cars, which means, according to some oil sources, that the oil industry might have to spend an extra $8 billion.

The oilmen claim that this is a prohibitive cost and that they just can't see their industry spending it.

At stake, as the two industrial behemoths eye each other, is ridding cities from the pollution caused by auto exhausts. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is determined that the job will be done.

★ ★ ★

Contrary to some reports, the auto industry remains far from confident that it can meet the emission standards.

And even with lead-free gas, no one will guarantee success of the steps being taken to lower toxic gases from exhaust emissions to levels aceptable to the Environmental Protection Agency.

"What we are saying," a General Motors spokesman says, "is that without lead-free gas we won't make it."

According to General Motors president Edward N. Cole, GM has been able to meet emission levels for 1975 and '76 — but only "with prototype systems in experimental cars at low mileage."

★ ★ ★

These systems, apparently, also require the use of largely lead-free gasoline.

Lead-free and low-lead gasolines are already available, and have been for some time. But volume production, say oil industry officials, would require such widespread conversion of existing plant and facilities — even the construction of completely new refineries — that the cost would be sky-high.

Estimates range from $2 billion to $8 billion, depending on the purity of gasoline.

Detroit's search for emission-control devices follows many paths; the most promising appears to be a platinum-based catalytic system. It could prove highly effective over 50,000 miles — as long as fuels are free of lead. Lead contamination, even relatively small quantities, quickly reduces the system's capacity to operate.

Originally the introduction of tetraethyl lead was the simplest way of increasing the octane rating of a gasoline, thereby delaying ignition and controlling "knock" in high-compression engines.

On the other hand, high-octane fuels can also be obtained simply by further refining processes — but these processes require additional costly plant equipment.

Even given the capacity to produce lead-free fuels the problem of residual contamination remains — the traces of lead remaining in pipelines and tanks that previously carried or stored standard gasoline. This contamination can stay around for a long time, industry officials say.

Amoco, for instance, produces — and has since 1915 — an entirely lead-free gasoline. When this fuel leaves the refineries it is 100 per cent free of lead, But by the time it reaches the motorist at the corner service station it may have as much as 0.05 grams per gallon of lead impurities.

Meanwhile, the EPA has proposed regulations that provide for all U.S. service stations selling more than 200,000 gallons of gas a year to have at least one pump dispensing lead-free fuel by July 1, 1974. This would be gas with a maximum of 0.05 grams per gallon contamination.

★ ★ ★

In addition the agency proposes that lead additives be reduced to two grams per gallon by Jan. 1, 1974, decreasing still further to 1.25 grams by 1977.

Auto industry spokesmen tend to feel this is too little too late if emission standards can be achieved by the catalytic method.

GM, for instance, would like widespread use of lead-free gas immediately "So that residual contamination can be cleared out of the transportation systems (tankers, fuel lines, storage tanks, and pumps, etc.) by 1975." To this end the auto giant is placing "Use Lead-Free Gas" decals on all its new cars.

Meanwhile, Standard Oil (Indiana) would be "perfectly happy" if lead-free gas became mandatory. With two refineries geared solely to the production of high-octane lead-free fuels, it would be hit the least of all by heavy capital costs.

The company also contends there would be no need to boost fuel prices more than about two cents a gallon "unless they want to recoup their capital investments over the short term."

It is more expensive to produce a gallon of high-octane lead-free gas. The extra refining immediately pushes up the cost. Then too, it takes approximately 10 per cent more crude oil to produce a gallon of lead-free gas.

This, the oil companies contend, is a significant factor. "The United States already consumes 200 billion gallons of crude oil a year for refining into gasoline. Even without more cars coming onto the roads then, the use of lead-free gasolines would push that consumption figure up another $20 billion.

Soviet Weapons Aid Prestige More than Military

Syria Stronger Politically

CSM Service, from Beirut, Lebanon

The alleged increase in the supply of modern Russian weapons to Syria appears more important in terms of political propaganda and prestige than in any military sense,

This would seem to be true for all the four countries concerned: America and Israel on the one side, and Russia and Syria on the other.

The United States and Israel have been sending cold shivers down their own spines, and those of others who go along with their view, with the claim that this new Russian move increases "tension" in the area.

But two factors produce on air of disbelief here in this thesis: the factual basis for alarm is flimsy. It rests in part on reports quoting "Arab diplomatic sources" in one Beirut newspaper which is well known for being pro-West to the extent that it is banned in Syria.

The paper headlined an "Air Bridge Between Odessa and Damacus," which turned out to consist of just four Antonov transport planes. (Israeli sources say the airlift delivered up to 20,000 tons of military equipment.)

Beyond casual references to MiG 21 planes and SAM 3 missiles no details of the arms have been provided, And the crucial fact that the airlift ceased after a couple of days went unreported.

The second factor is that it must be recognized that what Russia is, perhaps, now doing in Syria is precisely what America has been doing openly in Turkey for 25 years and for five years semi-secretly in Syria's other neighbor, Israel. That is, supplying weapons and training.

Despite talk of a newly developed Russian "threat," Russian naval ships, in fact, have enjoyed port facilities at Latakia and Tortus in Syria for some years now. Furthermore any arms that the Russians are supplying to Syria are no better, and certainly less numerous than those the Egyptions had.

And, finally, reconnaissance planes over the eastern Mediterranean were not and will not be any real threat to the U.S. Sixth Fleet.

Any such Russian planes would have to operate from Syrian airfields several hundred miles east of their former Egyptian bases, thus reducing their effectiveness.

For Israel, it is said here, the threat is a new pretext for not making peace, nor withdrawing from the occupied Syrian Golan Heights. Israeli Deputy Premier Yigal Allon promptly drew this same conclusion.

Syrian SAM 3s and MiG 21s will be a threat to Israel only if she attacks Syria. Apart from spoiling raids Israel is unlikely to make a large scale unprovoked attack on Syria because Israel already has all the Syrian territory it wants.

Nor is the presence of increased numbers of defensive Russian arms likely to provoke Syria into attacking Israel, the reasoning goes. It did not do so in the case of Egypt. For Russia, the talk of Moscow "moving in" on Syria is a tremendous propaganda boost, a geopolitical counterthrust that almost makes up for the expulsion from Egypt.

And she has achieved this without incurring any additional risk of being dragged into a Middle Eastern war. With two communists in the Syrian cabinet, Russia may feel closer to Syria than she ever did to Egypt, but no one now expects Russia to go to war for any Arab country, however leftist.

As for Syria, an increase in its defensive strength is naturally reassuring, but not all that important, not unless it decides to allow the Palestinian commandos to operate into Israel from Syrian territory, a step that would probably bring on an Israeli counter-attack.

Syria is being very accommodating towards the Palestinians, but the number of incidents on the Golan Heights has not notably increased.

But as the favored friend of Russia in the eastern Arab area, and with some new Russian arms to prove this point, Syria's political prestige is increased far more than its military potential. Hence, for instance, Syria's President Assad can claim that on his recent visit to Moscow, he was playing the middle man between Russia and Egypt.

Signs Point to New, Frightening Crisis

Ulster Eruption Expected

By CY FOX, from London

British officials are reported quietly pleased at the latest remarks made by the Pope about the continuing crisis in Northern Ireland.

During Prime Minister Heath's visit to the Vatican, Pope Paul avoided the implicit criticism of the London government's Ulster policies which had characterized some papal remarks on the Northern Ireland situation earlier this year.

Moreover, the Pope was reported to have privately shown sympathy for Britain's position.

On the other hand, events in Ulster are taking on a form bound to prompt extra apprehension among British officials. For one thing, executions that bear all the marks of being either sectarian killings or lethal neighborhood vendettas continue in Belfast.

★ ★ ★

Even more ominous is the apparent assassination attempt against William Craig, leader of the Protestant Vanguard movement and a former hardline minister of home affairs under the now-suspended Ulster system of regional self-government.

Craig blamed the shooting directed at his car on "someone who is trying pretty desperately to escalate the situation and produce a Loyalist reaction." Whether the incident involving Craig will, despite his survival. provoke such a reaction on a major scale remains to be seen.

But its consequences, whatever they are, can only deepen the gloom of those peace-seekers who last month sadly watched a government-backed conference on Ulster's future achieve little or nothing by way of concrete results.

An additional dimension of doubt has been introduced with the remarks made by Opposition Leader Harold Wilson on Ulster in a speech to the Labor party's annual conference.

Wilson gave expression to the feeling that there might be growing support among mainland Britons for pulling their army out of Ulster if the situation there continues to deteriorate. Such a move, in the words of one London newspaper, would "leave the two sides (Protestants and Catholic) to cut each other's throats."

Whatever the extent of grassroots British support for an eventual decision of this kind, the London-controlled security forces in embatttled Northern Ireland have had anything but a relaxing time during the last few days.

One source of new worry has been the disclosure — made as a result of a British operative's death in a Belfast shooting — that the security forces have been using undercover methods in their attempts to bring the explosive Ulster situation under control.

Neither has there been much comfort for the British in the way allegations about their fight against the underground Irish Republican Army continue to get an organized international hearing.

In general, the Ulster situation, upstaged though it may have been recently by developments elsewhere in the world, gives every sign of moving towards a new and frightening crisis.

Beef Ban Brings Beefs

By JAMES NELSON GOODSELL, from Montevideo

Uruguayans, accustomed to having huge quantites of beef on their dining tables, are grumbling as never before following imposition of a four-month ban on beef consumption.

Across the estuary of the Rio de la Plata, Argentines continue to grumble about their country's beef ban which takes place every other week.

And across the Andes mountains, Chileans also are complaining about beef bans and shortages.

For three countries which have traditionally been major beef producers and consumers — the Argentine traditionally eats more beef than any other people in the world — the beef ban is particularly galling.

They know all the reasons for the ban — basically a desire on the part of governments to conserve beef for export to earn needed foreign exchange. But whenever governments take away beef from their tables, they are bound to complain.

The bans, for the most part, are only on beef, with lamb, pork and other meats readily available. But it is beef, and beef only, that the Uruguayans, the Argentinians and the Chileans regard as meat.

The ban is called a "veda" — a suspension of sales in meat markets and in restaurants. Of course, some fortunate households have freezers and can store meat for meatless days, but the majority of homes in this part of the world cannot afford such luxuries.

Moreover, there are stiff penalties for anyone found disobeying the ban on beef sales and consumption.

★ ★ ★

The governments of both Argentina and Uruguay argue that these bans are necessary if cattle-raisers are to sell their animals for export. Right now, the international demand is high and the price for exported beef is good also. But supply remains limited. Much of the problem stems from the failure of Argentina and Uruguayan cattlemen to increase their herds. In Uruguay, for example, the number of cattle out on the grazing land today is no larger than it was in 1908.

With the population of both Argentina and Uruguay increasing, and with world demand for beef also growing, there simply is not enough beef to go around, the governments argue.

Some people in government here are hopeful that public clamor for beef during the four-month "veda," which began July 15, will force cattle producers to increase their herds.

That has also been the hope in Argentina for 10 years during various periods of beefless days, but production still is lagging. Argentine producers complain that they are taxed at rates that give them no incentive to boost production, and there appears to be some justification to their complaints.

For the average Argentine the key concern is just when beefless days will end. The same is true of the Uruguayan and the Chilean, although in the latter case the issue is complicated by actual production cuts and the confused agricultural picture resulting from major agrarian reform by the government and land seizures by landless peasants.

But whatever the reason, people in this part of the world are increasingly unhappy over meatless days.

"Isn't it time to end this folly?" asked one of Montevideo's newspapers. Many a Uruguayan, as well as his counterparts in Argentine and Chile, asks much the same question. But there would appear to be little likelihood that governments in the three countries are about to put an end to the "veda."

Barber Follows Closing Rules

The Mayfair barbershop of Carlos Almeida was open Monday of this week, but closed Wednesday—and will continue to close on Wednesdays at least until December.

Almeida was recently acquitted on a charge of contravening a Victoria municipal bylaw by remaining open on Mondays.

Then he discovered the firm is subject to another bylaw which requires him to close on Wednesdays.

The Monday charge came under a 1964 optional closing day bylaw; unless formal application is made to operate under that bylaw, a proprietor is automatically subject to a 1958 bylaw stipulating barbershops must close on Wednesdays.

That's what Almeida is doing.

only way to develop a quality of life or material goods."

For the new premier with a new NDP government on his hands, Thursday marked his first address to a large labor body since his party was elected Aug. 30.

It was strictly a "call me Dave" atmosphere (he said he hoped to be called by his first name) with Barrett moving unescorted to the front of the meeting hall shaking hands on all sides as he went.

Later he signed autographs for members of the IWA woodmen's auxiliary who surrounded him. As he did so he looked a little like a slightly overweight athlete meeting his fans.

He exchanged quips with reporters. The mood was good, but Barrett was very much in friendly territory.

For Premier

There was, of course, the standing ovation coming and going for the premier — something the delegates hadn't provided earlier in the week for federal Labor Minister Martin O'Connell — a Liberal who found himself in what IWA regional president Jack Moore told him was a "nest of NDPers."

While Barrett didn't deal with labor specifics, he set the mood by telling his audience that over the last few years "quite frankly things have not been all love and kisses with myself and the trade labor movement."

However, he said he considered the IWA the most democratic of unions and said his relationship with this organization had "never wavered."

Singled Out

The government was still in the "honeymoon" stage he said, being singled out for praise of its early accomplishments.

"Even the right wingers are saying everything is all right — 'Look, even the sun is still coming out.' Everybody is happy but we are going to introduce things that are obvious and which could have been done by anybody. I expect the honeymoon will last only till about Christmas."

He said he wasn't asking his listeners for "undying loyalty" to the NDP, but wanted them, as basic workers, to know the government is trying to turn B.C. in a new direction.

The Result

The result, he said, "won't necessarily be measured in the amount of money we can stash away in the bank in Victoria, won't necessarily be measured in the Gross National Product growth and won't necessarily be measured in the standard politicians' cliche of two cars in every garage."

"We want to move British Columbia into an era of understanding that there is more to life than material goods."

Drugs, Parole

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald will meet Solicitor-General Jean Pierre Goyer today in Vancouver to discuss drugs and the federal parole system.

Next Friday in Victoria, Macdonald will also meet the chief RCMP commissioner, W. L. Higgitt and the B.C. chief assistant commissioner, Gordon Cunningham.

Mcdonald said Thursday he was concerned about the parole of hard drug traffickers who might return to the trade while they were free.

He said he would ask to see figures on the number of parolees who have resumed trafficking in hard drugs.

B.C. Studies Insurance

Program with Teeth

The New Democratic Party government is studying a Saskatchewan dental insurance scheme that covers children up to 12 years old, it was learned Thursday.

However, a spokesman for Health Minister Dennis Cocke said in Victoria that the B.C. investigation was not particularly novel because all health services now are being reviewed by the newly elected NDP administration.

"We are looking at the Saskatchewan program with considerable interest, nevertheless," added the spokesman.

Earlier in the day, Cocke was quoted as saying that his government was "actively considering bringing dental care under the provisions of the B.C. Medical Plan."

The spokesman indicated that the minister had been misinterpreted because medicare is a federal-provincial shared-cost program, and B.C. could hardly add a new schedule of beneficiaries to the scheme without federal agreement.

Revising officers will sit three days next week to make certain all eligible persons are on the voters list in the federal Victoria riding.

David Wilson, returning officer, said Thursday that persons who think they may be omitted from the list should check with his office.

If they have been missed, there are a number of methods by which they can have their names added by revising officers who will sit in the main lounge of the YM-YWCA, 880 Courtney, from 11 a.m. to noon and 8 to 11 p.m. on Oct. 11, 12 annd 13.

An eligible elector may apply in person at the court of revision or may arrange through the returning officer to be contacted by two revising agents, who will present the name to the court.

If the person is temporarily absent from his ordinary place of residence during revision of the voters' list, his employer may apply on his behalf, or he may appoint another agent to apply.

Revising officers will start their work today and will continue through Oct. 13.

October in the Square

Bastion Square even in early October seems just as attractive as ever in this photograph taken Tuesday afternoon. Foliage and distinctive buildings which in summer draw thousands of tourists to enjoy scenery and shops are still here and seem only to attract city residents who, by deserted appearance, take its beauty for granted.

NDP Hits Oil Plans

Coastline Is 'Doomed'

Roger Smith, Esquimalt-Saanich NDP candidate in the federal election, said Thursday that the Pacific coastline will almost certainly be destroyed in the next few years.

Smith's statement said the coast would be destroyed "When a Cherry Point tanker spills its oil. As Canadians smell and touch the deadly mess, they will be able to thank the gutless Liberal government.

"We should be questioning not only the means of bringing the oil to southern refineries, but should also be asking why we are bringing it. We are chokinng to death in fumes and we are mortgaging ourselves for years to pay for a lump of American metal and plastic."

"Canadians," Smith's statement continued, "must decide that they want to be Canadian, to be a people with a worthwhile and humane set of values, rather than plastic imitations of the decadent culture to the south of us."

□

Polls for the federal election of Oct. 30 will be open in the two Greater Victoria ridings of Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., the two returning officers have announced. Election rules also provide that every employee shall have a clear four hours off work with pay to cast a ballot.

Flemming Hansen, Victoria NDP candidate, said Thursday day that cablevision in Victoria should be placed under public ownership by residents of the community.

The statement also suggested that the Canadian Radio-Television Commission should seek establishment of citizen councils, democratically elected, to be responsible for community programming.

Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Labor Backs UVic Voice

Victoria Labor Council has endorsed a bid by the Canadian Union of Public Employees for a voice in the administration of the University of Victoria.

CUPE Local 951, representing about 350 workers in office and laboratory classifications, has asked for a seat on the university senate. The workers say their bid for the seat was not made on the basis of their qualifications as academicians, but because their interests are affected by senate decisions.

Many of them, said a letter from the CUPE executive to UVic president Dr. Hugh Farquhar, either have children in the university system at present or children who will in the near future be entering some university.

Big-H Club

CALGARY (CP) — The number of heroin addicts in the city has been increasing steadily and they now number between 400 and 500, according to RCMP.

Woodward's 'Safety-Belt 140' Twin Stripe Whitewall Tires

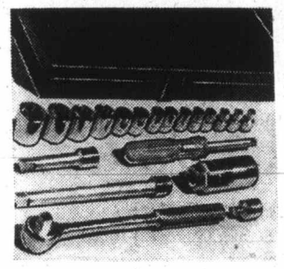

Woodward's Premium Snow-Belt Whitewall Tires

A combination of fibreglass and nylon cord that gives increased mileage over standard tires. Bias-angled, nylon cord built in the body of the tire almost eliminates impact breaks, while a safety-belt of fibreglass is bonded to the tread to resist "tire-squirm", prevent undue wear, and hold the tread firmly to the road at freeway speeds.

Indecision Ends; Trend Is Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices took a steep slide in the stock market Thursday after four consecutive sessions of indecisive trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed at 941.30, down 10.01. It had been down 5.34 points at 11:30 a.m.

Then came the news that President Nixon had said in a news conference that Vietnam peace talks were in a sensitive stage. There was a flurry of trading, and the Dow swung over to the plus side. But almost immediately it began to sink again.

Among Canadians, Distillers Seagrams was down ½ at $38 and Inco ⅜ at $33⅛. Dome Mines was up ½ at $69 and Walker-Gooderham ⅛ at $47⅞.

The New York Stock Exchange index was down .66 to 59.66.

Reverse Day

TORONTO (CP) — Reversing Wednesday's favorable performance, prices on the Toronto stock market closed sharply lower in moderate trading.

Trans-Canada PipeLines announced Thursday that it will ask permission to export additional natural gas from Alberta The stock closed at $46⅝, up ¼.

Glengair Group Ltd. closed at $1.85, up 10 cents. There was confirmation that controlling interest is up for sale.

Falconbridge Nickel slipped 2 to $59, Royal Bank 1⅛ to $34¼, MacLean-Hunter Cable 1 to $15½, Peoples Credit A 1 to $19 and Foodex 1 to $25½.

Light Trade

MONTREAL (CP) — Unanimous declines marked light trading. On the Montreal Stock Exchange, Royal Bank dropped 1⅛ to $34¼, Falconbridge Nickel 1 to $61½, and Canada and Dominion Sugar ¾ to $26 while Great West Life gained 1 to $73½ and Fairview Corp ¾ to $14.

Prices Up

VANCOUVER — Prices moved upward in moderate trading. Busiest industrial trader was Thermoplex, up 5 cents at $2.05. In the oils, Peace River was at 20 cents on a volume of 65,500 shares. Leading mine was Gunn, rising 7 cents at $1.77. Pyramid rose a penny to .37.

Pulp Industry Problem

B.C. Wants Say in Freight Rates

By RAY DYKES
Colonist Reporter

The B.C. government has applied to intervene in a U.S. move to increase freight rates which could penalize provincial pulp mills.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald announced the intervention bid in a press conference Thursday morning and said moves being considered by the Interstate Commerce Commissiin in Washington could upset the pulp freight rate picture in western Canada.

Several B.C. pulp mills had already applied to intervene but had been rejected, he said.

The pulp mills were concerned about "discrimination" against pulp exports to eastern U.S. points and a possible increase of $2 or $3 a ton.

Macdonald said such an increase would be a serious blow for our pulp mills and jobs in this province."

The B.C. decision to try to be an intervener in the rate increase move before the ICC was paralleled by Macdonald with Liberal leader David Anderson's bid to block the U.S. oil tanker route along the west coast of Canada.

The Ontario government had also applied to intervene but for different reasons.

B.C. wanted to step in to "keep an eye" on the situation and would possibly take further action if the freight rate boost went through, he said.

Prince Albert Pulp Co. Ltd. of Sask. was cited as one of the main companies concerned about the U.S. move because it exported pulp to Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Ohio by rail.

The ICC is considering either reducing Prince Albert pulp mill's rates varying between $2.40 and $3.40 a ton or alternatively increasing the rates of western, central and eastern Canada mills by those amounts.

If the railways increased the rates as suggested, based on a differential of $3 a ton it would cost the B.C. industry more tha $1.3 million a year.

The market involved represents about 15 per cent of the total B.C. pulp shipments in 1970.

If the Saskatchewan company's rates were decreased it would put B.C. mills at a substantial competitive disadvantage, and this could result in the loss of $15.1 million if 25 per cent of the eastern markets are lost or $60.4 million if the whole market is lost.

The B.C. government has been told there is probably more than $600 million of private capital invested in B.C. mills in the Interior alone, compared to the total cost of $65 million ($50 million from the Saskatchewan government) for the Prince Albert mill.

Pyramid Clamp Eyed

The NDP government may amend the Securities Act to tighten control over pyramid sales companies in the province, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Thursday.

In the meantime, Macdonald warned the public of B.C. to be on its guard and anyone considering purchasing into pyramid sales plans should first consult their own solicitor.

The attorney-general's remarks were prompted by a Vancouver newspaper report into the actions of a company known as New International Cassette Media Method Corp. Ltd. (NIMCO).

The company, registered in Victoria in August, is offering franchises to people willing to buy $1,100 cassette players which can be connected to television sets for playing prerecorded black and white or color cassettes.

Franchise holders are awarded exclusive sales territories in return for a down payment calculated at seven cents a head for every resident in the area.

Franchise holders rent or lease cassettes to customers and are expected to buy at least 10 machines and NIMCO awards distributors a second machine for a rental of $10 a week for each machine they buy.

Macdonald said NIMCO was "basically a pyramid-selling plan" and the company had never been required to submit a prospectus or to have an appraisal of its economic viability.

Mill Townsite Closing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. announced Thursday it will close its Fraser Mills townsite in Coquitlam next year.

Company employees living in the 60-year-old townsite have been advised to look for alternate accommodation.

Dr. F. O. Whipple, administrator of the townsite, said studies show it would be economically unsound to upgrade the 49 old houses remaining, and provide adequate power and sewer services.

Japan's Load Grows

By GEORGE GIBSON
Colonist Business Editor

Growing trade between Canada and Japan is reflected in the recent announcement by Japan Air Lines that it is appointing a cargo sales representative in western Canada, effective this month.

Kazuo Ishikawa is the new man in the new position. While based in Vancouver, he will work extensively on the Prairies, said a company spokesman. There is considerable demand for Prairie meat and other farm products, much of which is shipped by air.

Ishikawa is a native of Seattle and has just been appointed from JAL's Chicago office.

The airline spokesman said his line expects to carry about 300,000 pounds of Canadian goods in 1972 from Vancouver or transhipped from eastern Canada through Los Angeles.

He added that he expects that figure to increase by 30 per cent next year.

JAL began operations in Canada in 1968.

On Marketing

Third annual three-day marketing seminar to be held by B.C. Research, is scheduled for the UBC campus Oct. 31, Nov. 1 and 2.

"In these seminars we are trying to give medium-sized and smaller companies a brief, intensive and practical exposure to modern marketing techniques, helping them to learn things they can apply right away to their own businesses," stated Donald Smith, head of the management and productivity centre of B.C. Research.

The research council is a non-profit industrial research society.

Real Estate

Tax Loophole Buyer Pitfall

VANCOUVER (CP) — Every property sale agreement should contain a clause stating that the seller is a Canadian resident in order to protect the buyer, warns a Vancouver tax accountant.

Gary Webb told delegates to the Canadian Real Estate Association Convention Wednesday that buried in new Canadian tax legislation is a regulation requiring the property buyer to pay capital gains tax on profit made by a non-Canadian seller if the seller avoids the tax.

"The resident is responsible for finding out whether a property vendor is a Canadian resident or not, and if he is a non-resident, the buyer is furthermore responsible for determining whether the vendor will be paying the tax," said Webb.

He said the main problem lies in determining who is a resident. "It is supposed to be someone whose normal abode is Canada, but there are all sorts of interpretations of this. Many times, the purchaser doesn't even know who the vendor is."

The Mercedes-Benz 280SE 4.5

A different definition of comfort
Most expensive cars are designed to remove the feel of the road from the driver. The Mercedes-Benz 280SE 4.5 defines comfort in a different way.
It gives you the comfort that comes with control. Control that eases tensions that build during a long drive. The fully independent suspension holds the road without wallowing or wandering. But road-holding alone isn't enough to satisfy our concept of comfort.
The orthopedically contoured seats are designed for extended stays. Seat springs are tuned to virtually eliminate those tiny vibrations that can contribute to fatigue. And, of course, the steering column has its own shock absorber.
You can only really appreciate this satisfying concept of comfort during a long test drive. We invite you to take one. And when you do, we believe you'll want to make this the year you will finally own a Mercedes-Benz.

Cougars Open Schedule By Surprising Bruins

Victoria Cougars accomplished Thursday what they couldn't do in the entire 1971-72 season.

They defeated the New Westminster Bruins.

Losers of 10 straight games with Bruins last season, Cougars quickly established themselves in the Western Canada Junior Hockey League opener and came away with a well-deserved 4-2 victory at New Westminster.

The Victoria squad jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first period and held a 3-1 edge after 40 minutes.

A brief letdown in the final period allowed New Westminster to pull within a goal but standout netminding by Sam Clegg kept the Bruin marksmen out.

A last-minute goal by Al McLaren, scored from a goalmouth scramble, clinched the victory.

Clegg, who joined Cougars this week from Saskatoon Blades, shared the Victoria spotlight with Frank Hyndman, a winger who split last season between the Bruins and Chilliwack of the B.C. Junior Hockey League.

Hyndman, who is playing with a face mask protecting his nose which was broken in training camp, scored two goals, including what proved to be the winner in the second period.

His first goal came after a brilliant solo rush in the final seconds of the first period, while both teams were playing shorthanded.

Dave Faulkner had opened the scoring for Victoria midway through the period.

Clegg made a total of 37 stops in his Cougar debut and couldn't be faulted on the two shots that eluded him.

Emile Demoissac, on a power play, and Marty Mathews were the Bruin marksmen.

Terry Richardson had a comparatively easy night, stopping 17 shots for New Westminster.

Bruin coach Ernie McLean also saw his club's new style of hockey prove disappointing.

McLean has his team playing a fast-skating type of game, instead of the roughhouse tactics used last season, when Bruins finished third in the Western Division of the WCJHL.

The new style did cut down on penalties, there were only four called on the Bruins, but the free-skating play was of little advantage to the home club.

Cougars play their home opener Saturday night against Calgary Centennials. Game time at Memorial Arena is 8:30 p.m.

Weston Adams, Jr., Milt Schmidt and Tom Johnson welcome Sinden back to Bruins

Sinden Returns to Bruins In Front-Office Shakeup

UPI, AP

BOSTON — Boston Bruins, in a major front-office alignment, Thursday signed former coach Harry Sinden to the newly-created position of managing director and shifted general-manager Milt Schmidt to the new post of executive director.

Sinden, 40, who returned to the United States Sunday after coaching Team Canada, signed a five-year contract with the National Hockey League team.

Tom Johnson remains as coach of the club.

Sinden coached the defending Stanley Cup-champion Bruins for four seasons, 1966 through 1970. He left the team then for private business as an executive with Stirling Homex, a Rochester, N.Y., corporation.

Schmidt has been with the Bruins since 1936, playing 16 years in the National Hockey League. He is a member of the Hockey Hall of Fame. He became general manager in 1967.

The decision to rehire Sinden was obviously made quickly by Sinden and the Bruins.

Sinden returned from the Soviet Union Sunday, met with Bruins president Weston W. Adams Jr. Monday, and agreed to terms Tuesday. He said he was first approached by the Bruins through an intermediary two months ago.

The Bruins said Sinden would oversee the day-to-day operation of the club and would develop new administrative procedures "in keeping with the rapidly expanding impact of professional hockey in both the sports world and on the international scene."

Adams said the precise job responsibilities of Schmidt and Sinden had not been worked out.

Citing the new hockey league and the advent of international hockey, Sinden told a press conference "part of our job will be to keep the Bruins the number one attraction in hockey."

Columnist Eats Words

From CP

The expression "You'll eat those words" is often heard, but seldom becomes a reality.

But for columnist John Robertson of the Montreal Star it happened.

Robertson predicted the Soviet National team would beat Team Canada six games to two in the recent eight-game hockey series and furthermore said he would eat the column that predicted the outcome at centre ice of the Montreal Forum if he was wrong.

Management of the Forum declined with thanks.

But Robertson kept his part of the bargain when he undertook to eat the shredded, 60-square-inch newsprint tidbit at a meeting of the Montreal Advertising and Sales Executive Club!

What did it taste like?

"As bad as it read," said Robertson to the several hundred who attended the meeting.

Robertson shredded the column, mixed it with a chef's salad liberally doused in Russian dressing, and wolfed it down in four minutes and nine seconds.

Robertson's column predicting the outcome also appeared in The Colonist... but he just ate the copy which appeared in the Star.

Golf Names Grab Leads In International Events

From Wire Services

Tournaments in Japan, England and France share the golf spotlight this week and well-known names are leading in the early going.

At the $300,000 Pacific Masters in Inzai, Japan, Phil Rodgers carded a five-under-par Thursday to take a one-stroke lead in the world's richest tourney.

The California professional birdied four holes on the front nine of the 7207-yard par-72 Sobu Country Club course. He also had three birdies on the back nine but also recorded two bogeys.

Al Geiberger, Gay Brewer and Australian David Graham were tied for second at 67 while in a group at 68 were Kermit Zarley, George Archer, Graham Marsh of Australia, Shieh Min-Nan of Taiwan and Japan's Takaaki Kono and Masashi Ozaka.

Lee Trevino, the pre-tourney favorite, was in a six-way tie at even par.

First prize for the 72-hole event is $65,008, with $32,500 to the runner-up and $20,000 to the third-place finisher.

In the Dunlop Masters at Newcastle, England, Tony Jacklin of Britain moved two strokes ahead of his nearest competitors with a second-round 71 for a 36-hole total of 136.

Bob Charles of New Zealand and Britons Craig Defoy and John Garner shared second place at 138 in the $37,500 event.

Al Balding of Toronto was well back with his 151 total, after carding 78 on Thursday.

And in Paris, Gary Player and Tommy Aaron shaved a stroke off par to share the first-round lead in the $33,000 Lacombe Tournament of Champions tournament.

Player and Aaron held a one-shot edge over Angel Gallardo of Spain and Jean Garaialde of France over the 7047-yard, par-72 St. Nom la Breche course.

Arnold Palmer, Tom Weiskopf and Doug Sanders were deadlocked with 74s.

League To Appeal Soccer Suspension

The B.C. Soccer Commission Thursday night announced suspension of the Premier Soccer League for the second time this season.

The latest suspension, effective today, is for non-payment of transfer fees for use of amateur players by the semi-pro league.

Immediately, the PSL cabled an appeal to the Canadian Soccer Association and plans to continue with its schedule as an unaffiliated league.

The previous suspension was over bonding of league teams and the Canadian body over-ruled the B.C. Commission.

Jack Adams, president of Victoria Regals of the Premier League, said Thursday night the league felt the B.C. body, in handing out the suspension, "is going beyond its jurisdiction."

"Because we are a semi-pro league, the commission has billed the clubs for $100 for each amateur player they sign," said Adams. "Some clubs have been asked for up to $1500 and there's no way they can pay."

"We are just going ahead with games with the optimism that the Canadian association will over-rule this suspension," Adams said.

Regals play Eintracht Vancouver at Burnaby's Swangard Stadium Monday.

Golf Captain

The Canadian Ladies' Golf Association has named Margaret Todd of Victoria as non-playing captain of a three-member team to the women's world amateur team championships in Buenos Aires. The team will include Marlene Stewart Streit of Fonthill, Ont., Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops and Gayle Borthwick of Mississauga, Ont.

Host Tigers Trim Nats

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — Medicine Hat Tigers broke a 4-4 first-period tie and coasted to an 11-4 victory over Vancouver Nats in their opening game of the 1972 Western Canada Hockey League season Thursday before 3489 fans.

Tigers scored four unanswered goals in the second period and three more unanswered goals in the final period.

Ken Gassoff and Darryl Wallis led the Tigers with two goals each. Ed Johnstone, Jim McCrimmon, Laurent Gunette, Lanny McDonald, Tom Lysiak, Randy Aimoe and Boyd Anderson added singles for the Tigers.

Brian Arnold scored two goals for the Nats, while Gord Stewart and Greg Scott each scored once.

Medicine Hat outshot Vancouver, 39-26, and Tigers picked up seven of the 12 minor penalties.

UVic Tops Stockers

University of Victoria Vikings struck early and often in defeating Stockers North Americans, 10-5, Thursday night at Pearkes Arena.

Vikings, who are playing in the Victoria Intermediate Hockey League on an exhibition basis, jumped to a 5-2 lead in the first period and increased the margin to 9-3 after 40 minutes.

Jack Richardson scored three goals to pace the Viking attack while Dave Cousins and Scott Munro each scored a pair.

Wayne Hendry, Greg Bush and Larry Hackman were the other Viking marksmen.

Gerry Caldwell, with a pair of goals, Ken Waet, Kim Bowles and Laurie Huck scored for Stockers.

Broncos Win

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Penticton Broncos edged Chilliwack Bruins, 4-3, in a British Columbia Junior Hockey League game Thursday night. Dan Ashman scored two goals to lead Penticton, while Grant Mulvey and Bob Nicholson also scored. Chilliwack scorers were Claude Shillings, Ken Widmeyer and Bill Garrow.

Clemente Primed, Ready —And Pirates Are Glad

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Roberto Clemente, sleepy-eyed and unenthused, was the last player to arrive at the Pittsburgh Pirate locker room for a light drill Thursday.

However, the all-star right-fielder definitely figures to be in the forefront here Saturday when the Pirate open the National League baseball playoffs against Cincinnati Reds.

Clemente is a player who can make the difference, as evidenced by Pittsburgh's regular season record against the Reds.

With him in the lineup, Pittsburgh won four of seven games from Cincinnati and all three losses were by one-run margins.

When Clemente was sidelined in July with a stomach virus and sore ankles, the Reds whipped the Pirates handily five straight games.

"I'm not saying we'd concede to Cincinnati if Clemente wasn't healthy, but we're sure glad to have him," said Pirate manager Bill Virdon.

Nonetheless, Clemente figures to be primed and ready for action by game time.

"The playoffs and series are what every ball player dreams of," he said. "When you get the chance you have to make the most of it."

Clemente, who has logged 3000 hits over 18 seasons, lost about 12 pounds from his normally 182-pound frame during the bout with the virus.

"I'm still about six pounds under," he reported. "But I feel pretty good. I would like to be a little heavier, because that makes me stronger. And when I am stronger I hit better. But what can you do?"

The question of what to do may beset Cincinnati pitchers when they face Clemente, whose .312 batting average this season marked his 13th time over .300.

"Having Clemente in there sure makes me feel a whole lot better," said Pirate pitcher Steve Blass, who'll start Saturday. "He can do so many things to help the team win"

The Pirates are far from a one-man outfit, however, and they set an all-time major league record this season when nine players collected more than 100 hits each.

One of those players was first baseman Willie Stargell, who led the club with 33 homers and 112 runs batted in.

However, Stargell had only one homer and nine RBI after Aug. 31, and his average dropped from .310 to .293 by the end of the season.

In 1971, Pittsburgh beat San Francisco in the National League playoffs, but Stargell was hitless in 14 times at bat in that series.

He was bothered then by painful, ailing knees, however, and this year he goes into the playoffs in top shape.

During batting practice under a light rain Thursday, Stargell clouted several pitches into the seats and powered line drives to all fields.

"Your swing looks very good," catcher Manny Sanguillen commented.

"Now is the time to look good,' Stargell replied.

Virdon has chosen to keep sore-armed Gene Clines on the club's 25-man playoff roster.

The chooice Virdon had to make was whether to go with Clines, who cannot make a strong throw from the outfield, or rookie Richie Zisk.

Clines, a utility outfielder, leads Pittsburgh with a .334 batting average, but he injured his arm when making an off-balance throw more than a month ago.

City Golfer Qualifies For Final U.S. Test

John Morgan of Victoria is one step away from qualifying for the U.S. Professional Golf Association tour.

Morgan was fifth low qualifier in the recent preliminary school at Fremont, Calif. and moves on to the final qualifying school, starting Oct. 29 in Napa, Calif.

He had rounds of 74, 70, 73 and 71 for a par 288 total at Fremont, where 150 golfers competed for the 26 openings at Napa.

Three other B.C. golfers were well off the 291 total needed to advance.

Tom Whittle of Lions Golf Centre, Jim Nolan of Grandview Driving Range and Norm Reid of Vancouver Golf Club each shot 310.

Toronto Soccer Club Protests Blues' Win

TORONTO (CP) — San Fili of the Toronto and District Soccer League has filed a protest of their 4-0 loss to Westminster Blues in the Canadian amateur championship match last Sunday.

San Fili filed the protest with the Canadian Soccer Association on the grounds that the New Westminster club used ineligible players.

Stan Adamson, secretary of the Toronto and district league, said Jim Neeson, a San Fili member who plans to move to British Columbia, had talked to the Blues club about joining them.

"The club president said there would be a place for him since several of the players used Sunday were picked up from other B.C. teams," said Adamson.

Under CSA rules, all players taking part in the championship final must be registered by Aug. 15 with the competing teams, San Fili claimed.

Odds About Even

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Bookmakers say the American and National League baseball playoffs are nearly even money bets.

Reno Turf Club odds make Oakland Athletics a 5-4 favorite over Detroit Tigers in the American League and Pittsburgh Pirates a 13-10 choice over Cincinnati Reds in the National League.

Bookmaker North Swanson said Pittsburgh was a 3-2 choice to go all the way and win the World Series. Cincinnati was rated at 2-1, while Oakland was 12-5 and Detroit 14-5.

'Twas Just Good, Clean, (Old) Fun

By MAX LOW

Never was it such an honor to be old.

There they were, 44 Japanese rugby players in different colored shorts, standing along the touchline at Royal Athletic Park.

This wasn't any famous international rugby side. In fact the main claim to fame of the players — all members of the Wak Wak Club for over-40s — is their age.

It didn't matter to the very appreciative crowd of 722 that the visitors were later to be beaten three straight in a series of short matches by Victoria's over-40 squad, the Ebb Tide.

The important thing was that they still had the spirit to play the game and to come as far as they did to do it.

★ ★ ★

Former Victoria Rugby Union president, Ivor Ford of Cowichan, told the crowd in revered tones that "if the Japanese field their oldest 15 men, the ages would total 899 years."

But they didn't quite, and the crowd was a little disappointed that 70-year-old Tsakasa Shiraski, oldest in the party, didn't play.

It was essentially a fun night, with much unorthodox handling and running and little actual body contact, and Ford put the crowd just in the right mood by quipping:

"If you notice any deviations from the rules of rugby football, you must remember that some of these men haven't played for years and the rules have changed a lot, and the others are referees and can't be expected to know them."

Japanese players, with over-40's wearing white shorts, over-50s blue and over-60s red shorts, were outclassed, 30-0, in the first 30-minute period when the younger Ebb-Tide squad fielded its strongest side.

Ray Calton, a former B.C. flyhalf and now coach of UVic Vikings, winger Dave Mackenzie, headmaster of Brentwood College who one played for Scotland, and Victoria High School coach Til Briggs led the onslaught.

Mackenzie, oldest of the Ebb Tide at 55, scored the first try, Briggs got two tries, Calton scored a try and the other tries were by Les Hempsell and Don Burgess, a former fullback with B.C. and Canada, Burgess, Jack Patrick and Ross Irving kicked one conversion each.

★ ★ ★

Wak Waks came back strongly in the second game when Motosugu Uno scored their first try and they held Victoria to a 4-4 tie, after Dick Hales' try, until the final seconds.

Then, George Jones raced 60 yards for a try and Derek Hyde-Lay converted for a 10-4 win.

The final 25-minute period was for the real oldsters and this was what the crowd loved most.

In the end, Ebb Tide, with tries from Bob Hutchison, Gerry Main, Pat MacLachlan and Patrick and a conversion by Patrick, won, 18-10.

Ichiro Toki scored a try for the Wak Waks and Minuru Yamada converted but the night's biggest roar went up from the crowd when 60-year-old Akira Yoshida dived over for the visitor's last try.

Wak Waks play Vancouver Oldstylers Saturday before returning home.

Gaudaur Rejects Eskimo Protest

TORONTO (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos' protest of their 10-9 loss to Ottawa Rough Riders in Edmonton Sept. 23 has been rejected by Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League commissioner.

In throwing out the protest, Gaudaur also was critical of a at Edmonton's Clarke Stadium which resulted in fans and television viewers not learning the result of the game until about 15 minutes after the final gun sounded.

Gaudaur said in a statement Thursday:

"The basis of the Edmonton claim had centred on whether or not the Ottawa club had accepted or declined the penalty that had been assessed against Edmonton on the last play of the game, contending that if Ottawa had declined the penalty the score would have been tied 10-10."

Gaudaur noted that Moe Racine, one of the Ottawa captains, had been quoted as saying after the game that the penalty had been declined by Ottawa.

However, referee Jim Eysack, in his normal post-game report filed before the protest, said Ottawa defensive captain Al Marcelin was the first man given the options by the referee. Lysack's report said that Marcelin, after he was advised of the penalty to Edmonton which made it Ottawa's ball at point of foul, accepted the penalty.

Accepting the penalty meant Edmonton lost the tying point it had hoped for when quarterback Tom Wilkinson kicked the ball through the end zone on the last play.

Gaudaur also noted that the referee had appeared to signal that the penalty was declined, but Paul Dojack, western officiating supervisor, has confirmed the referee was actually trying to signal the timer that the game was over.

"Taking all available evidence into consideration," Gaudaur said, "I have decided that there is more evidence to support the contention of the referee that the Ottawa club did accept the penalty so the score will remain Ottawa 10, Edmonton 9."

Gaudaur concluded by pointing out the communications failure which resulted when officials on the field were unable to telephone the public address announcer in the press box area to announce the result of the game.

"Of substantial concern in this incident was the failure to communicate the decision quickly to the fans in the stadium and to the radio listeners and television viewers.

"Such failure was the result of a mechanical breakdown of the telephone communications and non-adherence to established procedures, and steps will be taken to preclude a similar failure in the future."

Missing Leaf No Problem?

TORONTO (CP) — Paul Henderson was missing from the Toronto Maple Leaf practice Thursday, but general manager Jim Gregory didn't want to dwell on the problem "which may really not be a problem."

"Why should I create a problem out of something which may really not be a problem," Gregory replied to questions about the absence of his National Hockey League star.

Henderson reached star status recently with Team Canada, scoring three successive game-winning goals in Moscow as the Canadians rebounded for a 4-3-1 record in the international series.

"He told the coach (John McLellan) he would be here today, but he didn't show," said Gregory. "Ron Ellis worked with the team."

"We were on the phone trying to get him (Henderson), but all we got was a busy signal."

Asked if there was any basis to rumors that Henderson's lawyer Al Eagleson had been in Gregory's office to discuss renegotiating the left-winger's contract, Gregory replied:

"I'd rather not say anything. I think it would be better that way. If I said anything I might be lying, so I think it's better that I say nothing right now. . . .

"I think it would be better if I just keep my mouth shut. Paul signed a two-year contract this summer and I'm hopeful he'll honor it. If he doesn't show up (tomorrow) Friday . . . well, we'll see then."

20th Contract

Los Angeles Dodgers signed Walt Alston to his 20th consecutive one-year contract to manage the National League baseball club Thursday. Alston, who will be 61 in December, will return along with his coaching staff of Jim Gilliam, Roy Hartsfield, Danny Ozark, Red Adams and Carroll Beringer.

Basketball Reunion Organized

Memories of college basketball will be revived at a preseason "smoker" organized by the University of Victoria Athletic Department.

All former players, coaches and managers who competed for Victoria Normal School, Victoria College and UVic, from 1925 to the present, are invited to share their experiences in the Commons Lounge of Craigdarroch College, Nov. 3, starting at 8 p.m.

Special guest speaker will be Jack Donahue, coach of Canada's national team. Donahue will also conduct a teaching clinic at UVic the following day.

Also in attendance will be the members of the 1972-73 Viking squad, which has a very promising home schedule this season against such teams as Lewis and Clark, University of Alaska and old rivals University of Alberta and University of B.C.

Tickets for the evening's activities, which include a smorgasbord, refreshments and a season's pass to all Viking home games can be obtained from Gary Taylor (592-4411 or 592-2035) or Mike Elcock (477-6911) at the UVic Athletic Department.

Results of Olympic Study at UVic Could Refute Allegations of Bias

By MAX LOW

All that bitterly alleged East-West bias in judging at the recent Munich Olympic Games probably never existed at all.

That's what Dr. Donald Ball, associate professor of sociology at the University of Victoria, feels.

There were complaints throughout the 20th Summer Games of biased judging in many events, particularly in boxing and diving.

But Dr. Ball said he made a detailed study of figure skating after the same kind of allegations in the world championships and found there was no bias at all.

"I will be doing a complete study of the Munich Olympics too," Ball said in an interview Thursday. "But right now all the facts are in the computer and it's hard to say yet about the judging bias."

Ball was one of Canada's representatives at the Scientific Congress of the Olympics, held in Munich the week before the Games started.

At the congress, attended by more than 2000 representatives from 80 countries, Ball presented a paper which looked at what kinds of sports characterized various societies.

The paper looked at what kind of societies have games of skill or what kind have games of strategy or games of chance. It also studied what kind of nations do well in sport, per capita income.

Ball is also making a study of track and field events in the Olympics from 1920 to 1936 compared with the period from 1948 to 1964 to see what great changes there have been. He chose track and field because "it is the heart of the Olympics" and the sport which needs the least amount of expensive equipment.

The ease with which the plot, which ended in the killings of Israeli athletes, was perpetrated was "hardly surprising" when security measures were examined, Ball said.

Olympic Villages have always had low walls and easy access at the gates, he said, because of the traditional coming and going at all hours by the athletes.

"When the Arabs got in, it was assumed they were athletes sneaking back in," Ball said.

The associate professor conducts a course at UVic in the Sociology of Sport. Similar courses are offered at only Waterloo University in Ontario and at a handful of American universities.

"This is the first year UVic has offered the course," Ball said. "There has been good enrolment and there is considerable interest in the subject."

The course encompasses such things as the distribution of sports on a cross-cultural basis and sport as a model for other social processes.

Ball was the man who stirred up a hornets nest among sports writers in March with his hard-hitting paper on the makeup of teams in the Canadian Football League. The thesis was presented at a conference at Queen's College of the City University of New York.

Now, he is working on another study — using sports as a basis to relate to such things as employment — into what accounts for turnover rate.

"For example, in many sports such as football visibility accounts for much of the turnover rate," Ball said. "Players such as quarterbacks, running backs and receivers get noticed much more than say a tackle and the turnover rate for these players is far higher."

Nixons Romp Over Braves

Victoria Nixons and Fuller Lake scored wins Thursday in the South Vancouver Island Junior B hockey league.

Nixons, powered by Garth Cunningham and Norm Allen, breezed to an 11-1 win over Saanich Braves at Memorial Arena while Fuller Lake just edged by Esquimalt, 2-1, at Esquimalt Sports Centre. Cunningham scored three goals while Allen had two goals and two assists.

Wests, Molsons Play on Saturday

Victoria West-United and Gorge Molsons, the city's two entries in the Pacific Coast Soccer League, clash in a preseason exhibition match at 2 p.m. Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

United coach Ron Thompson announced his starting lineup Thursday night as Gerry Lister, Howie Anderson, Ken Ross, Peter Robarts, Jim Irvine, Dean Stokes, John Blissett, George Pakos, Tom Forrester, Stu Taylor and Dan Lomas. Spares are Ash Douglas and Keith Humphries.

With several of last season's players as yet unsigned, Gorge coach Larry de Costa has 12 players to work with — Doug Bisson, Curt Clarke, Rany Cronk, Marvin Dierks, Dan Henry, Darryl Hooker, George Hyne, Joe Poulton, Doug Marshall, Dennis Somner, Rick Lamoureux and Malcolm Moscrop.

League play starts the following weekend but the season's schedule has not been announced yet.

Pele Tells Santos 'Pay or I Quit'

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Pele, the Black Pearl of international soccer, might end his brilliant career in a dispute over a new contract with the Santos club.

Jose Fornos Rodriguez, Pele's personal secretary, said Thursday that Pele, 32, next month and a member of the Santos team for 17 years, would quit soccer if his terms are not accepted.

Pele has said that he will retire in 1974.

"If you don't know it, Santos owes me a whole lot more than I owe them," said Pele. "I went four months without getting paid and played out of condition even against the advice of the medical department.

"If that's being irresponsible, then I just don't know."

Santos officials have charged Pele with being irresponsible.

Bowman Happy with Mixture Of Veteran, Rookie Talent

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Scotty Bowman of Montreal Canadians feels he'll be able to field a strong club this season with a mixture of veterans and rookies.

Unlike some of his National Hockey League counterparts, Bowman's club was left relatively unscathed by recent raids by the newly formed World Hockey Association. Only one established star—veteran defenceman J. C. Tremblay was lost. He signed with Les Nordiques of Quebec City.

"I think we've had a good training camp and we're pleased with most of our rookies," Bowman said in an interview Thursday. "With the mixture we should be a contender."

The Canadiens sent goalkeeper Ken Dryden, defencemen Serge Savard and Guy Lapointe, along with forwards Yvan Cournoyer and Frank and Pete Mahovlich, to Team Canada for the recent eight-game series against the Soviet national team.

As a result, Bowman has been able to work with almost a full complement of veterans for the first time this week. Only Henri Richard, the veteran centre and captain, remains sidelined. He has a knee injury that will keep him out of Saturday night's home opener against Minnesota North Stars.

Bowman said he still isn't sure just how many of his 24-man squad, if any, he will cut by Saturday. But he said he'll pare down to 20 men "within two weeks."

For example he'll keep backup netminders Wayne Thomas and Michel Plasse around for a while in case of an injury to Dryden.

On defence, three positions appear set. Savard, Lapointe and Jacques Laperriere, hold down these three spots, with Bob Murdoch, Pierre Bouchard, Dale Hoganson, Jim Roberts and rookie Larry Robinson, still working toward the other two vacancies.

Bowman said his club appears to have "good depth" up front and he hopes he can convert winger Rejean Houle to a centre between Marc Tardif and Guy Lafleur, because Houle "doesn't like to sit on the bench."

Houle, a high-scoring junior along with Tardif before graduating to the Canadiens, found himself used basically as a checker against strong left wingers last season.

Of last year's part-time performers, it looks like left-winger Chuck Lefley and Chuck Arnason, who plays on the right side, have a good chance to stick. Both Lefley and Arnason played most of last season with Nova Scotia Voyageurs of the American Hockey League.

Two rookie forwards still remain, both from the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A Series. They are left wingers Murray Wilson from Ottawa 67s and Steve Shutt from Toronto Marlboros.

Earlier, two other high draft choices—centre Dave Gardner from the Marlboros and defenceman John Van Boxmeer from Guelph, Ont., were sent to the Voyageurs to gain experience.

McKenzie Injured

HULL, Que. (UPI) — Johnny McKenzie of the World Hockey Association's Philadelphia Blazers is suffering from a minor arm fracture that will keep him out of action for a few weeks.

McKenzie, a veteran of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, signed with the Blazers after Boston left him off its protected list in the NHL player draft. McKenzie injured his arm running into a goal post in an exhibition game against Quebec Nordiques on Tuesday night in Quebec City.

Swinton Wins

LEEDS, England (CP) — Swinton beat Wales, 13-4, in the Lancashire Rugby League Cup semi-final Thursday.

Simpsons-Sears Eliminates Exterior House Painting For a Minimum of 15 Years

Simpsons-Sears proudly introduces their new product Simpsons - Sears - Tex, the modern, textured exterior wall coating that is applied with heavy duty spray equipment. Simpsons - Sears - Tex textured coating is pressure-sealed to any exterior surface — stucco, brick block, stone or wood. It beautifies, insulates, protects your exterior walls for a minimum of 15 years.

One coat of Simpsons-Sears-Tex is thicker than many coats of ordinary house paint yet permits the walls to "breathe".

Simpsons - Sears - Tex seals cracks, covers flaws but does not conceal original architectural lines. It's flexible, won't chip, flake or peel . . . yet tough, because it is fortified with fibreglass combined with indestructible minerals, titanium, asbestos, mica and perlite.

You'll love the soft-textured finish of Simpsons-Sears-Tex that gives your home a lifetime of new beauty. You'll enjoy extra fine protection, extra weather-proofing, extra insulation for years to come.

Simpsons-Sears-Tex is guaranteed for 15 years against chipping or peeling.

Your choice of many lovely decorator colors. Simpsons-Sears-Tex is applied without fuss, muss or odor by specially certified trained work men whose work is guaranteed.

The coho have arrived in Cowichan Bay.

"The first significant run of coho arrived Wednesday afternoon and is the largest for several years," said Pete Lambert of Anchor Marina.

"They stretch from Genoa Bay to Salt Spring Island and put on quite a show for us."

The fish were still there Thursday morning, and anglers are reminded that the boundary across Cowichan Bay at the river mouth is still in effect.

Murray Thomas Cranston, a former used car sales manager for National Motors at 819 Yates, pleaded guilty Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court to a charge of stealing a total of about $527 from the firm in three car deals this year.

The young Vancouver resident was remanded by Judge F. S. Green to Oct. 23 for a pre-sentence report and sentence after pleading guilty to a three-count Victoria charge of theft.

A Victoria detective testified Cranston became used-car sales manager at National Motors in September of 1971. He said Cranston kept $343.75 from a deal last Jan. 18, about $68 from one last May 17 and $115 from a third Aug. 31.

The detective said Cranston admitted the offences in writing to a bonding company before police learned of them, and signed a promissory note to repay the money. He also said Cranston "came in on his own" to Victoria police from Vancouver.

Cranston said he was "still relatively heavily in debt" and his wife could not handle the debts. He admitted two previous convictions — for false pretences and theft — and said he realized he could not get a bond again, but disclosed he was working for Belmont Motor Sales in Vancouver.

Three shoplifters were fined in the court section of Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre. In order of appearance, they were:

Robert Gordon Henn, 19, of 225 Quebec, fined $150 after pleading guilty to a Victoria charge of taking two items worth a total of 92 cents Wednesday from a Safeway store on Menzies.

Mrs. Anne Rose Dye, 46, of 1202 Lockley, fined $200 after pleading guilty to a Saanich charge of taking three items worth a total of $2.54 Wednesday from the Safeway store at 3555 Douglas.

Ranjit Singh Jassar, 56, of 2504 Empire, fined $200 after he was found guilty following a trial on a Victoria charge of taking a $2 work hat Aug. 23 from The Bay.

□

In traffic court, Norman Allan Scott Robinson of West Coast Road, Sooke, pleaded guilty before Judge Harold Alder to a charge of impaired driving and refusing to take a breath-analysis test Aug. 6 in the Colwood area. He was fined $350 and given a six-month driving ban on the first count and fined $200 on the second.

□

Louis Schmelz, 58, of 1330 Pembroke, was fined $350 after pleading guilty to a charge of impaired driving Wednesday in Victoria and Neal Middler, 21, of 6678 Buena Vista, was fined $350 and given a six-month driving ban following his plea of guilty to a charge of impaired driving Sept. 6 in Saanich.

Bay Street Fire Hall Approved

Construction of a new fire hall on Bay Street, opposite the armory, was approved Thursday by city council's fire safety committee.

Total cost of the structure will be $190,823. This includes the actual contract, worth $169,000, $3,500 worth of landscaping, $3,500 for communication equipment, $3,000 for installation of a water main, $2,500 for furnishings, and $8,500 for architect fees.

The money has been set aside in the five-year capital budget, approved by ratepayers two years ago. Contractor will be E. J. Hunter.

Jobless Benefits Coffers

Latest Advance: $148 Million Of Separatist-Courting

Grit Accuses Tories

OTTAWA (CP) — The treasury advanced another $148 million to the Unemployment Insurance Commission in August, the finance department reported Thursday.

This brought the total advances for the first five months of the current fiscal year, starting April 1, to $467.8 million. Prior to April 1, the commission was operating on a different form of accounting in the treasury's monthly statements.

Unemployment insurance benefit payments totalled $1.16 billion between January and July this year. Payments for August are expected to be released by Statistics Canada later this month.

The net cost of insurance benefits after employer and employee contributions is to be voted later by Parliament under the new act which came into force this year.

Contributions by employers and employees to the unemployment insurance account now are designed to cover benefits only to the extent of unemployment running up to 4 per cent of the labor force. The general treasury bears the cost of insurance benefits when unemployment runs higher than 4 per cent, as it has this year.

The finance department has statutory authority to make advances to the commission totalling up to $800 million.

TORONTO (CP) — The federal Progressive Conservatives, and Claude Wagner in particular, were accused here Thursday of "scraping the barrel for votes in Quebec" by "courting the separatist vote in the present election."

Marc Lalonde, Liberal candidate for the Montreal riding of Outremont in the Oct. 30 federal election, told a public meeting that Wagner, candidate in St. Hyacinthe, has adopted a concept of "flexible federalism."

Lalonde, former principal secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau, said this concept "is so flexible that it would allow Mr. Wagner to go along with the first elected government in Quebec which would happen to favor independence."

"This is how flexible you can be when you are scraping the barrel for votes in Quebec," he told a meeting of the Toronto Liberal Businessmen's Club.

Lalonde's half hour address was mainly directed against Wagner, an apparent counterattack to the Quebec Conservative chief's remarks made to the Toronto Junior Board of Trade Sept. 27 when he accused Mr. Trudeau of "fanning and strengthening the separatist movement."

Lalonde said the Conservatives have not only been exceptionally indifferent to Quebec, but "in fact, they have neglected to establish any roots in French Canada between elections, as if the province of Quebec did not exist as part of Canada."

UIC Answers Promised By 'Next Week'

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau promises "next week for sure," his answer to Conservative leader Robert Stanfield's charge that the overrun of unemployment insurance benefit payments, already in excess of $500 million in seven months, is "a national scandal."

He gave the undertaking Thursday on emerging from a four-hour cabinet meeting.

There have been projections that with the UIC already $544 million in the red, the deficit by the year-end could approach $1 billion.

"We'll have the figures soon, won't we?" Trudeau asked Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey as they stood outside the centre block cabinet conderence room.

"Like next week?" the Prime Minister was pressed.

"Next week, eh Bryce? he relayed the question.

"Oh sure," promised Mackasey, and the prime minister smiled, "You see, we'll have them."

Mackasey has denied that the $544 million overrun in benefits is a "deficit," claiming rather that iit is merely a government payment and really only "a drop in the bucket" in relation to government revenues.

The prime minister, who has been campaigning in business suit, or when a little more informal, in sports jacket, went to cabinet Thursday in a pair of sloppy Joe slacks and an off-white shirt.

"The campaign dull?" he scoffed when questioned about how it was going. "The thing is catching fire. You should have seen the excitement in Quebec Wednesday.'

(He had been booed by some French students for speaking English and then cheered by them for telling them off for their intolerant attitude.)

While Liberal campaign co-chairman Consumer Affairs Minister Robert Andras and Regional Economic Expansion Minister Tom Marchand were in attendance, the prime minister denied that the election had been discussed.

"Just government business, that's all we talked," he reported. Then, under further questioning, added, "Well, there was some mention of emerging issues."

But what new issues might be emerging, the prime minister wouldn't say.

"Really nothing all that new," he fended off questioners. "Was there, Bob?

"Everything's r i g h t on plan," responded Andras.

Nuclear Gift Hums in Pakistan

KARACHI (AP) — A Canadian-financed nuclear power plant went into operation here Thursday, pouring 125,000 kilowatts of power into the homes and factories of Karachi and Hyderabad.

The Pakistani Atomic Energy Commission said Pakistan was the second developing country — the first being India — and the first Moslem state, to successfully adopt nuclear power for peaceful growth.

Canada provided Pakistan with a loan, components and Canadian engineers who are manning the plant until Pakistanis are fully trained to take over.

The Karachi nuclear plant will also be used to desalinate sea water producing 100 million gallons of fresh water for Karachi's four million population.

Ten-Year Pact

PARIS (UPI) — France and Poland Thursday signed a 10-year agreement for economic, industrial, scientific and technical co-operation.

Handlers Balk At Grain Pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — A memorandum of agreement aimed at ending a lengthy contract dispute between the Grain Handlers Union and five grain elevator companies has been signed by the companies but the union says the agreement is different from a federal conciliation board report it accepted earlier.

W. R. Mead, the companies' chief negotiator, said the elevator companies don't go along with the 24-per-cent increase in the settlement "but we had a gun at our head from Otto Lang and Martin O'Connell." Lang is justice minister in charge of the wheat board and O'Connell is labor minister.

Mead said when he met with the union and federal conciliation officers Wednesday the union would not sign the agreement.

"They want to pick holes in the memorandum of settlement," he said. "They raised issues we thought were settled in the board report and we broke off without an agreement."

However, union spokesman Henry Kancs said: "We can't sign their memorandum of agreement because it is different than the board report. It has interpretations and clarifications that are not in the board report."

The union originally accepted the board report and the elevator companies rejected it. The former contract expired last Nov. 30.

Vancouver Man Shot to Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wilfred Narcisse Trudel, 28, believed to be from Quebec, was found shot to death early Thursday in an east end home. Police said he had been shot seven or eight times in the face and head with a .22-calibre pistol. Three persons were questioned by police and two were later released.

The minister's ideas were received with a great deal of enthusiasm by officials of the Capital Regional Board.

Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford said Lorimer's attiude was "what we always dreamed of, but never expected to come true." The minister's thoughts about the future of regional boards, she said, were a very refreshing change in the provincial government's attitude.

"We really need additional revenue, and quite often we were stymied by the provincial government," Mrs. Elford said.

Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage, one of the city's directors on the regional board, said Lorimer's statements were "the best news I've heard in a long time."

Regional boards, he said, have never been able to do the things they were supposed to do.

"We've been banging our heads against a brick wall until now. Whenever we asked the former government for something, we either didn't receive a reply at all, or we were told to mind our own business," Savage said.

"We were nothing but Joe boys for the Socred government. If this government is willing to give regional districts some status, we can really go somewhere," he added.

There was speculation in Calgary Thursday that the Alberta city's next police chief would be a senior Mountie from Victoria.

A shower of calls to The Colonist from Calgary radio stations and newspapers sought information, but they sought in vain.

The Calgary reports had it that the new chief constable would be Supt. James Nelson of the RCMP in Victoria. Nelson refused comment of any kind when questioned by the Colonist. He said only there was supposed to be a meeting in Calgary today.

A Calgary source said that city council was to meet at 1:30 p.m, Calgary time today, probably to reach a decision, but that strict security was being maintained on its proceedings.

Certainly, said the Calgarian, no official of that city was utterinng a single word before the council meeting.

Reason for all the turmoil—and security — was the furor created at the beginning of August when Calgary appointed an American, Police Chief Charles Gain of Oakland, Calif., as Calgary's chief.

The uproar was immediate and widespread.

Why, asked many including Calgary aldermen, should an "alien" be appointed chief when there were Canadians with the experience and ability to take on the position?

The choice of Gain was made by Calgary's police commission, headed by Mayor Rod Sykes. Council, however, split 5-5 on a motion by Sykes to welcome Gain.

Opposition came, too, from the B.C. Federation of Peace Officers which labelled the appointment a "dastardly blow" for Canadians.

The controversy was soon resolved when Gain himself withdrew his application for the Calgary post.

In the intervening two months, Calgary has been conducting a new canvass for a police chief.

City Staff Girding For Crunch

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

A major battle is shaping up between Victoria and a number of civic-employee unions whose contracts expire this year.

A total of eight contracts are up for renewal, involving more than 600 employees.

Those charged with negotiating on behalf of the city say that negotiations are expected to be "somewhat hectic," and the general feeling throughout the union membership is that things may come closer to a strike this year than ever before.

Sources indicated Thursday that major unions will be demanding pay increases of up to 28 per cent over two years, plus fringe benefits.

The two major contracts concern 250 inside workers and 270 outside workers, all represented by the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

In addition to that, the city negotiates on behalf of Greater Victoria Public Library for renewal of a contract involving 60 inside workers, also represented by CUPE.

Five more contracts, each involving a relatively small number of employees, will also expire this year.

Each union will bargain for a different group which includes 14 nurses, three carpenters, 12 electricians, and eight operating engineers, three of them at the library.

Negotiations with the Victoria Firefighters' Union and the Victoria Police Union are already in the mediation stage.

It has been indicated that one reason the unions are expected to take a strong stand is the Social Credit government's defeat by the New Democratic Party.

"With the Socred government gone," one official said, "there goes the 6-per-cent ceiling on wage increases.

He also said a confrontation between the city and unions was "almost inevitable," because of Mayor Peter Pollen's strong opposition to recent demands by the city's police force.

The police were seeking parity with the Vancouver police force, but Pollen called their demand absurd.

Before the dispute went to mediation, the mayor and the police union clashed head-on in a series of press statements in which the union accused Pollen of not bargaining in good faith, and the mayor charged the union with wanting to destroy the community.

"If that sort of thing happens in the next few months with the other unions, the place is going to be in utter chaos," one city hall official said.

Bail Reform Working

People in Victoria are living up to the spirit of the bail-reform law that went into effect across Canada last Jan. 2, even if those in Vancouver apparently are not.

Until the start of this year, Canadians appearing in courts for trial did so by way of summons or on remand after being arrested and then being released on bail or a recognizance.

The new law added two new forms — appearance notices and promises to appear — and some authorities felt this might mean a big increase in the number of policemen working on warrants for failure to attend court.

The Vancouver city prosecutor's office disclosed this week that it has. Officials said 390 persons who gave their undertaking to appear in court for trial during the first three months of 1972 did not do so; compared to 123 in the first three months of 1971.

In Victoria, police disclosed that 143 appearance notices and 28 promises to appear were approved between Jan. 2 and the end of August, and only 13 of those 171 persons failed to show up in court — despite the increasing number of transients on arrest lists.

Police said figures for "no-shows" on remand or summons were not kept in previous years, but the problem was similarly small.

One sergeant said a reason for the lack of a no-show problem here is that the area is still small enough that police know many of the repeaters in crime — and vice-versa. But when it comes to crime, he said, Vancouver is a big city.

Blue Book on Doctors' Pay Sent Relations Downhill

By JOHN MATTERS
Colonist Medical Reporter

Publication of the "blue book" of doctors' earnings was the point at which relations between B.C.'s physicians and the former Social Credit government started to deteriorate seriously, says Dr. Peter Banks of Victoria, president-elect of the Canadian Medical Association and the British Medical Association.

His views are stated in an interview published by the CMA Journal in its current number.

Warned

Banks points out that former premier Bennett announced that doctors' medicare earnings would be published according to the Public Finance Information Act, despite a four-page memo from Banks warning of the alienation that would occur.

Banks also reviews some of the events that occurred before the publication in 1970 of the B.C. Medical Service Commission's first "blue book" of physicians' medicare earnings.

At that time, Banks was a government appointee to the three-member MCS, which administers medicare.

Too Much

Banks recalls that about four years ago, coinciding with an annual meeting of the BCMA at Harrison Hot Springs, a New Westminster newspaper published an editorial that stated doctors were earning too much money from medicare in B.C.

"Of course, they were right. Some of them were — there was no question about it," Banks told the CMAJ interviewer. "But the newspaper played it up and demanded to know what doctors earn."

However, the editorial inflamed members of the BCMA, who subsequently adopted a motion that condemned any invasion of physicians' freedom and privacy.

Thin Ice

"By this time the government had put me on the commission—this was a government appointment and the ice was a bit thin between me and the profession, anyway, so I couldn't get up and say 'Fellows,' we've got this solved, we think. We are just going to publish the averages for neurologists, internists and so on. We think we can get away with this . . .' "

Banks recalls that reporters subsequently pressed Bennett for an explanation of what the government might do, since it was now faced with open defiance from BCMA members.

Reduced

In late 1971, the provincial government reiterated that there was no money for physician's fee increases and earlier this year, after the doctors reduced their demands about one-half, to roughly 6.5 per cent, a settlement was achieved.

That agreement expires next March 31, and the BCMA is hoping to open negotiations soon with the newly-elected New Democratic Party government.

The former premier replied that the clause of the B.C. Public Finance Information Act requiring disclosure of all sums paid in excess of $500 would also apply to the doctors.

Banks also recalls that a five-year agreement between the BCMA and the government which expired in 1969 contained an escalator clause that permitted the fee schedule to increase at roughly the same rate as the cost of living.

". . . The government held us down to what I thought was a very fair level, but . . . many members of the profession thought that it was a harsh level," he adds.

'You're Nuts'

"When I got word that the government would be willing to re-sign the agreement for another five years, I phoned over to Vancouver (the BCMA head office).

"The fellows over there said: 'No, the indices aren't good enough,' I said, 'You're nuts.'

"But anyway, the government got re-elected in the 1969 election and when the agreement ran out, Mr. Bennett said there was no more money. I was sent for and had to tell the doctors. It was pretty traumatic."

Banks was apparently referring to a talk he gave to the annual BCMA meeting in Vernon in 1970, when doctors decided there would be a moratorium on fee increases. They said they were supporting the anti-inflationary position being taken by the provincial government at that time.

Social Worker Acquitted In Boys' Case

A 30-year-old social worker was acquitted by a Victoria County Court jury Thursday of a four-count charge alleging sexual acts with two young boys.

The accused, William Dawson Herriott of Mark Lane in the Highlands district, had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Trial began Monday with a ruling from Judge M. L. T. Drakes that the public be excluded from the courtroom, except for the press, because of the nature of the evidence.

One of two boys mentioned in the charge later testified about visits he made to Herriott's home, where, he said, marijuana was sometimes smoked and sexual acts sometimes committed.

Herriott, testifying in his own defence, denied having had any sexual contact with the two boys, or ever having had any homosexual relationships.

The all-male jury deliberated more than two hours Thursday night before returning its not-guilty verdict.

Burns Suffered In Accident

Michael Scarr,, 27, of 230 Gorge, received treatment Thursday afternoon at Royal Jubilee Hospital after suffering face, neck and arm burns in an accident at Colwood Corners. Langford firemen said Scarr was working for Farmer Construction in clearing a site for a new Safeway store when he accidentally used gasoline to start a stump fire.

Mechanical Faults Described at Inquest

A large convertible involved in a three-car crash in the Colwood area early Sept. 17 which claimed the lives of two Saanich men was in faulty mechanical condition, a mechanic testified at an inquest Thursday night.

Killed in the crash were Douglas Bruce Barkley, 24, of 3119 Rutledge, and Dennis Robert Nels Halstrom, 25, of 971 Jasmine. They were riding in a small car.

Witness John Smith, who identified himself as a "motor engineer," told the six-man jury that his inspection of the large old convertible disclosed faulty brakes, some wear on the tires and a bent and loose torsion bar.

Driver of the convertible was identified as Irving Samson Norris, 16, of Westholme. Driver of the third vehicle, a station wagon pulling a boat, was not identified at Thursday night's inquest session, which is being conducted by Victoria area coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre.

Victoria General Hospital pathologist Dr. William Hay testified that Barkley, who was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital, had died as a result of severe head, chest and abdominal injuries.

Hay said Halstrom, who died shortly after arrival at hospital, died as a result of massive hemorrhage in his aorta and spleen. He said head injuries also contributed to Halstrom's death.

An RCMP constable testified that Norris, in a voluntary statement given later in the day at the Colwood detachment, said he had consumed a moderate amount of alcoholic beverages prior to the mishap.

The constable told the inquest that tests taken more than seven hours after the crash showed Norris had a blood-alcohol content of .02.

The constable, who investigated the mishap, said he believed the Norris vehicle was driving southward down the middle lane of the three-lane highway when it met head-on with the northbound small car, which was also in the middle lane. He said Norris denied he was in the middle lane in his statement.

RCMP said they believe the small car, owned by Barkley, was driven by him. Questioning of witnesses by police after the crash showed Barkley's body was thrown out of the car.

Seven witnesses testified at the inquest session, leaving nine more to be heard. The inquest continues at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 17 in the Victoria law courts building.

Two Runaways Picked Up

Two inmates of the William Head minimum security institution in Metchosin who cut short their stays in September have been picked up by police in Edmonton and the Vancouver area, Colwood RCMP said Thursday.

Police said Benjamin Joseph Grandbois, 32, who failed to return at 8 p.m. Sept. 29 after being released on a day pass, was apprehended by Edmonton police and would be returned to Victoria to face a charge of being unlawfully at large.

David Jack O'Brien, 28, one of three men who escaped Sept. 17, surrendered to police in Vancouver through a former parole officer, and a charge laid in connection with the escape will be waived for hearing in New Westminster.

O'Brien was sentenced Aug. 11, 1971, at Vancouver to three years for trafficking in a narcotic. Details of Grandbois' sentence were not specified. The two men who escaped with O'Brien, David William Valouche and Neil Thomson, remain at large.

'Art Relates to Cooking'

Greek Dishes Symbolic of Pride

BOSTON, Mass. — Across the Mystic River from Boston, hidden behind the main street of Charlestown, is a rambling compound of early Federal houses, interspersed with clumps of climbing tomatoes, peach trees heavy with yellow fruit, plots of sunny flowers, trailing ivy, and shady brick walks.

One of the houses, a weathered, shingled, gambrel-roofed building, is the home of artist George Lewis, who moved in several years ago, started the gardens, and designed the areas of light and color, both outside and inside his oasis of privacy.

"My landlord believes this group of houses may have been built by the British for use as barracks when they occupied Charlestown during Revolutionary days," George said.

"It has many indications that it was built in 1800, and the Charlestown Preservation Society included it — my house and the other four in this little compound, in its architectural walking house tour earlier this year.

"I love the house — especially the outdoors part of it, and I've tried to carry the outdoors inside. My living room is contemporary, but I don't have any lamps — just the one wall of off-white fabric with light behind it. It looks like daylight, somehow, and was very easy to build.

"The dining room with the fireplace and the kitchen are small rooms, but the windows somehow make the rooms seem part of the garden," he said, indicating three bay windows over the kitchen counter. You could almost reach out the window and pick a peach right off the tree.

An artist with several good exhibits already behind him, Lewis studied music at the New England Conservatory of Music, has his own business in graphic design, and is a good cook, especially when it comes to Greek food.

"I guess the thing I appreciate most from the garden is having real, fresh tomatoes in season," he said. "But I love the colors and the light and shade of the flowers and shrubs. This kind of setting with so many different forms and shadows stimulates a lot of ideas for my painting.

Artist George Lewis tucks in

"Actually it's this kind of connection between my painting and the outdoors that gave me the idea to have my next showing here at home," he explained.

"I could have hired a hall or gallery but I want people to meet me and to see my gardens and paintings all together."

When it comes to cooking, George says he likes to use some of the family recipes that bring back good memories.

"I do Greek dishes when I have company, I guess because I'm proud of being Greek and this is one way of saying so.

"I think that my knowledge of music and art relates to cooking — it has helped me learn how to cook. But all the neighbors are very helpful. It's like a little community, not just in our compound, but in several areas in Charlestown where old houses are being brought back to more attractive livability.

"I've worked at my gardens quite a lot. My aim is to have simple, natural growing things with good colors. I'm not interested in evergreens and formal green shrubbery.

"My father, who was born in Greece and now lives in Natick, always had wonderful gardens. I think I learned a lot about growing things from him.

"Some of my neighbors have more vegetables and herbs than I do and we exchange things. They bring me parsley. I give them peaches. It makes life more pleasant," he said.

When it comes to a menu of Greek food, George suggests a beginning of stuffed grape leaves, tomato wedges, Greek olives.

Next he likes to serve a lamb dish that has the typical Greek flavors but is different since it is wrapped and cooked in paper. The spanakopita is a traditional Greek recipe that can be made ahead and served cold, or at room temperature, or heated again if you like.

"I usually serve rice cooked with tomatoes, and some of my mother's cookies. They're her recipes, but I make them and they're very easy," he said.

ARNI PSITO STO HARTI
(Roast Lamb in paper)

4 pounds boned leg of lamb
5 large sheets of brown paper
Olive oil
1½ lemons
Salt, pepper, oregano
4 pounds spearmint leaves
2 or 3 garlic cloves

Bone meat into four pieces. Coat pepper with oil. Squeeze lemon juice on meat. Add seasonings to taste. Insert garlic slivers in meat. Wrap lamb in paper and tie ends. Place in pan and cover with sheet of oiled paper. Bake at 325 degrees F. for 1½ hours. It can be served from the packages. Serves 4.

KOURABIETHES
(Butter Tea Cookies)

1 pound unsalted butter
3 pounds confectionery sugar
1 egg yolk
1 teaspoon baking powder
5½ cups flour
1 cup chopped almonds
1 teaspoon vanilla
Whole cloves

Soften butter at room temperature. Put in mixer and beat well. Add sugar and beat until fluffy and light colored. Add egg yolk and beat thoroughly. Add flavoring. Sift flour and baking powder and mix into butter mixture. Add nuts. Knead thoroughly. Shape into crescents. Place whole clove in centre of each pastry. Bake on cookie sheets at 300 degrees F. for 20 to 30 minutes. Cool. Sprinkle liberally with sifted confectionery sugar.

Fetal Surgery Seen Routine Within Decade

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Surgeons will be routinely performing open heart surgery and organ transplants on human embryos prior to birth within a decade or so, a leading geneticist predicts.

Dr. Bentley Glass, professor of biology at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, said pre-natal surgery on farm and lab animals and with lower primates indicated the feasibility of such operations.

"It appears to be quite feasible to open the uterus of a pregnant female, operate on the fetus, and restore normal relations so that development will continue normally," he said in an address to the American College of Surgeons' annual meeting.

"I anticipate that in perhaps a decade, surgeons will be routinely performing open heart surgery or organ transplants on the human fetus, even as now they can carry out a complete pre-natal transfusion of blood," Glass said.

The New York geneticist also predicted that future discoveries on tissue compatibility would permit storing of frozen organs and grafts and modifications of individual histocompatibility prior to birth. That is, the ability to make fetuses capable of accepting organs from a variety of donors.

"Though it may prove impossible to produce a universal recipient, it should be possible to render each treated subject receptive to a wide genetic range of donor grafts or transplaants," he said.

"I envisage that this will occur by means of pre-natal immunization, or perhaps more likely, by pre-natal surgical introduction of appropriate foreign tissue.

"Fetal surgery thus seems to provide a doorway through which we may enter a new era of successful post-natal organ transplantation and grafting," Glass suggested.

Text Books Criticized For Homemaker Bent

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Status of Women Council of British Columbia will ask education minister Eileen Dailly to get rid of school text books which discourage girls from entering the working world.

Council president Joan Wallace said Tuesday the request is contained in the council's brief on education which will be sent to Mrs. Dailly.

"Right from kindergarten through elementary school our text books depict women almost exclusively as homemakers," she said.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am raising a child alone. Lottie's father and I were divorced when she was less than two years old. The divorce decree states that he should pay child support but he has never done so. I got tired of chasing the bum and decided to write him off as a bad debt and make it alone.

Next year Lottie will be going to school. I have never talked to her about her father. It's as if he never existed. But I know I've got to face the facts, Ann. Lottie is getting older and more inquisitive. Yesterday she asked, "What was your husband's name?" I was so taken by surprise I answered, "Oh that was so long ago I don't remember."

I realize this was not a very good answer but my feelings for my ex-husband are so bitter I couldn't bring myself even to mention his name. I don't want my child to bear any ill will against her father. He was my mistake and my problem and I don't want it to be felt by her. Any suggestions?—Trauma.

Dear T.: Soon you will be forced to talk to Lottie about her father and it will be impossible to mask your real feelings, so you'd better face up to it, dear.

If you cannot even mention your former husband's name the hostility must be enormous. Bottled hate can be destructive. This is no good for either you or your child. Counselling will help you dissipate your anger and I strongly recommend that you move in that direction.

Dear Ann Landers: It bugs me when I read in the paper how 20 guys retire from a firm, each with 35 years of service—or a combined total of 700 years.

This is ridiculous. Each man served the firm 35 years at more or less the same time. The service span of all 20 men was 35 years at the plant.

How do they arrive at the 700 figure? I can see a progenitor with sons, grandsons, etc., stretching over a period of 700 years but, for crying out loud, that 700 figure is completely misleading. Why don't they tell it like it is? Dead Duck.

Dear Ducky: Arithmetic has never been my best subject but my math consultant tells me that 35 times 20 equals 700.

I see no reason for your outrage. If you want to get excited about injustice and misrepresentation, I can supply you with some better issues.

A Colorful World Slowly Recreated

"Everything you see is a subject."

That's Maraquita Walters talking as she sits amid her exhibition of paintings at The Little Gallery on Yates. She believes, and has demonstrated, that every object in life can be grist for the artist.

Her ubiquitous approach takes tangible form on the walls. There, among the nearly 48 watercolors and acrylics, her output of the last three years, are remarkably diverse subjects. Her own favorites among them are cases in point: Through Caverns Measureless to Man, Rodeo, Low Tide, and Humm-Po-Toots, chinook for skunk cabbages. Or take a portrait, or her imaginative insects or animals.

She has been thrilled with the reception. "A lot of people I would have thought preferred more formal pictures were interested in my weirdos."

"I seldom paint what I see," Mrs. Walters continues. "I paint what's inside my head . . . all the thought goes into the painting before I pick up a brush."

Color has always been her forte, she says, and this is obvious in her current week-long show. "I've always loved bright colors . . . the Mexican landscape and people influenced me tremendously."

Her Rain Forest is a prime example, with its bold bursts of red. Ask her what Emily Carr might have thought of it, and Mrs. Walters surmises: "She might have liked it."

The show is Maraquita Walters' first since a diving accident 11½ years ago left her extensively paralyzed.

Fortunately, in the last three years she has regained use of her right hand — only for painting. To an artist naturally right-handed this has been a boon. Previously she was restricted to left-handed brush strokes.

Of necessity she works slowly, half an hour or an hour a day, depending on the medium. "After that I'm beat," she says.

Painting has been her passion since the late 1940s, "that's when I first really wanted to paint seriously." Maraquita Walters was determined that disability should not prevent her from pursuing her art.

She attends some exhibitions at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, and regrets that so far no provision has been made for easy entry of wheelchairs to the upper galleries. "I'm still hoping," she says.

'School Picture of Women Just Does Not Fit Reality'

By KATHRYN HAZEL
Colonist Reporter

Now that there are six women in the provincial legislature, eager to push the issue of women's rights, women in B.C. stand a much better chance of gaining true equality.

And there's nobody happier about it than the new education minister, Eileen Dailly, who is also the first woman deputy premier in Canada.

"It's really great to have all these women support me," she says. "I'm not a voice crying in the wilderness."

With six women in the legislature, B.C. probably has the greatest number of women MLAs of any province in Canada, she says, but adds that "it's still pretty low as a percentage."

Women will most benefit from changes in the province's human rights legislation, she says, and the New Democratic Party government is committed to making changes to present legislation.

This is where having women MLAs will particularly help the cause of women's rights, she explains, "because as you know, we have many activist women in government, and they'll be giving feedback on this to it."

She'd especially like to see some teeth in the legislation, so it can be strongly enforced. In the past, she says, this was not done.

The act should also be changed so that another party can file a complaint with the Human Rights Commission on behalf of the person discriminated against, she feels.

"The whole onus is on you to complain in the present legislation," she says, "and particularly in reference to discrimination the onus is always placed on the woman, alone."

For those people too shy to make a complaint on their own -- men or women — having the burden of responsibility for reporting the discrimination is a real hindrance.

Ontario has human rights legislation in which another party can be involved, and the activist women in the B.C. government have made sure they have their own copies of the act to show around, she adds laughingly.

As education minister, there are many innovations she would like to make which would have a positive effect iin gaining equality for women.

"In the whole area of counselling and curriculum, the attitude toward women's role in society has to be examined," she says. "The picture of women's role presented in school just does not fit the reality."

Changing the image of women shown in text books "just fits into the whole scheme of making the curriculum relevant, and that particular area has not been relevant."

She is quick to add, however that the policy of the education department can only change as far as public attitudes change.

Thus it is important that the public be aware of women's new role in modern society, she says.

"I must give great credit to the women's status groups that have sprung up across the province for bringing it to the attention of the public. They have helped greatly to change attitudes."

She's in favor of having more classes in school curriculums in which boys can learn cooking and girls can learn shop, and with better school financing there should be more opportunity for such classes, she explains. In the past some schools tried to set up these kinds of courses but were not able to do so for lack of funds.

"The past financial resistance of the former government has prevented this flexibility."

As NDP education critic when the party formed the opposition, she campaigned for sex education courses in the schools, and now hopes to implement that policy in B.C.

"I'm most concerned that there really hasn't been any direction or assistance from the department of education in this most vital area," she says.

Before making any decisions on the kind of course needed she intends to study available research on the subject thoroughly.

In particular, she wants to look at the results of a recent pilot project on sex education done in the Okanagan and read a report based on a research project done at the University of Victoria and prepared for the Social Credit government.

"We must get the machinery going for a course on it in our schools," she says.

"There's no intention to lay down a completely pat program imposed from on top," she adds. The department will be looking at extra-curricular programs as well, although, she says, "it can't be an after-school thing — it must be done through the system."

Outside of her role as education minister, she has been urging the use of girl pages in the legislature, and has already discussed the matter with the Speaker, Gordon Dowding.

"I'd like to have them for the emergency session," she says. "I have always advocated them in the House and I know our government is in favor of it."

If the girl pages are not in the legislature for the emergency session, which begins Oct. 17, they certainly will be there for the full session held in spring, she adds.

With both boy and girl pages in the legislature girls will have an equal chance to learn about politics and the workings of the provincial government.

She's not disappointed that only one woman in the government was chosen for a cabinet post, taking the view that with more women entering politics there are bound to be more women in important government positions.

"I'm sure that it will develop," she says. She points out, though, that Premier Dave Barrett won't appoint women just because they're women.

Dailly
. . . what's relevant

"There has been a tendency to look just at the men," she explains," but our premier isn't like that. He'll just look at persons and select the most capable."

Although she's optimistic about women's role in government, she doesn't pretend that there is equality of opportunity for women who wish to participate in political life.

"We shouldn't fool ourselves — it's still harder for women to enter the political arena in 1972," she says. There are two main reasons for the barriers to women in politics, she explains.

First, there are prejudices against career women.

"The attitude is breaking down, but the tendency still exists. The more women who enter the field and show themselves capable, the more there will be."

The second biggest stumbling block for women is that they are expected to carry the burden of looking after their families, so that even if they have a career, they are still expected to do most of the household chores and errands as well.

This double load of responsibility can make any woman a nervous wreck and means that she has far less flexibility in managing her working life.

A solution to this problem would be the provision of reliable homemaker services and the extension of present day care facilities, she says.

"Women should be able to feel at ease in their work. A woman has to juggle her life a lot more than a man and will have to until these things are corrected."

She contends that "it's not the working mother who creates juvenile delinquency — it's the ineffective mother."

"A woman must have equal rights to develop her potential if she so desires. Some women are happy at home and that's great, fine — but some women are not."

For thee women it is essential that adequate day care and homemaker services be available, so that they can develop their potential.

"There has to be a change in the attitudes between husband and wife and changes in the backup services," she says.

Her involvement in politics began when she was 15 and joined the old CCF party's youth group. She worked her way up through the party and served on executive committees, and was later elected to the Burnaby school board as a trustee.

After 10 years in local politics, in which she was chairman of the Unions of Boards of Health of B.C. and on the Vancouver metropolitan board of health as well as a trustee, she ran for the NDP in Burnaby North in 1966 and won.

"Very early in my life I was fortunate enough to meet people — some of them teachers — who made me realize the importance of politics in our lives, that almost everything we do and almost everything that happens is related to some sort of political action," she says.

"That's why I feel very strongly that we have a responsibility in our education system to emphasize the importance of politics in the lives of our citizens."

"This does not mean advancing any one particular political philosophy," she adds. "However, we must try to produce politically literate students from our schools."

For this reason she does not oppose having political parties in the schools. "It's just a step in political education for students to form political clubs.

As far as her new political life in Victoria goes, she plans to move here but will maintain her present home in Burnaby.

"I think it's important to keep a home in your constituency" she explains.

She also plans to bring over her 14-year-old son and enrol him in school. Her husband James will stay in Burnaby and commute to Victoria when he can.

"We haven't quite worked it out yet," she says, smiling.

One thing that irritates her is that she has been asked "hundreds of times" what her husband is going to do, but none of the men cabinet ministers have been asked what their spouses will do, although many of them have jobs.

It's just another subtle form of discrimination against women, and Mrs. Dailly questions it just as she questions the more visible forms of sex discrimination.

'Curb the Boom' In Electricity

The NDP government is determined to corral the "galloping explosion in electricity use" in the province.

Premier Dave Barrett said before cabinet meeting Thursday morning that B.C. Hydro would likely be asked to redirect the thrust of its "use more electricity" advertising and that consumers should switch off lights in their homes to save power and money.

"We will have to cut down on electricity, and I don't believe the current galloping electricity use is what we want," Barrett said.

While he didn't intend to cut back Hydro advertising, Barrett said he wanted consumers to go to appliance salesmen and demand better goods which used less electricity.

"One of the most foolish things I know of is that apparently the average refrigerator could work on a quarter of the electricity that it uses now."

What was needed was more sensible standards in electrical use in B.C.

Asked if the government would dim the lights outlining the legislative buildings at night, Barrett replied:

"You mean those Disneyland lights outside? I don't think they use that much power, but I don't see why we can't shut them down out of the tourist season."

Barrett said it was government philosophy that the explosion of power use must be slowed down and this theme was also repeated by Recreation and Conservation Minister Robert Williams in an interview a few minutes later.

Williams said there was a general concern among government members about the increasing power demands of the province, which followed the pattern throughout most of North America.

Barrett was also quizzed on rumors of "retirement plans" for Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum.

"Yes, I have noticed that he made reference to his age in recent speeches.

"I want to say here that Shrum has given wonderful service to B.C., but whether he will retire is another thing. Williams is his boss, not me."

Williams said the review of Hydro problems promised by the NDP soon after it took office was "getting more thorough all the time."

While he would not say if Shrum's future was being considered in the review, Williams said "a comprehensive Hydro statement will be made within a matter of days."

Meanwhile, Barrett said on a Victoria open-line radio program Wednesday that Ken Kiernan and Ray Williston, two former Socred cabinet members who sit on Hydro's board of directors, will have to leave.

"Certainly the board of directors will have to be changed," said Barrett.

"It would be incompatible for them (Kiernan and Williston) and for the government for former Social Credit cabinet members to remain on such an important board of a crown corporation."

Nothing Lately On Libel Suit

Premier Dave Barrett hasn't seen his lawyer lately about the libel suit he launched in June against former premier W.A.C. Bennett.

And his lawyer, Alex Macdonald, who is now attorney-general, admitted Thursday he hasn't had instructions from his client lately about the legal action.

"It's up to him how fast he wants to proceed with this," the attorney-general added.

Before he entered cabinet meeting, Barrett would not be pinned down as to whether he woud let the action lapse or take it to a decision in the courts.

The suit arose over statements alleged to have been made by Bennett June 14 concerning the violent demonstration at New Westminster.

The writ, filed June 16, alleges Bennett falsely and maliciously by words and innuendo implied Barrett was responsible for and implicated in the demonstration in which cabinet ministers were assaulted.

Barrett also said Thursday there was no truth to reports that B.C. parity bonds were doomed under the NDP government.

Told that there was feeling the bond issues would die if the Social Credit government was defeated as it was, Barrett blamed such talk on the Liberals.

"Those parity bonds are worth their weight in gold. I agree with Bennett on this one, that they are a good idea. Don't listen to those Liberal doomsayers."

Speaking as he entered cabinet meeting, Barrett also hinted that the government might look at freezing rents in the province. The government has this power under existing legislation.

Crime Compensation For Second Victim

A New Westminster man will receive an award of $1,604.93 under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act of B.C., Attorney-General Alex Macdonald announced Wednesday.

The award, one of two recently announced, covers financial loss and general damages suffered by Gerald Kilik, 21, as the result of an assault July 8 in Penticton.

The second award is to Robert Yorke, 26, of Vancouver, in the amount of $237.34. He was attacked, beaten and robbed while walking with his wife in Stanley Park July 2.

In the first case, Kilik was leaving a Penticton beer parlor when he was attacked by an assailant with a broken beer glass.

That's the Attorney-General

QC or Not QC?

Provincial Attorney-General Alex Macdonald is now a Queen's Counsel, but he's not overjoyed with the honor.

He said Thursday he had to become a QC because it was mandatory for anyone appointed as attorney-general of B.C.

And he repeated that the New Democratic Party government had already said it wanted to have a look at the QC system in the province.

Instead of appointing more each year, the government might recall a few, and he hinted that his own appointment as QC might be one of the first considered for recall.

Boulevard Trees Must Go —Hazardous, Says Bate

Victoria's parks department will remove 27 trees from a number of boulevards, but Parks Director Cliff Bate says he doesn't expect opposition from residents.

As a result of the outcry that followed the removal of about 50 trees two years ago to make room for the Begbie-Shelbourne widening, Bate went to great length to explain to council's parks committee Thursday why the 27 trees will have to be cut down.

He told aldermen that the trees in question are over-mature and considered dangerous.

"The trees on Burdett and Cornwall have deteriorating root systems, and are considered dangerous; the ash trees have defective branches and are very hazardous," Bate said in a report to the committee.

He also said new trees would be planted to take the place of the removed ones.

"It is also to be noted that we are leaving a number of older trees which are in fair condition at the present time," the report concluded.

Cathedral Lots May Go Public

Two parcels of land adjacent to Christ Church Cathedral may soon be opened up to the public for use as a playlot and a small neighborhood park.

An offer to lease the land to the city was made recently by the church and council's parks committee recommended Thursday that the city negotiate with the church to establish the amount the city would have to pay if it leased the land.

One parcel, approximately .85 acres, is at Burdett and Quadra; the other, about .55 acre, is at Burdett and Vancouver.

Parks Director Cliff Bate said the larger lot could be used for a children's playgound, badly needed in the area. Unless the city took advantage of the offer, it would have to buy property in the area sometime in the future, he said.

The smaller lot, Bate said, was ideal for senior citizens living in the neighborhood.

A number of trees on the property, he said, were worth about $6,00 each.

"It's a beautiful property, and if it were ever used for a purpose other than parks, the trees would undoubtedly have to be removed," Bate said.

Ald. Ove Witt told the committee the city should also ask the church to consider giving the land to the city as a gift.

BOSTON (AP) — Four South American political leaders agreed Thursday that their continent's future depends on the balance between economic growth and fair distribution of the wealth among the people.

The former presidents of Chile and Colombia, along with a former Brazilian planning minister and a former United Nations official, spoke at the opening session of a two-day round-table discussing at Boston University's Centre for Latin American Development Studies.

Some Apply for Jobs in Bush

Asians a 'Special Group'

Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Some of the nearly 500 Asian Ugandans already arrived in Canada have been so keen to get to work they have applied for jobs in the bush, reports Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey.

"You mean in the bush cutting pulp logs?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied, "but I don't think many have actually started work — it really isn't the thing they've been trained for."

After cabinet Thursday, Mackasey gave Prime Minister Trudeau a special briefing on the number and integration into the Canadian working population of the 5,000 Asians Canada is accepting.

"They're a very special group," he related, "they are all masterfully fluent in English or French, right down to the youngest child.

"In Uganda they occupied a social niche all of their own," he went on, "and most of them are degreed.

"We have come across engineers who are masters of English."

What Mackasey found both surprising and pleasing was that the Ugandans have preferred going to the smaller centres rather than the big cities.

"You know," he explained, "to places like Brandon and Moose Jaw and Nanaimo rather than Toronto, Montreal or Vancouver.

"And a good number of them already have found jobs and are at work."

Mackasey denied reports that President Idi Amin of Uganda had demanded from the Canadian government a 20-per-cent kickback to his East African Airways for the Asians' passage to Canada.

"Yes," he conceded, "we are paying the fares ourselves, not because of any kickback demands, but because we thought it the humanitarian thing to do."

Pole Will Give Americans His New Spinal Surgery

CHICAGO (AP) — A Polish surgeon who has developed springs to be implanted beside the spinal cord says he has found they improve recovery of patients with paralysing injuries.

He described this technique during visits to Northwestern Memorial Hospital and the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago, both affiliates of Northwestern University-McGaw Medical Centre.

The surgeon, Dr. Martin Weiss, professor and chairman of the institute of rehabilitation and reconstruction surgery at Warsaw Medical Academy, is touring spinal cord treatment centres in the United States.

The double row of circular springs, made of surgical steel, is implanted along either side of the spinal column and fixed in place with hooks in the cord.

Developed in 1960 by Weiss and his colleagues, the springs have been used on 140 patients who arrived at the rehabilitation institute within 24 hours of injury. He reported on 92 patients whose progress has been followed for five years or longer.

In addition to use in Poland, doctors in England and West Germany have treated cases with this method, Weiss said in an interview.

Weiss said he will donate his invention to the American people.

The springs are used primarily in fractures below the neck.

They are attached to two veterbrae above the fractured vertebrae and two below, pulling them together so that the fracture is held in place.

Weiss said the surgery for implantation of the springs is simple and that no special beds are required for the patients afterwards.

The surgeon said that 15 patients with paraplegia resulting from lower spinal injury were able to walk with mechanical aids within three months, a result not previously obtained with other treatments.

South America: Middle Class Must Give Some

BOSTON (AP) — Four South American political leaders agreed Thursday that their continent's future depends on the balance between economic growth and fair distribution of the wealth among the people.

The former presidents of Chile and Colombia, along with a former Brazilian planning minister and a former United Nations official, spoke at the opening session of a two-day round-table discussing at Boston University's Centre for Latin American Development Studies.

Building the Latin-American economy, they said, was complicated by the emergence of a politically powerful middle class that is keeping the wealth from filtering down to the poverty-stricken masses.

"Everybody from left to right agrees that there cannot be a solution to the economic problems without an accumulation of capital," said Eduardo Frei, former president of Chile.

The former president of Colombia, Carlos Lleras Restrapo, said what is needed is a balance "between the accumulation of capital and the reduction of extreme poverty."

Roberto Campos, former minister of planning in Brazil, said the love-hate relationship between Latin American and United States is becoming somewhat more sedate.

Paul Prebisch, former executive secretary of the United Nations Economic Commission for Latin America said: "Our problem in Latin America is to live with the United States as a fact of life and educate the colossus — the United States."

Pioneer Pay-TV Plan Goes Glimmering

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist TV Writer

A California company that joined with a Canadian one in hopes of starting pay-television this fall in Victoria and Vancouver has given up the idea and is going ahead in San Diego County instead, The Colonist learned Thursday.

Sources in the broadcasting industry said Greater Victoria lost out on its chance to become part of the first major pay-TV system in the world because of the Canadian Radio-TV Commission's insistence that pay-TV comes under its jurisdiction.

Geoffrey Nathanson, president of Optical Systems Corp. of Los Angeles, announced a demonstration and selling period for pay-TV will start this month in San Diego County and regular service will start next January.

The system will use plastic cards inserted into black boxes attached to TV sets and will provide first-run movies, live sports events blacked out on regular TV, plays and other Broadway shows, concerts and instructional programs.

Optical will sell 13-week season tickets for the movies at $19.50 each, while tickets for sports events and other items will be sold mainly on an individual basis, with prices ranging from $2 for one game or concert to $5 for an item like a heavyweight championship fight.

The system, called Channel 100, hopes to provide 100 movies a year through lease arrangements with theatres and will show only family films. Nathanson said X-rated movies are out.

The cards will be pre-perforated and numbered. A pay-TV subscriber wishing a series of programs or just one will phone Channel 100 and receive a code which will be punched out on the card with a pen. The card is then inserted into the black box and the program is seen on a specified channel.

Optical chose Mission Cable TV in San Diego County as its starting point because the company's coverage is one of the largest in the U.S. at 70,000 subscribers. In addition, the county contains about 300,000 homes, so possibilities for expansion are large.

Service may be extended later in 1973 to Santa Barbara, Bakersfield and other cities in southern California. Optical still hopes to break into the Vancouver-Victoria market, where Premier Cablevision Ltd. subsidiaries operate the world's largest cable setup, but doesn't know when.

Optical and Premier announced last March they had agreed to form a company that would use existing cable TV facilities for pay-television and indicated the idea might be tested in Victoria this fall.

A spokesman for Premier said the planners felt the Canadian Radio-TV Commission would not be involved, but CRTC officials soon made it clear the commission believes any broadcasting undertaking in Canada must operate under CRTC rules.

Months of quiet behind-the-scenes talks were climaxed Wednesday when the CRTC issued a policy statement during hearings in Edmonton that any pay-TV company in Canada must have a broadcasting licence.

The sources said this applied mainly to unlicensed companies already serving hotels in Toronto and Vancouver, plus firms planning cable service to large apartment buildings in those and other cities. But they added it covers the Optical-Premier scheme as well.

The result is no pay-television for Victoria until after a CRTC hearing, and that may not come for a year or more.

BUTCHART GARDENS. AUTUMN! Just about the most beautiful, most colorful time of the year in these famous gardens. Should it shower, don't worry, there's free use of umbrellas for everybody. Usually warmer out here, too! Open every day 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Plan now for one of your happiest outings!

BUTCHART GARDENS. Developed from an abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago. Known throughout the world for their incredible beauty! Embracing over 30 acres, they're actually six gardens in one—fabulous Sunken Garden, Lake Garden featuring the majestic Ross Fountains, English Rose, quaint Japanese, stately Italian, and the Stage Show Garden.

BUTCHART GARDENS' ROMANTIC NIGHT LIGHTING. As darkness takes over, a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, lily ponds and fountains, to create a fairyland, softly scented by the flowers—a spectacle so unusual, so grand, it's indescribable! Featuring the Sunken Garden and the spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars." Night illumination ceases for the season after Sunday, October 8.

BUTCHART GARDENS' FLORAL RESTAURANT. Open every day 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., serving delicious lunches, afternoon teas, and delightful dinners in the evening. Restaurant closes for the season after Sunday, October 8.

BUTCHART GARDENS. Snack and Coffee Bar is always open.

FRIENDS ARRIVING? Take them to see these lovely gardens. One of the nicest and most appreciated ways to entertain.

WIG AND DICKIE CABARET for the best in music, fun and laughter, most people are choosing the Wig and Dickie Cabaret in the Wilson Motor Inn. If you like an English Inn, you'll love the Wig and Dickie. George McDowall and The Lads from the Pig and Whistle Show, lead the sing-along, dancing and provide hilarious entertainment from 8:30 p.m., Tues. through Sat., at 850 Blanshard Street. Reservations recommended. 385-6787. Air conditioned.

The Old Bailey Beefeater is THE PLACE for those who like to sink their teeth into a succulent thick slice of prime rib smothered in its own natural juices. The complete dinner is a delight including hors d'oeuvres, tossed salad, a small loaf of bread, garlic or regular butter, baked potato and a selection of taste tempting cheeses for dessert. And believe it or not the price is only $4.50 or just $3.75 if you order the English cut. Try this the next time you're going out for dinner. You'll love the English mood of the authentic Old Bailey Beefeater at The Wilson Motor Inn, Blanshard at Courtenay.

Fallen SPARA Still Lives

Despite a setback in plans to build a recreation facility, the Saanich Peninsula Agricultural and Recreational Association is not dead, says spokesman Joan Ethier, a member of SPARA's executive.

"The policy of the organization," she told the Colonist Wednesday night, "remains constant, that is, to ensure a recreation facility for the Saanich Peninsula."

It had been announced by SPARA last week that its sale of debentures to build a recreation complex had fallen far short of its goal.

A door-to-door blitz of the peninsula by SPARA members yielded less than $40,000 in debentures. SPARA has tried for three years to get the facility built.

"Although one phase of SPARA may be considered dead — building through the sale of debentures — SPARA has progressed in other areas," Joan Ethier said.

"The airport property has now been leased for $1 a year, and an income tax deduction licence has been procured.

"In concert with preciously stated policy, we are returning all the debenture-application money received, but this may be returned to SPARA at the wish of the donors to aid in our work for peninsula recreation.

"In view of our efforts of three years, and the long-overdue interest being shown by the three municipalities, SPARA will be pleased to offer its experience and expertise to these municipalities in their fight in the recreational field."

Eskimos' Art Stirs London

LONDON (CP) — Canadian Eskimo art has hit the big time in London with three simultaneous exhibitions giving British critics and art patrons their first sustained exposure to the culture of the far north.

The touring sculpture show called Masterworks of the Canadian Arctic was opened Thursday at the Museum of Mankind, a West End Branch of the British Museum.

Christopher Drake, art critic of The Tatler magazine, said the first thing to strike a European is the gentleness of most Eskimo images, in contrast with some other "primitive" art.

Drake praises the "brilliance of workmanship" and adds: "The awareness of shape, form and line and understanding of the precise nature of materials sets these artists on the very highest level technically."

The Masterworks exhibition, spanning nearly 3,000 years of Eskimo culture and representating the work of more than 100 artists from about 25 communities, broke attendance records at the Vancouver Art Gallery last November.

It has visited Paris, Copenhagen and Leningrad. Canada House officials here say the response from the British press, TV and radio has been the best yet.

Elsewhere in the fashionable Mayfair district, two private galleries are holding exhibitions of Eskimo prints, drawings, carvings and wall-hangings.

At the Hugh Moss gallery were drawings and all 32 prints made by Parr, an Eskimo graphic artist of the Cape Dorset area who died in 1969, as well as prints and drawings by Angosaglo, of Baker Lake. The prints sold briskly.

The third exhibition of prints, wall-hangings and sculpture is at the Gimpel Fils gallery.

Prune in Comfort

There seems to be a habit among gardeners hereabouts to leave the pruning of fruit and ornamental trees — a miserable job at best — until really harsh and wintry weather arrives. For this reason, I suppose, the job has come to be known as "winter pruning," associated with muddy boots, frozen fingers and a runny nose.

Acutally, pruning can be started as soon as the leaves have fallen, or even while they are still falling, and for my money, it makes a lot more sense to get the job done and out of the way while the weather is still comfortable.

With this in mind, it is time now to get the pruning equipment and tools overhauled and made ready.

★ ★ ★

I think it pays to splurge a bit when you buy pruning shears, purchasing the best on the market, for a decent pair will outlast their owner by a good many years. Untold damage is done every year by cheap pruners not much better than glorified pliers, which bruise and crush the tree's tissues rather than cutting cleanly.

Pruning is a form of surgery, and secateurs should have an edge like a scalpel!

A good test, when selecting pruning shears, is to try them on a piece of wet paper. If you already own a good pair, better send them out to be sharpened professionally.

If you have any particular ambition to be popular with the neighbors, one sure way to win friends is to plant a couple of clumpss of chives in your garden.

We seem to be the only family in our neighborhood with chives, and once the word got around, we had a constant stream of visitors begging for a few of the oniony leaves for sandwich fillings, salads, cottage cheese mixes and the like.

Eventually, our friends didn't bother asking permission any more — they just came in and helped themselves. This was with our blessing, of course, but on one occasion my wife and I came home from downtown to find a perfect stranger in our garden calmly helping himself to some leaves from our chives. He turned out to be a friend of a friend of a friend!

This is a good time of the year to buy and plant chives, or for that matter, to dig up, divide and replant existing clumps. Simply dig up a clump, pull it to pieces with your fingers, and replant in chunks of about 10 stems each. Set them in shallowly, with only the roots and the base of the stems covered, for like all members of the onion family, they abhor deep planting.

Incidentally, small clumps of chives make quite a pretty edging for a flower bed.

Summer before last, while scuffling weeds with the Dutch hoe between clumps of delphiniums, iris, phlox and other perennials, I came across an unexpected occupant of the bed — one lone and skinny stalk of asparagus! I suppose the seed had been carried by a bird and, finding my soil congenial, it had settled down comfortably among my flowers.

★ ★ ★

I hadn't the heart to chop it out with the hoe, so I left it to grow, and this turned out to be a happy decision. The graceful, ferny foliage of my one lone asparagus plant has become a decided asset to the bed; not only for its immediate decorative effect, but also for supplying "fern" to mix with cut flowers in vase and bowl arrangements.

So happy has been this association, in fact, that I plan on buying and planting a couple more asparagus roots next spring to enhance the appearance of our perennial border.

Originally a maritime plant, asparagus will thrive in almost pure sand. It glows with ruddy health under a salt sea spray and is a surefire subject for those problem gardens close to saltchuck.

Jack Smith

False Idea Planted

Botany was not among the subjects I excelled in when I was in school, and consequently I know very little about plants.

I know they have some sort of sex life, and that they breathe, though it was my impression that they breathed carbon dioxide in and oxygen out, thus counteracting the practice of most human beings in doing just the opposite.

Writing recently about my wife's new obsession for house plants, which have now proliferated to the point that my new bar looks like a garden, I said that I imagined I could hear them breathing at night . . . "Carbon dioxide in, oxygen out."

★ ★ ★

As every schoolgirl knows, evidently, the idea is incorrect.

Among the persons who have pointed this out to me is Ellen Boughn, a former schoolteacher, who writes:

"One of the most frustrating situations facing biology teachers used to be (use the past tense as I no longer teach and recognize that some new-fangled methods may have solved this problem) to convince students that plants are alive, in the same fashion as human beings, in that they respire . . . 24 hours a day.

"Thus," she continues, "they are always taking in oxygen and giving off carbon dioxide. This is all they do at night except maybe sleep . . ."

★ ★ ★

Ms. Boughn goes on to explain that it is in the daytime that photosynthesis (which is what I may have had in mind) also takes place, causing the plant to release oxygen and to take in carbon dioxide.

"Therefore," she says, "you might imagine your plants breathing at night — bad in, good out — but they are really doing just the opposite.

"Unless, of course, you keep a light burning on the bar all during the night. (PS. There is a sale on tomato plants at The Market Basket — 39c. I have mine on the dining room table.)"

There are two or three typing erros in Ms. Boughn's letter, so I'm not sure whether she meant to say she had "mine on the dining room table" or "nine on the dining room table." If she has nine tomato plants on her table it would put her in a class with us.

Ordinarily, I wouldn't go to this length to make a public display of one of my errors, especially one that exposes such a fundamental ignorance. But I feel an urgency here.

If there is one woman who, because of my words, has filled her bedroom with house plants, thinking to oxygenate the night air and thus invigorate herself and her spouse in their sleep, no fear of personal embarrassment should keep me from sounding the alarm.

★ ★ ★

She is in fact filling the room with carbon dioxide, and is sure to awaken tired and irritable, a condition that is not likely to be ameliorated by a tired and irritable mate.

It's a situation that I'm certainly not going to allow in my own house. After hearing from Ms. Bough, I brought the matter up at once with my wife.

"Are you aware," I said, "that plants breathe in oxygen and breathe out carbon dioxide at night?"

"I knew they did something bad," she said, "because when you're in the hospital, as I remember, they take the plants out of the room at night."

★ ★ ★

I'd never heard that. It sounded like an old wive's tale. But when you're living in a jungle you begin to believe in myths.

I showed her Ms. Boughn's letter. "Does that suggest anything to you?" I asked, hoping it might move her to some restraint.

"Well," she said, "it's not a bad price on tomato plants."

I have suggested that at least she put her plants out at night, with the cats.

I myself have taken the responsibility of keeping a light burning on the bar.

Liza Thrills Lorna

JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD — Must have been quite a show the other night at the Sands hotel when Liza Minnelli jumped on stage and sang several songs with her half-sister Lorna Luft. Judy Garland was their mother. Lorna, who resembles her mother while Liza resembles her director-father Vincente, is appearing with Danny Thomas in her first Las Vegas engagement. "It was a real thrill for me to haul somebody else on stage," said Lorna. "I was always being brought on either by my mother or my sister." Lorna is going to be big. She sings up a storm.

★ ★ ★

Everybody knows of Burt Bacharach, but what about the fellow who puts those wonderful words to Bacharach's music — Hal David? Hal keeps himself pretty much out of the limelight, but about 20 gold records and an oscar decorate his den in Roslyn, Long Island. He and Burt work together like Gilbert and Sullivan — except, unlike that famous team, they are friendly with each other. Hal is a violinist but has no desire to compose music for his poetic lyrics. "At this stage of my career, I couldn't afford to work with a lousy composer," he says. Hal and I have something in common. His favorite tune and lyric is the team's Alfie. But the biggest all-time seller for Bacharach-David is What the World Needs Now Is Love.

Glenn Ford is off to Miami to spend three days with his Golddigger lovely Susan Lund in Key Biscayne. Glenn got hooked on Florida when he went to the Republican convention — and he got hooked on pretty girls like Susan quite a few years earlier. This one looks like the most serious of Glenn's romances. Last time I was with them, Glenn kept talking about marriage. And that's serious.

Alfred Hitchcock was greatly impressed by Jesus Christ Superstar at the Universal Studios Amphitheatre. The other day he received a clipping of a review of his latest movie Frenzy. The headline blared: Alfred Hitchcock Superstar. Hitch sent it to Lew Wasserman, the studio boss, with a note reading: "Please let me know when the Amphitheatre is available."

Olympolitics

More baloney has been sliced and served up to the unsuspecting public about the Olympic Games than you will find in the world's largest smokehouse. Most of it has to do with "international brotherhood in sports."

When the Olympic Games were started 2,748 years ago, supposedly to honor the gods of Greece, they were quickly transformed from contests between individual athletes to rivalries between contending states.

★ ★ ★

The Greek states taking part in the games were fiercely nationalistic in spirit, and regarded a victory in the Olympiad as important as winning a battle.

Their athletes had to promise to train faithfully and regularly for a full 10 months preceeding the games.

Then, for the 30 days immediately before, they were herded together at Elis, where the games took place, where local officials made sure there was no hanky-panky going on.

★ ★ ★

Over the centuries, the Olypics became increasingly professionalized, until (according to my reference, the Columbia Encyclopedia), "in the Roman period they provoked much censure from philosophers and physicians."

Competitors were subsidized and used by their governments as symbols of state strength and prowess.

Finally, they were discontinued altogether by Emperor Theodosius of Rome at the end of the 4th century AD, not to be revived until nearly 15 centuries later.

When the games began again, in Athens in 1896, it was with the same high original intentions and motives — to celebrate and honor the fleetness and dexterity of young people in various physical contests.

But over the years, once more, the proud and agressive spirit of nationalism intruded itself, transforming the games (despite the best efforts of its sponsors) into propaganda vehicles for competing governments.

★ ★ ★

As one flagrant example, few people know that Olympic events are won only by individuals; countries do not compete as a unit.

The method of national-team scoring for "points" is wholly unofficial and contrary to the spirit of the games.

★ ★ ★

Yet national anthems are played when a member of that team wins a gold medal; "Russia" or "America" or "France" is said to have won an event, when actually a young man or woman won it.

Because of this perversion, some countries have made their Olympic teams almost an arm of the government, as a powerful propaganda tool.

"International brotherhood" may be felt by the players; it is scarcely exhibited by the nations. What happened in Munich last month is only the final, tragic culmination of using sports for political ends.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to thank the many friends for kindnesses and messages of love received by our mother and grandmother during her long illness and for the sympathy and understanding shown us at the time of her death. — Fielding and Kelly Families.

9 IN MEMORIAM

COCKBURN — In loving memory of a dear Husband and Father and Grandfather Mr. Nicholas Cockburn who passed away Oct. 6, 1971.
The Golden Gates stood open
One year ago today
He softly slipped away
Somewhere beyond the sunset
Where beauty never dies
You rest in a lovely garden
Beneath God's golden skies.
—Ever remembered and missed by wife, Polly; daughters, Hannah and Phyllis; son, George and grandchildren.

DOBBIE, Ethel Beatrice. In loving memory of our dear Mom and Nana who left us so suddenly on Oct. 5, 1966. Always in our hearts.
Her daughter Kay, son-in-law Red and family.

MULLEN—In loving memory of our father, Joseph Mullen, who passed away Oct. 6, 1970.
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.
—Missed so much by all his family.

Bruce Lowther

Julie Andrews was on Channel 4 Wednesday when I said she wouldn't be and Delphi Bureau wasn't seen on Thursday when I said it would be. But don't blame me; blame Richard Nixon.

The Nixon people bought a half-hour campaign program at 10 p.m. Wednesday on ABC and the network delayed Miss Andrews for a week. But her producers hollered, so the Andrews program was reinstated at the last moment and Delphi Bureau was replaced instead. Its debut episode now is due at 10 p.m. next Thursday on Channel 4.

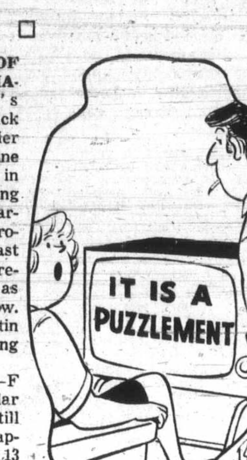

□

A belated answer to the letter-writer who likes Bless This House and That's Me Over Here. They're not liable to return until the CBC gets to rerun season, but write to CBC Vancouver and ask for them anyway. At least you're on the record then.

□

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Thursday's answer—The gimmick lately has been earlier television. like the fine Fred Astaire specials in which his dancing partner was always Barrie Chase. And the program once called Toast of the Town, later, renamed for its star as The Ed Sullivan Show. Did you know Martin and Lewis were among his first guests?

Today's question—F Troop was a popular western comedy and still draws viewers as it appears on Channel 13 each weekday. Without peeking, can you name its three principal male stars? The easy answers Saturday.

"Technical difficulties on 'Anna and the King.' "

Friday Highlights

NEW TODAY are, in order, Brady Bunch beginning on CTV at 7 p.m. on Channel 8, a PBS series called Wall Street Week at 7:30 on Channel 9 and Soul at 10 p.m. on Channel 9. For those who care, Channel 9 tomorrow starts Saturday programming for the first time.

C 8:30 p.m.—All in the Family features Gloria and a new slant on woman's place in society—2, 6.

C 9:00—Masterpiece Theatre begins Thackeray's Vanity Fair with Susan Hampshire. A repeat of the episode at 9 p.m. Sunday—9.

CABLE 10—7:00 p.m., Arts Calendar; 7:30, People Helping People with Judy Nyquist; 8:30, the UVic French Club program; 9:00, National Film Board Presents the hour report on Stan Mikita in Czechoslovakia.

Friday Movies

C 9:30 a.m.—To the Shores of Tripoli (1942 Marines propaganda lemon), John Payne. Maureen O'Hara. Just garbage—4.

C 12:00 noon—Raw Edge (1956 action, far below good), Rory Calhoun, Yvonne de Carlo. Sort of a Dud and Sand—13.

C 12:45—Pony Express (1953 western, not much), Charlton Heston, Rhonda Fleming. A lot of breathing and muscle-twitching—6, 8.

C 4:00 p.m.—Hostile Guns (sickening 1967 western), George Montgomery, Yvonne DeCarlo. They belong together but not on your set—5.

4:00—Man from the Diners' Club (1963 Danny Kaye). Forgive me, but he deserves very little credit for trying to be a card—7.

C 7:30—Night in Paradise (awful 1946 Aesop foible), Merle Oberon. Turhan Bey—13.

C 8:30 — Longest Night (fair kidnap suspense), David Janssen, James Farentino. I don't care for the fact it's almost a crime textbook—8.

C 9:00—Mysterious Island (entertaining 1961 Jules Verne fun), Michael Craig, Joan Greenwood. She's delicious, isn't she?—7.

C 9:00—Hole in the Head (poorish 1959 brothers comedy-drama), Sinatra, Edward G. Robinson, Carolyn Jones. Anyone who watches it deserves it—12.

11:00—No title available—11.

C 11:30—Snake People (so-so 1968 Karloff)—7.

C 11:30—To Hell and Back (1955 Audie Murphy as Audie Murphy)—12.

11:50—Dixie (1943 musical antique), Bing Crosby. Only for fans—2.

C 12:00 Longest Night (see 8:30)—6.

C 12:00—Reptilicus (1962 Danish monster mess)—8.

12:30 a.m.—Code Name: Tiger (silly 1964 spy dubber). My favorite things named Lily are Tiger, Picca and Tomlin—13.

● 1:00 a.m.—The Lodger (1944 Jack the Ripper, hopelessly hammy but grand fun), Laird Cregar, George Sanders, Merle Oberon—4.

1:15—Black Friday (1940 Karloff-Lugosi chuckler)—7.

1:30—Cocoanuts (1929 Marx Brothers). Their best film was made like a stage play but still has many laughs —12.

Friday Radio

8:00 p.m.—The Entertainers talks to Ian and Sylvia—CBU (690).

8:00—MusicScope honors Healy Willan and Ralph Vaughan Williams—CBU-FM (105.7).

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of spades.

The bidding was natural, with South bidding two no trump holding two spade stoppers and opening bid strength. North dutifully raised to game.

West led the spade seven and South made the good play of ducking the first trick. East continued spades and South won. Let's examine South's thoughsts.

"I have two spades and two diamonds in top tricks. If I knock out the heart ace I will have three more tricks for a total of seven. The club ace will give me an eighth. Therefore, I will need the club finesse to make the contract. By the same token, if I take the club finesse and it succeeds I will not need a heart trick. If it fails then I must take a heart trick to make the contract."

This brief bit of reasoning led declarer to the winning plan. If East had both the heart ace and the cluk king the hand might not be made. If East had only the heart ace, then the club finesse would yield the contract with overtricks. If East had the club king but not the heart ace, the club king must be knocked out first.

Examine both lines of play. If declarer leads hearts first, West wins and leads a third spade. East now waits happily with his club king and his good spades.

If declarer first leads clubs and loses to East's king, East can knock out declarer's last spade stopper but when West wins the heart ace he will have no spade to lead.

The play reduces itself to a matter of priorities. As a general rule, it is best to attack the entry of the defender who holds the threatening long suit.

HOW TO WRITE
A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc, for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to specu-

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily. Monday through Saturday call.

Tanzania, Uganda End Tiff

From AP-Reuter

MOGADISHU, Somalia (CP) — Uganda and Tanzania, whose relations were far from cordial after border fighting last month, signed a peace agreement here Thursday. (See also Page 3.)

(See also Page 3.)

Surgery For Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Veterans Juan Marichal and Jim Ray Hart of San Francisco Giants will undergo surgery next Monday.

Both operations will be at Stanford Medical Centre in Palto Alto, Calif., the baseball team announced Thursday.

Marichal, bothered all season by a sore back, will have repair work done.

Third-baseman Hart, 30, will have knee surgery.

Calgary Star On Sidelines

CALGAR Y(CP) — Middle-linebacker Wayne Harris, who has missed five games because of a neck injury, was put on the 15-day injured list Thursday by Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference.

Harris, chosen four times as the most outstanding lineman in Canada, was placed on the 30-day list Sept. 8 and missed four games. He also sat out a game Sept. 4 against the Eskimos after he was injured in late August during a contest in Regina. His injury was activated by a pinched nerve which had the effect of pinching muscles in his left arm.

Crusaders Pick Coach

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Owner Nick Mileti named hockey veteran Bill Needham coach of Cleveland Crusaders of the World Hockey Association Thursday.

Needham, 40, who retired as a player two years ago, was named the American Hockey League's top defenceman for the 1967-68 season. He played 14 seasons with the Cleveland Barons, also owned by Mileti, accumulating 62 goals and 246 assists. He also holds the AHL defenceman record for consecutive games played, 523.

Simon Fraser Picks Walker

BURNABY — Former B. C. Lions player Tom Walker has been appointed head football coach at Simon Fraser University, replacing Lorne Davies, who will devote more time to the university's intercollegiate program as athletic director.

Davies has held the twin position since the 1965 opening of SFU but the program has grown from three sports to seven — swimming, football, basketball, cross-country, golf, track and field and wrestling.

VANCOUVER — President Jack Moore and his Western Canada regional officers of the International Woodworkers of America are being challenged for their jobs but for the most part they are writing the opposition off as "nuisance candidates."

The 48-year-old Moore, who has headed the union's biggest region for 11 years is fully expected to win easily over Beaver Cove logger Don Poirier nominated at the regional IWA's convention Thursday to run against him.

While nominations are dealt with in convention the IWA's policy of grassroots democracy means the vote goes out to the 42,000 Western Canada members most of whom are in B.C. Results must be in within 50 days of the convention which ends today.

The opposition this time is reportedly a "mixed bag" and doesn't resemble an actual slate of political heavyweights such as those emerging in the past from the "presidents' club" — the group that has traditionally locked horns with Moore and his men.

The group has generally included influential presidents of big coast locals such as Syd Thompson from Vancouver, Murray Drew of Victoria, Ernie Freer from the Vancouver-based loggers local

NORTH COWICHAN — A $12 million garden shopping centre with a new 200-unit hotel including complete convention type facilities is to be developed in North Cowichan, close to the City of Duncan, it was announced Thursday afternoon.

The announcement was made by Robert Kennedy on behalf of George Treit and Associates of Vancouver. Kennedy, of Cobble Hill, is project manager for the Vancouver-based firm. The 36.5-acre property is located adjacent to the Trans-Canada Highway between the V.I.P. Motel and the Slegg Brothers retail outlet.

Kennedy said preliminary soil tests by Thurber and Associates of Victoria have been completed, but they will be followed by more soil tests in the near future. The large project will have a total of 955 feet highway frontage. The project manager stated that the area in question will receive a three-foot deep gravel fill. The area is already served by a sewer and water system from the North Cowichan Municipality.

Indians War on

DUNCAN — During a recent public meeting on the Cowichan Indian reserve many attending parents expressed a very keen desire to have a voting Indian trustee on the Cowichan School Board, according to band manager Norman Joe.

For several years now the regular school board meetings have been attended by Leonard Antoine of the Cowichan Indian education committee who has been acing as a liaison between the Indian and the non-Indian communities. Joe said the people's request to have a voting Indian trustee on the Cowichan School Board is just because most of the Cowichan Indian

Challengers to Moore 'Nuisance Candidates'

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

VANCOUVER — President Jack Moore and his Western Canada regional officers of the International Woodworkers of America are being challenged for their jobs but for the most part they are writing the opposition off as "nuisance candidates."

The 48-year-old Moore, who has headed the union's biggest region for 11 years is fully expected to win easily over Beaver Cove logger Don Poirier nominated at the regional IWA's convention Thursday to run against him.

While nominations are dealt with in convention the IWA's policy of grassroots democracy means the vote goes out to the 42,000 Western Canada members most of whom are in B.C. Results must be in within 50 days of the convention which ends today.

The opposition this time is reportedly a "mixed bag" and doesn't resemble an actual slate of political heavyweights such as those emerging in the past from the "presidents' club" — the group that has traditionally locked horns with Moore and his men.

The group has generally included influential presidents of big coast locals such as Syd Thompson from Vancouver, Murray Drew of Victoria, Ernie Freer from the Vancouver-based loggers local and Weldon Jubenville of Duncan.

Jubenville
... successful

The most interesting development this time is the successful switching of camps by Jubenville.

In bygone days "Jubie" has been one of those leading the attack on what was termed the weak leadership of Moore each time internal warfare broke out.

Today he is running for the job of regional secretary-treasurer with the blessings of Moore and the regional executive. He is the region's man — picked to run on the region's slate — against any opposition.

Ironically his only opposition is the current secretary-treasurer Fred Fieber who didn't get the stamp of approval from the regional caucus this time. Although he will reach retirement age before the two-year term is up, Fieber chose to run again and had to be nominated by someone outside the caucus.

The retirement age is 65 and the IWA constitution stipulates that an officer must step down with a month of reaching that age.

If Moore wants a younger replacement for Fieber—Jubenville is 53 — why hadn't he been able to talk the older man into declining the nomination?

"Unfortunately Fred has never learned to cope with leisure time", Moore said in an interview after the nominations.

Not all of those representing the opposing forces see it that way.

"It's a heartless act", said Victoria's Freer. "It's like kicking an old dog".

For his part, Jubenville Says he switched his support to the Moore camp during last spring's negotiations for a master coast region contract, while he served as negotiating committee secretary.

The case at point was the wildcat strike by fallers whose unauthorized action drew sympathy from men like Thompson and Drew.

Jubenville, a former faller himself put it this way Thursday: "I will not go along with or support people who work outside the structure of the IWA and I am fed up to the gills with the continual bickering about the leadership."

Also interesting this time is an attempt to shift the executive. Second vice-president Jack Munro was nominated to run as first vice-president while first vice-president T. W. Trineer is dropping back to seek Munro's job.

Moore says it is simply a matter of age. Trinner is 56 and he wants a younger man to be ready to step into the presidency if "I drop dead tomorrow."

Running against Munro for the first vice-president's job is Joe Fowler, 48, a former officer of the Victoria local who is now a rank-and-file member of the Haney local.

Trineer is opposed by Cy Godfrey of the Haney local. Ben Thompson, a popular first vice-president of the loggers local will try to oust third vice-president Stan Parker.

Among four men seeking two spots on the international executive board is Drew.

The nominations followed three days of convention busines that was surprisingly lacking in the political infighting that shows up at IWA conventions. For the most part Thompson, Drew, Freer and others from the "Presidents club" were silent.

Asked about this Moore just shook his head:

"I think at this convention they just about disappeared as any influence," he said.

Fowler, one of the ousiders seeking office, has his own thoughts on the matter.

"I think it has much to do with the change in provincial government. Now that the NDP is in they think they are going to get most of the things they want without fighting for them but they're wrong. You have to keep fighting. Nothing is handed to you."

Poirier, the serious bearded man who is seeking Moore's job, is chairman of the Beaver Cove sub-local. He says he would institute sectional representation for bargaining purposes because of the wide variety of job classifications in the forest industry.

He would have men from various groups act in an advisory role for the negotiating committee.

"No one man in a union the size of ours, considering our special problems, is an expert," says the 33-year-old Poirier.

He thinks the fallers dispute might have been avoided if they had been allowed this kind of representation.

The dissident fallers who wanted nothing to do with the day-rate system negotiated for them, had threatened some time ago to produce an opposition slate and oust Moore's men. No such slate developed.

TOT MURDERED

NANAIMO — Herbert Lionel Moore, 24, of Hazelton, B.C., was charged Thursday with non-capital murder of his 18-month-old son George Grant Moore.

The child's body was found by police who were called to a city motel earlier in the day.

The results of an autopsy conducted Thursday afternoon were not available.

Police said the child's body was found in a unit of the Tideview Motel, 1451 Estevan Road at 6 a.m. The investigation is continuing.

$12 Million Complex

NORTH COWICHAN — A $12 million garden shopping centre with a new 200-unit hotel including complete convention type facilities is to be developed in North Cowichan, close to the City of Duncan, it was announced Thursday afternoon.

The announcement was made by Robert Kennedy on behalf of George Treit and Associates of Vancouver. Kennedy, of Cobble Hill, is project manager for the Vancouver-based firm. The 36.5-acre property is located adjacent to the Trans-Canada Highway between the V.I.P. Motel and the Slegg Brothers retail outlet.

Kennedy said preliminary soil tests by Thurber and Associates of Victoria have been completed, but they will be followed by more soil tests in the near future. The large project will have a total of 955 feet highway frontage. The project manager stated that the area in question will receive a three-foot deep gravel fill. The area is already served by a sewer and water system from the North Cowichan Municipality.

Kennedy said more than 50 per cent national lessees have shown intent to move into the proposed centre. Negotiations continue and it is hoped that construction on the massive project can start early next spring. Kennedy explained that the new garden shopping centre will broaden North Cowichan's tax base.

Kennedy also emphasized that now 40 cents from every dollar spent by local shoppers goes out of this area and that with the new development much more of the shopping dollar will remain here. "Everybody will benefit," he added.

The new shopping centre, to be completed two years after construction starts, will employ between 300 and 400 people. North Cowichan Mayor Gerry Smith said that the new development will be undertaken under a land-use program but that the area is already zoned for the intended use.

"I think it is a good thing for the whole (Cowichan) valley and it will keep a lot more shoppers in the area. It is the biggest development we had in a long time," Smith said. However, the project still has to be approved by council.

Kennedy said the garden shopping centre is the second large-scale development undertaken by his firm in the North Cowichan Municipality. The first one, a 500-acre housing project is now under way. It will take more than eight years for completion and the cost for clearing, installation of sewer and water lines and underground wiring is estimated at about $5,800,000.

Kennedy said his firm is all-Canadian and some land in the Maple Bay Road development has already been dedicated to the school board for building a school when the need arises. He explained the first phase of the Maple Bay Road project will be the installation of a sewer line with a large pumping station to the North Cowichan sewage lagoon. Water for that development will come from the North Cowichan southend water system.

Indians Wage War on Wrecks

DUNCAN — During a recent public meeting on the Cowichan Indian reserve many attending parents expressed a very keen desire to have a voting Indian trustee on the Cowichan School Board, according to band manager Norman Joe.

For several years now the regular school board meetings have been attended by Leonard Antoine of the Cowichan Indian education committee who has been acing as a liaison between the Indian and the non-Indian communities, Joe said the people's request to have a voting Indian trustee on the Cowichan School Board is just because most of the Cowichan Indian children are now attending public schools.

People at the recent meeting decided to solicit more support for their idea from amongst other band members. "It is hoped that more interest for a voting Indian trustee can be generated from amongst Indians on the reserve," Joe said.

The band manager also expressed hope that the pending "operation Sam" will be successful on the reserve and "to get rid of some of the old car wrecks."

Operation Sam is sponsored by the provincial government in an effort to rid the countryside of unsightly car wrecks and to enable municipalities.

French Citizenship Program

Viet Children Look To Better Future

By JACQUES LESLIE
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

SAIGON — A group of 41 French Vietnamese children took last tearful looks at their mothers, then stepped aboard a jet waiting to take them to new lives in France.

This scene, which took place recently at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport, is part of a unique French government program to repatriate children of French citizenship from Vietnam. Since 1955, when the program began, about 6,800 children have gone to France under its auspices.

The children who left for Paris wore looks either of sadness or non-comprehension as they went through boarding procedures. Mothers had volunteered their children for the program because they knew that as the children grew older they would have better prospects in France. But now the mothers felt only the pain of acknowledging that they might never see their sons again.

"Of course, it was a difficult decision," said one mother who was seeing off two of her 16 children. "But their future is the most important consideration. Here it would be hard for them to find the work."

Like most of the other mothes, this one is poor and single.

The children are mostly a legacy of French colonialism. They are offspring of French soldiers, the last of whom left Vietnam in 1958, and Vietnamese women. Most of these couples were unmarried, and the fathers returned to France.

In Vietnam, where politics has an encompassing and sometimes insidious presence, the program seems to represent a humanitarian exception — recognition by the French government that it bears some responsibility for children fathered by its citizens.

All the repatriated children have been declared French citizens through one of several complicated procedures, and thus are not subject to a South Vietnamese government travel ban. The terms by which part-Vietnamese become French citizens were established in a 1955 treaty between the two countries. Repatriation has gone on quietly since,

In contrast, the United States has no such treaty with South Vietnam, and the hundreds of children fathered by American soldiers since the beginning of American involvement here must remain Vietnamese citizens.

U.S.-China Dinner For Two

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — High-level meetings between the United States and China were reported in the making Thursday night with observers suggesting the two countries would discuss ways of further improving their relations.

Although American officials declined comment, it was learned that U.S. State Secretary William Rogers planned to meet for more than two hours with Chinese Deputy Foriegn Minister Chiao Kuan-hau.

The subject of Vietnam was considered a likely topic as well as U.S.-Soviet relations in the wake of President Nixon's meeting Thursday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Earlier Thursday, Rogers had a series of bilateral meetings with foreign ministers, including a session with Mohammed Hassan el-Zayyat of Egypt and Sardar Swaran Singh of India.

The meeting with the Indian foreign minister was reported to have been restrained because of a recent claim by Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency had engaged in illegal operations in India.

Former mines minister Frank Richter has been appointed acting house leader for Social Credit after a telegram from W. A. C. Bennett who has been vacationing in Padua, Italy.

And the telegram also confirmed the recommendation of former MLAs Dan Campbell and Grace McCarthy as executive assistant to the opposition leader and research assistant respectively.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said Thursday afternoon he had a "pleasant chat" with Richter on the telephone about the appointments and orders-in-council would be prepared for the Campbell and McCarthy jobs.

The acting-leader appointment is expected to be discussed at a caucus meeting set for Oct. 12 and 13.

Former attorney-general Leslie Peterson had at one stage been approached for the party leadership and was reported to be interested.

Richter said Thursday he had accepted Bennett's job offer: "As I am the senior minister I had no reason to reject the request."

VANCOUVER — Premier Barrett would like to move B.C. out of the era of big "boomism" even if it means leaving precious minerals untapped in the ground.

Richter

Attacking the exploitation of the province's mineral resources, Barrett told delegates to the IWA's western Canada convention here that he was calling for restraint, which he admitted might sound strange "coming from a democratic socialist party."

But what B.C. needs now, he said, is to enter an era of prudent development.

'Better Off'

"If we can't come up with anything better in our new government, the resources would be better off left in the ground until a generation comes along with more sense than has been shown up to now in dealing with them," he said.

Barrett has said right along that there has been a great deal of irresponsibility in not preserving diminishing resources. He wants to put an end to the shipment of raw materials from the province and would have them processed right here as a means of creating jobs.

"We can't tell the rest of North America what to do in terms of setting restraints, but we can set an example here.

Rational Way

"We can say to the rest of North America: 'Stop, we want to get off' and plan British Columbia's development in a rational and meaningful way.

"The boom era is going to end in the West in the last place it existed in full flower. That's what we want here — not so much for ourselves but for our children and their children's sakes,' Barrett said.

He said growth was wanted, but on the province's own terms.

Stanfield Charges Power Play

Trudeau 'Indifferent' to Defence

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield Thursday night charged Prime Minister Trudeau with displaying a total indifference toward the defence department and undercutting the authority of federal ministers in general.

In a speech to more than 1,000 persons who packed an Ottawa arena, Stanfield said government policies have caused armed forces morale to sag.

And he criticized the prime minister for concentrating increasing power in his own office, at the expense of government departments.

The Conservative leader was cheered repeatedly by a noisy crowd in this city where the votes of public servants and servicemen count heavily.

It was the second night in a row Stanfield has drawn a capacity crowd to a public meeting in his campaign for the Oct. 30 federal election.

Wednesday night, he drew a full turnout of 2,750 for a speech at Edmonton's Jubilee Auditorium.

Standield was introduced Thursday by Ontario Premier William Davis who described him as "a man of integrity, capacity, great judgment and common sense" and said Stanfield had the complete support of the provincial Conservative organization in the election campaign.

Stanfield, opening his 15-minute speech, said Davis' message was "wonderfully encouraging to all of us."

Standield charged that Trudeau had downgraded the defence department and turned the defence portfolio into "merely a staging area" for ministers on their way to other positions.

Referring to the succession of ministers through the defence portfolio in recent years, Stanfield said "hardly anyone is there long enough to unpack his bags."

He said decisions must soon be taken regarding Canada's membership in NORAD, its commitment to NATO, and re-euuipment of the forces in certain areas.

The department should not

Climax Near for Viet Deal

Sensitive Stage, Says Nixon

UPI, AP

President Nixon said in Washington Thursday that Vietnam peace negotiations are in a "sensitive stage" but declined to predict when or if a settlement will be reached.

In a wide-ranging news conference, he also shrugged off his election opponents' corruption charges and condemned "congressional overspending" as a threat to his pledge not to increase taxes.

In responding to a question about the possibility of a negotiated Vietnam settlement before the election, Nixon said the campaign will not influence "what we do at the negotiating table."

He mentioned the possible negotiation of a bombing halt. Later he described as "a very, very great mistake" the unilateral bombing halt ordered by Lyndon Johnson in 1968 because it came without agreements from the other side.

"We are not going to make that mistake now," Nixon said.

Meanwhile, the Times of London hinted today that the U.S. and North Vietnam have reached an understanding which could lead toward ending the Vietnam war.

The Times said:

"There is reason to believe that a broad agreement on Vietnam has already been reached between Mr. Henry Kissinger (President Nixon's national security adviser) and North Vietnamese representatives during their recent meetings in Moscow and Paris."

The Times said the details of the reported agreement will not be completed, "or at least not announced," until after the Nov. 7 U.S. presidential election.

On the war front, U. S. gargantuan B-52 bombers launched their heaviest raids in the Saigon area in more than three years Thursday night and this morning, as communist troops stepped up their attacks throughout South Vietnam, military spokesmen said.

The U. S. command ordered 13 waves of the B-52s to dump more than 1,100 tons of bombs with 39 miles of the centre of Saigon.

Two Missing

Yacht Sliced In Half

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — U.S. Coast Guard and commercial vessels searched in thick fog Thursday for a young girl and her brother after their foster parents and five others were rescued from heavy seas after their yacht, en route to South America, was hit by a freighter.

The coast guard said Michel Lacy, 18, of Vancouver, Wash., was seen floating on a mattress in the heavy fog near the collision site, 12 miles southwest of Cape Mendocino, in 12-foot waves swept by 20-knot winds.

The Norwegian freighter Evamo radioed the coast guard earlier that the 100-foot motor yacht Morning Star had been sliced in two by an unidentified vessel at about 7:30 a.m., and that six persons were rescued immediately.

The seventh person rescued about four hours later was Hal Lacy, owner of the Vancouver-based yacht. The coast guard said he was spotted through the fog hanging onto debris from Morning Star.

The others rescued were Lacy's wife; their 18-year-old daughter, Donna; her husband, Tom Dennis, 20, who suffered a broken leg; Dean Lacy, 20, Becky Harris, 18, and Greg Duvic, 20.

Child Killed In Blaze Near Duncan

DUNCAN — A child died Thursday night as fire swept through a two-storey home in the Mission Road area on the Cowichan Indian reserve, about three miles southeast of Duncan.

Volunteer firemen from Duncan and the North Cowichan Southend fire department continued to fight the blaze, which broke out shortly after 11 p.m., and was still flaring at midnight.

Bomb Blasts Saloon In Belfast

BELFAST (AP) — A bomb blasted a crowded saloon Thursday night in a Protestant district here, killing one person and injuring at least five others, three seriously.

The explosive was planted in a car outside the pub on Bruce Street in the Sandy Row area. It went off without warning, causing widespread damage to property.

Guerrilla bombers in Londonderry infiltrated a security cordon and blasted a city centre garage with 60 pounds of explosives. The blast caused no casualties but wrecked the building and cars inside.

Canada Slams Import Of U.S.-Banned Cars

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport department has made representations to the United States government and General Motors over a proposal by the company to sell 1,100 1972-model cars in Canada because they do not meet U.S. safety standards.

The cars, Camaros, Novas and Firebirds, were manufactured in the U.S. after new safety regulations regarding bumpers, inflammability of interior materials and illumination of instrument panel controls, went into effect.

General Motors attempted to have the vehicles exempted from the regulations for sale in the U.S. However, when the exemption was turned down by the U.S. transportation department, it proposed to sell them in Canada.

Similar safety regulations do not go into effect in Canada until Nov. 1, 1972.

Newfoundland Ending Ex-Parte Injunctions

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Ex-parte injunctions will be eliminated in legislation being prepared for introduction when theNewfoundland legislature resumes sittings later this year, Labor Minister Ed Maynard said Thursday.

Maynard told about 170 delegates attending the annual convention of the Newfoundland Federation of Labor that removal of the injunction provisions would be accomplished by an amendment to the provincial Labor Relations Act.

The injunctions are used mainly to halt picketing by strikers in labor disputes.

Oil Firms, Arabs In Accord

NEW YORK (AP) — Western oil companies announced Thursday a tentative agreement with five Persian Gulf countries which would eventually give the Arab states a 51-per-cent interest in oil operations in their countries.

The agreement calls for each gulf state to negotiate separate agreements with the oil companies operating within its territory.

"I am very satisfied with the offer," said Sheik Ahmed Yamani, Saudi Arabia's minister of oil and minerals and chief Arab negotiator.

He said he would leave for the Middle East Thursday night to submit the agreement to his government.

The five Arab states, Abu Khabi, Qatar, Kuwait, Iraq, and Saudi Arabia, account for approximately 28 per cent of oil production in non-Communist countries, an oil company spokesman said.

Observers said they did not anticipate the agreement would result in any immediate change in the market price of oil.

Welfare Woman Hides Nothing

"Some of the things that happen around here you just wouldn't believe," a city of Victoria official said Thursday.

Here's what he was talking about:

To qualify for next month's welfare cheque, recipients must submit a signed statement listing additional earnings during the current month.

One such statement, submitted last month by a Victoria woman on welfare, specified additional income from these sources: shoplifting, $10; prostitution, $50.

Lorimer Favors Upgrading Boards

More Regional Clout

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Regional boards might be given a share of revenue from B.C. timber licences and other sources sometime in the future so that they can assume a more meaningful role, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer says.

In an interview this week, the minister said he is in favor of granting regional boards greater autonomy; there should be less interference in regional matters by the provincial government and regions should have a stronger voice in their future development.

Lorimer said regional boards, "must have a part of the action if they are to function properly."

He said he is very impressed with the regional board concept. The former government should be "very proud of it," but there had been too many restrictions on the boards.

"I haven't prepared any detailed plan of how to help the regional districts toward greater autonomy, but there are quite a number of provincial revenue sources which could, and should, go partly to the regions," Lorimer said.

'Jubie' Switches Camps—Bickering Cited

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

VANCOUVER — President Jack Moore and his Western Canada regional officers of the International Woodworkers of America are being challenged for their jobs but for the most part they are writing the opposition off as "nuisance candidates."

The 48-year-old Moore, who has headed the union's biggest region for 11 years is fully expected to win easily over Beaver Cove logger Don Poirier nominated at the regional IWA's convention Thursday to run against him.

While nominations are dealt with in convention the IWA's policy of grassroots democracy means the vote goes out to the 42,000 Western Canada members most of whom are in B.C. Results must be in within 50 days of the convention which ends today.

The opposition this time is reportedly a "mixed bag" and doesn't resemble an actual slate of political heavyweights such as those emerging in the past from the "presidents' club" — the group that has traditionally locked horns with Moore and his men.

The group has generally included influential presidents of big coast locals such as Syd Thompson from Vancouver, Murray Drew of Victoria, Ernie Freer from the Vancouver-based loggers local and Weldon Jubenville of Duncan.

The most interesting development this time is the successful switching of camps by Jubenville.

In bygone days "Jubie" has been one of those leading the attack on what was termed the weak leadership of Moore each time internal warfare broke out.

Today he is running for the job of regional secretary-treasurer with the blessings of Moore and the regional executive. He is the region's man — picked to run on the region's slate — against any opposition.

Ironically his only opposition is the current secretary-treasurer Fred Fieber who didn't get the stamp of approval from the regional caucus this time. Although he will reach retirement age before the two-year term is up, Fieber chose to run again and had to be nominated by someone outside the caucus.

The retirement age is 65 and the IWA constitution stipulates that an officer must step down with a month of reaching that age.

If Moore wants a younger replacement for Fieber—Jubenville is 53 — why hadn't he been able to talk the older man into declining the nomination?

"Unfortunately Fred has never learned to cope with leisure time", Moore said in an interview after the nominations.

Not all of those representing the opposing forces see it that way.

"It's a heartless act", said Victoria's Freer. "It's like kicking an old dog".

For his part, Jubenville Says he switched his support to the Moore camp during last spring's negotiations for a master coast region contract, while he served as negotiating committee secretary.

The case at point was the wildcat strike by fallers whose unauthorized action drew sympathy from men like Thompson and Drew.

Jubenville, a former faller himself put it this way Thursday: "I will not go along with or support people who work outside the structure of the IWA and I am fed up to the gills with the continual bickering about the leadership."

Jubenville
... successful

Also interesting this time is an attempt to shift the executive. Second vice-president Jack Munro was nominated to run as first vice-president while first vice-president T. W. Trineer is dropping back to seek Munro's job.

Moore says it is simply a matter of age. Trimer is 56 and he wants a younger man to be ready to step into the presidency if "I drop dead tomorrow."

Running against Munro for the first vice-president's job is Joe Fowler, 48, a former officer of the Victoria local who is now a rank-and-file member of the Haney local.

Trineer is opposed by Cy Godfrey of the Haney local. Ben Thompson, a popular first vice-president of the loggers local will try to oust third vice-president Stan Parker.

Among four men seeking two spots on the international executive board is Drew.

The nominations followed three days of convention busines that was surprisingly lacking in the political infighting that shows up at IWA conventions. For the most part Thompson, Drew, Freer and others from the "Presidents club" were silent.

Asked about this Moore just shook his head:

"I think at this convention they just about disappeared as any influence," he said.

Fowler, one of the ousiders seeking office, has his own thoughts on the matter.

"I think it has much to do with the change in proyincial government. Now that the NDP is in they think they are going to get most of the things they want without fighting for them but they're wrong. You have to keep fighting. Nothing is handed to you."

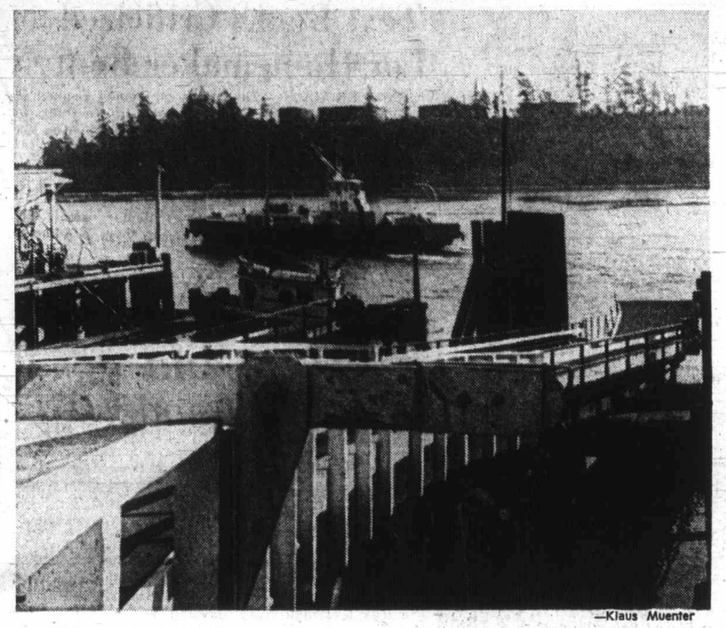

Poirier, the serious bearded man who is seeking Moore's job, is chairman of the Beaver Cove sub-local. He says he would institute sectional representation for bargaining purposes because of the wide variety of job classifications in the forest industry.

He would have men from various groups act in an advisory role for the negotiating committee.

"No one man in a union the size of ours, considering our special problems, is an expert," says the 33-year-old Poirier.

He thinks the fallers dispute might have been avoided if they had been allowed this kind of representation.

The dissident fallers who wanted nothing to do with the day-rate system negotiated for them, had threatened some time ago to produce an opposition slate and oust Moore's men. No such slate developed.

Ferry Given the Slip

New B.C. Ferries vessel Kulleet linking Thetis and Kuper islands with Chemainus provides fast, smooth service. New ferry slip has been built to accommodate larger 26-car ferry.

During construction of slip, in foreground, Kulleet had to land at Crofton, while old ferry gave special service to school children between two islands and Chemainus.

Proposal Aimed at Cowichan Valley Shoppers

$12 Million Store Complex To Include 200-Unit Hotel

By KLAUS MUENTER
Colonist Correspondent

NORTH COWICHAN — A $12 million garden shopping centre with a new 200-unit hotel including complete convention type facilities is to be developed in North Cowichan, close to the City of Duncan, it was announced Thursday afternoon.

The announcement was made by Robert Kennedy on behalf of George Treit and Associates of Vancouver. Kennedy, of Cobble Hill, is project manager for the Vancouver-based firm. The 36.5-acre property is located adjacent to the Trans-Canada Highway between the V.I.P. Motel and the Slegg Brothers retail outlet.

Kennedy said preliminary soil tests by Thurber and Associates of Victoria have been completed, but they will be followed by more soil tests in the near future. The large project will have a total of 955 feet highway frontage. The project manager stated that the area in question will receive a three-foot deep gravel fill. The area is already served by a sewer and water system from the North Cowichan Municipality.

Kennedy said more than 50 per cent national lessees have shown intent to move into the proposed centre. Negotiations continue and it is hoped that construction on the massive project can start early next spring. Kennedy explained that the new garden shopping centre will broaden North Cowichan's tax base.

Kennedy also emphasized that now 40 cents from every dollar spent by local shoppers goes out of this area and that with the new development much more of the shopping dollar will remain here. "Everybody will benefit," he added.

The new shopping centre, to be completed two years after construction starts, will employ between 300 and 400 people. North Cowichan Mayor Gerry Smith said that the new development will be undertaken under a land-use program but that the area is already zoned for the intended use.

"I think it is a good thing for the whole (Cowichan) valley and it will keep a lot more shoppers in the area. It is the biggest development we had in a long time," Smith said. However, the project still has to be approved by council.

Smith
... "zoning cleared"

Kennedy said the garden shopping centre is the second large-scale development undertaken by his firm in the North Cowichan Municipality. The first one, a 500-acre housing project is now under way. It will take more than eight years for completion and the cost for clearing, installation of sewer and water lines and underground wiring is estimated at about $5,800,000.

Kennedy said his firm is all-Canadian and some land in the Maple Bay Road development has already been dedicated to the school board for building a school when the need arises. He explained the first phase of the Maple Bay Road project will be the installation of a sewer line with a large pumping station to the North Cowichan sewage lagoon. Water for that development will come from the North Cowichan southend water system.

Crowded Schools Get Dailly Ear

DUNCAN — Cowichan school district's overcrowded classroom problem may soon be solved school board chairman David Bradbury said recently.

Bradbury, who met with Education Minister Eileen Dailly this week, returned to Duncan confident something will be done to overcome the crowded classroom conditions as well as improve the busing situation in the district.

At the last regular school board meeting Bradbury had said he planned to discuss the two issues with the new minister.

Dailly promished her department will study reports on classroom conditions which Cowichan, along with other B.C. school districts, has been asked to submit. Bradbury said this is so staffing adjustment can be carried out by Oct. 15.

Cowichan had to drop eight elementary teachers and four secondary teachers this year in order to work within the 108 per cent budget imposed by the Socred government.

"This has forced up class sizes, along with the influx of additional students. This created an overcrowded situation which leaves a learning situation far from ideal," said Bradbury.

The education minister has also asked the school district to prepare a brief on the busing program, and a brief on the concern for children crossing the Trans-Canada Highway at Koksilah.

During their Victoria visit, school district officials asked the minister to have the gasoline tax removed from fuel for school buses.

"We feel that the educational tax dollar should be used for education, and not taken from one pocket to another to end up in general revenue," said Bradbury.

Dailly has promised to discuss the matter with the ministers involved.

Boy Blamed For Thefts

DUNCAN — A juvenile boy was convicted in Duncan provincial court Thursday on charges of breaking, entering and theft at the D&D Tire premises, theft from a car at the Commercial Hotel and shoplifting at Safeway Store. He was remanded for sentence until Oct. 24.

Buildings Shut On Holiday

The legislative buildings will be closed Monday for observance of the Thanksgiving Day holiday. The Provincial Museum will be open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

TOT MURDERED

NANAIMO — Herbert Lionel Moore, 24, of Hazelton, B.C., was charged Thursday with non-capital murder of his 18-month-old son George Grant Moore.

The child's body was found by police who were called to a city motel earlier in the day.

The results of an autopsy conducted Thursday afternoon were not available.

Police said the child's body was found in a unit of the Tideview Motel, 1451 Estevan Road at 6 a.m. The investigation is continuing.

Grit In with Both Feet

NANAIMO — Bill Matthews, the Liberal party candidate for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands in the Oct. 30 federal election, Thursday issued a challenge to the younger candidates in the local race.

He is suggesting that the three men — himself, Socred Stockwell Day and Tory George Macpherson — enter the United Appeal walkathon next weekend, Oct. 14.

The man covering the largest number of miles in the shortest time would be declared the winner.

Of the others Matthews suggests, "Let them hold election signs for one hour in front of the winner's campaign offices."

Matthews has also pledged $1 per mile to the United Appeal for every mile covered by his two opponents.

NDP incumbent candidate Tommy Douglas was not included in the challenge.

Matthews claims he is always in peak physical condition and, therefore, there is no need for him to go into training for the event.

Indians Wage War on Wrecks

DUNCAN — During a recent public meeting on the Cowichan Indian reserve many attending parents expressed a very keen desire to have a voting Indian trustee on the Cowichan School Board, according to band manager Norman Joe.

For several years now the regular school board meetings have been attended by Leonard Antoine of the Cowichan Indian education committee who has been acing as a liaison between the Indian and the non-Indian communities. Joe said the people's request to have a voting Indian trustee on the Cowichan School Board is just because most of the Cowichan Indian children are now attending public schools.

People at the recent meeting decided to solicit more support for their idea from amongst other band members. "It is hoped that more interest for a voting Indian trustee can be generated from amongst Indians on the reserve," Joe said.

The band manager also expressed hope that the pending "operation Sam" will be successful on the reserve and "to get rid of some of the old car wrecks."

Operation Sam is sponsored by the provincial government in an effort to rid the countryside of unsightly car wrecks and to enable municipalities, regional boards and private citizens to clean up their backyards and in some cases more scenic spots. Joe said the band was advised by the City of Duncan that Operation Sam would come to this area and it is hoped to establish two depots on the reserve — one at the Quamichan and one at Somenos.

The Cowichan band manager MANAGER ALSO SAID also said that Marcelline Manuel from the Shuswap area has been appointed as new Indian social worker succeeding Simon Muldoe from the Hazelton band. Muldoe resigned to have some more training. Mrs. Manuel's office will be at Nanaimo and she will serve the area from Qualicum to the southern tip of Vancouver Island.

'Expand Pacific Rim Park'

UCUELET — Comox-Alberni candidate Tom Barnett has called for further expansion of Pacific Rim National Park.

Speaking at a public campaign meeting here this week, the incumbent New Democrat MP said that at least part of the alpine area now lying within the boundaries of Strathcona Provincial Park should be dedicated to Phase IV of Pacific Rim.

He poined out that under its existing boundaries, Strathcona Park touches tidewater on Vancouver Island's west coast.

"With inclusion of an alpine region, Pacific Rim National Park would provide an international attraction that would outrival Banff and Jasper," Barnett said.

He said the Cape Scott area in the northwest corner of the Island could be a "rounding out" piece in the national parks system. Part of this territory is now in provincial park reserve.

"Unless we act now to preserve and protect our remaining wilderness areas, it will be too late," Barnett said. "The surest protection we have is the National Parks Trust which protects an all-Canadian heritage for generations to come."

Phase I of the Pacific Rim Park — which embraces the Long Beach area between Tofino and Ucluelet — officially came into being a year ago last May when it was dedicated by Princess Anne. It is being planned as a high density use area.

Phase II, which covers the Broken Islands group in Barclay Sound, and Phase III which includes the old shoreline lifesaving trail southerly from Bamfield are planned as wilderness areas to come fully under national parks jurisdiction by 1976.

Barnett expressed his pleasure over inclusion of the Hobitan-Tsusiat-Squalicum lakes watershed in Phase III, as announced recently.

Barnett recalled that he had urged former Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston to put into effect a "stay of execution" on logging while the matter was under consideration. Barnett felt sure that this decision would be confirmed by the provincial New Democrat government.

Barnett was accompanied to Ucluelet by Bob Skelly, MLA for Alberni — meeting many constituents for the first time since the provincial election.

HOW TO WRITE
A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to specu-

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily. Monday through Saturday call.

Sooke District

Schools Vote Goal

Sooke school district has asked permission to put a capital referendum for close to $3 million before the voters on Dec. 9, district superintendent E. E. Hyndman said Wednesday.

The referendum would cover construction of a junior high school in the eastern portion of the district, Hyndman said, "probably on the north side of the highway near Goldstream or Millstream."

A school district press release noted that growth in Elizabeth Fisher and Belmont senior high schools has been phenomenal over the past six years, the former having increased 53 per cent in enrolment, the latter 95 per cent.

This growth pattern is unique in the Greater Victoria area, the release stated, and the projected population for 1981 in that area is 30,530 compared to the 1961 figure of 13,717.

Present enrolment at Elizabeth Fisher is 880 and is expanding at the rate of 9 per cent annually. Belmont's enrolment is 600 and is expanding at a rate of 16 per cent.

At the start of the next school year the combined pupil population of the two schools will be 1,652.

Present capacities of the two schools are 1,590 students. Five years from now it is estimated the combined pupil population will be 2,600.

The school district's release called the referendum "a positive blueprint prepared by a board anticipating growth and attempting to meet it by a staged school construction schedule.

"Passage of the capital referendum will mean schools will have the necessary space for pupils living in this booming 'housing start' community."

MOGADISHU, Somalia (CP) — Uganda and Tanzania, whose relations were far from cordial after border fighting last month, signed a peace agreement here Thursday. (See also Page 3.)

The foreign ministers of the two East African states — John Malecela of Tanzania and Wanume Kibedi of Uganda — signed the documents and shook hands.

ROAD TO OTTAWA 72

Speakers encountered an attentive and polite crowd during their allotted time for speeches and rebuttals at Victoria area's first all-candidates meeting Wednesday night.

However, candidates for the Oct. 30 federal election faced light-hearted heckling and name-calling whenever they strayed over allotted times for speeches and during later questioning.

The meeting at Camosun College, sponsored by the Victoria branch of the Committee for an Independent Canada, was to discuss foreign economic influences in Canada.

Eight candidates for the Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich ridings were at the meeting, which attracted about 70 persons.

Only candidate absent was David Groos, incumbent Liberal MP for Victoria, which left Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate Louis Lindholm holding the fort for his party against an often raucuous audience.

Groos was in Edmonton attending a Canadian Radio and Television Commission hearing.

The candidates who stuck mainly to the topic of the meeting, often engaged in amicable off-the-podium banter among themselves.

Roger Smith, New Democratic Party candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, said in his speech, "If you're shipping out raw materials, you're shipping out jobs." He mentioned a national unemployment figure of 500,000.

Temporary Dam Aids Sewer System Installation

Nanaimo now has another crossing of Millstone Creek as temporary dam has been constructed to enable installation of sewage line—now being built around entire Nanaimo waterfront for new sewage collection system. Dam is particularly handy short cut for youngsters going skating at Civic Arena. Most traffic, however, sticks to regular bridge at right.

Nanaimo City School Board Representation

Trustee Count To Drop

NANAIMO — Amalgamation of part of the Ladysmith school district is going to mean a reduction in the number of trustees on the Nanaimo board which represent the city of Nanaimo.

Nanaimo school board chairman Mrs. Margaret Fuller said Wednesday the altering of trustee representation has been made necessary because of the new district's population distribution.

The north half of the Ladysmith school district was amalgamated with Nanaimo last summer after it was determined that as a small district, the Ladysmith school area could not continue to function effectively.

The southern half of the district was united with Duncan's school district.

What the redistribution means is that the number of city of Nanaimo trustees on the board will be reduced from four to three, with the available seat going to a new zone. The new zone is that part of the Ladysmith district which was amalgamated.

Mrs. Fuller said that under the terms of the school act, the number of trustees could not be increased from its present nine members.

The remaining five seats in the rural area of the original Nanaimo school district will not be changed.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Fuller has announced she will not seek re-election this year.

Mrs. Fuller is a seven-year veteran on the board and has served for two full years as board chairman.

This will leave only one school board seat in the city to be contested this December. The other seat will be dissolved with the amalgamation of part of the Ladysmith district.

The incumbent city trustee, Dave Nicolls, has not yet decided whether to contest the seat for a second term in this year's election.

Nanaimo Bootlegger Convicted

NANAIMO — George Dallas, 49, of 623 Haliburton Street, will be sentenced Nov. 6 on charges of keeping liquor for sale and illegal sale of liquor.

The charges were laid August 20 and 27 by local RCMP. Police said they recovered more than 100 cases of beer, wine and liquor from Dallas' home and from the man's car.

In addition, the court was told, a police agent is said to have purchased a bottle of liquor from Dallas for $10.

Dallas had pleaded earlier not guilty to the charges but changed his plea to guilty when he appeared for trial in provincial court here Thursday.

The court was told that the charges were being processed on the basis that both represent second offences for the accused man.

Sentence will be handed down Nov. 6 by Judge Stan Wardill.

Genoa Bay Marina Chief Fails in Try for Rezoning

NORTH COWICHAN — A rezoning request by Genoa Bay Marina operator Leonard Lambrecht of a lot from residential restricted to commercial general was turned down unanimously by North Cowichan council, Wednesday afternoon.

Lambrecht's proposal was opposed by several residents in that area who were backed by a petition with 24 signatures. He said the rezoning would make his marina unit more pliable adding that fishermen and other visitors to the bay had expressed desire to stay longer and therefore he was planning to build some cabins to accommodate them.

One of the spokesmen against the rezoning bid, Bill Sloan told council that many years ago that Genoa Bay area had been zoned commercial for a subdivision but only a few years ago it was rezoned to its present category and a single dwelling residential area had developed meantime. "A rezoning now would not be practical," Sloan said.

Also speaking against was W. King, another Genoa Bay resident. He said as next door neighbor of the marina he would be strongly opposed because he feared that the rezoning also would bring in trailers. "I would hate to see a trailer court right in front of my front door. I bought my house three years ago and was told that it was located in a restricted residential district. To rezone would be very unfair to most people here because we all bought in good faith."

King also referred to the limited water supply in the Genoa Bay area particularly during the summer months. Ald. Dennis Hogan agreed with the speaker's desire to keep the area "peaceful and quiet" and Ald. Margaret Robertson said that it was not only the problem of water but other services and she made the motion to deny the rezoning request.

In a bold, unanimous move council decided to prohibit the discharging of firearms on Maple Mountain as from Jan. 1, next year. An amendment to the existing firearms bylaw to deal with the new decision will be prepared. During the past summer young people under the Opportunity for Youth program carried out an extensive path building program on the mountain and hikers expressed concern that using those paths now during hunting season would be a danger to life and limb.

Mayor Gerry Smith told council that the municipal fund for the Chemainus River Bridge now stands at $120,000. He explained that for the past five years an annual sum was set aside to be prepared when the bridge would be replaced by the provincial highways department. Cost for a new bridge will have to be shared equally between North Cowichan and the province and a new bridge will cost about $300,000. About 10 years ago it was only about half that amount. Ald.. Tom Burge said the bridge should be replaced soon and Smith added that he will ask the highways department to have a new bridge at the same location.

In other business council learned that the new ferry slip at Chemainus is almost completed and that the Fuller Lake arena is once more used to full capacity with 480 youngsters participating in minor hockey and about 3,000 figure skaters.

Trafficker Sentenced

NANAIMO — Marilyn Janz, 19, of North Vancouver was sentenced Tuesday to two years less a day definite and two years less a day indeterminate after pleading guilty to possession of 18 caps of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

Nothing Taken

NANAIMO — The Liberal Party headquarters here was broken into Tuesday night, but a party spokesman said a small amount of money in the office was untouched as were an electric typewriter and a tape recorder.

Former mines minister Frank Richter has been appointed acting house leader for Social Credit after a telegram from W. A. C. Bennett who has been vacationing in Padua, Italy.

And the telegram also confirmed the recommendation of former MLAs Dan Campbell and Grace McCarthy as executive assistant to the opposition leader and research assistant respectively.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said Thursday afternoon he had a "pleasant chat" with Richter on the telephone about the appointments, and orders-in-council would be prepared for the Campbell and McCarthy jobs.

The acting-leader appointment is expected to be discussed at a caucus meeting set for Oct. 12 and 13.

Former attorney-general Leslie Peterson had at one stage been approached for the party leadership and was reported to be interested.

Richter said Thursday he had accepted Bennett's job offer: "As I am the senior minister I had no reason to reject the request."

VANCOUVER — Premier Barrett would like to move B.C. out of the era of big "boomism" even if it means leaving precious minerals untapped in the ground.

Richter

Attacking the exploitation of the province's mineral resources, Barrett told delegates to the IWA's western Canada convention here that he was calling for restraint, which he admitted might sound strange "coming from a democratic socialist party."

But what B.C. needs now, he said, is to enter an era of prudent development.

'Better Off'

"If we can't come up with anything better in our new government, the resources would be better off left in the ground until a generation comes along with more sense than has been shown up to now in dealing with them," he said.

Barrett has said right along that there has been a great deal of irresponsibility in not preserving diminishing resources. He wants to put an end to the shipment of raw materials from the province and would have them processed right here as a means of creating jobs.

"We can't tell the rest of North America what to do in terms of setting restraints, but we can set an example here.

Rational Way

"We can say to the rest of North America: 'Stop, we want to get off' and plan British Columbia's development in a rational and meaningful way.

"The boom era is going to end in the West in the last place it existed in full flower. That's what we want here — not so much for ourselves but for our children and their children's sakes," Barrett said.

He said growth was wanted, but on the province's own terms.

Stanfield Charges Power Play

Trudeau 'Indifferent' to Defence

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield Thursday night charged Prime Minister Trudeau with displaying a total indifference toward the defence department and undercutting the authority of federal ministers in general.

In a speech to more than 1,000 persons who packed an Ottawa arena, Stanfield said government policies have caused armed forces morale to sag.

And he criticized the prime minister for concentrating increasing power in his own office, at the expense of government departments.

The Conservative leader was cheered repeatedly by a noisy crowd in this city where the votes of public servants and servicemen count heavily.

It was the second night in a row Stanfield has drawn a capacity crowd to a public meeting in his campaign for the Oct. 30 federal election.

Wednesday night, he drew a full turnout of 2,750 for a speech at Edmonton's Jubilee Auditorium.

Stanfield was introduced Thursday by Ontario Premier William Davis who described him as "a man of integrity, capacity, great judgment and common sense" and said Stanfield had the complete support of the provincial Conservative organization in the election campaign.

Stanfield, opening his 15-minute speech, said Davis' message was "wonderfully encouraging to all of us."

Stanfield charged that Trudeau had downgraded the defence department and turned the defence portfolio into "merely a staging area" for ministers on their way to other positions.

Referring to the succession of ministers through the defence portfolio in recent years, Stanfield said "hardly anyone is there long enough to unpack his bags."

He said decisions must soon be taken regarding Canada's membership in NORAD, its commitment to NATO, and re-equipment of the forces in certain areas.

Yacht Sliced In Half

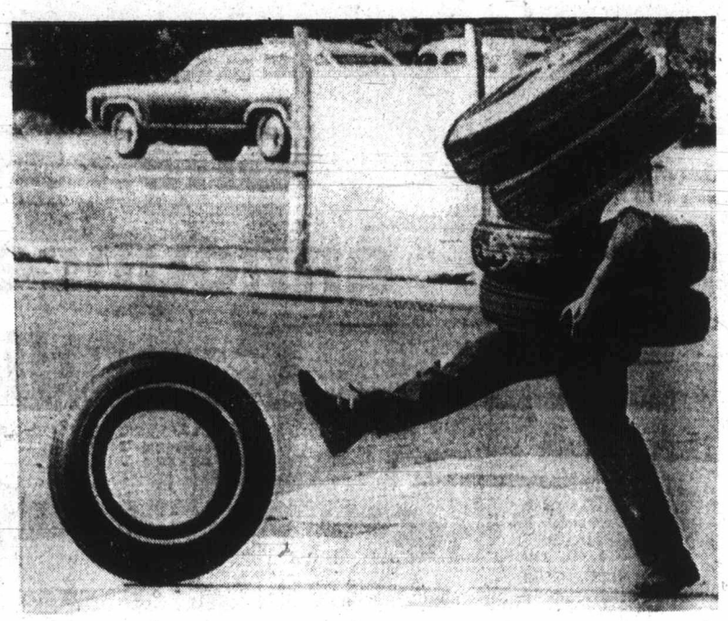

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — U.S. Coast Guard and commercial vessels searched in thick fog Thursday for a young girl and her brother after their foster parents and five others were rescued from heavy seas after their yacht, en route to South America, was hit by a freighter.

The coast guard said Michel Lacy, 18, of Vancouver, Wash., was seen floating on a mattress in the heavy fog near the collision site, 12 miles southwest of Cape Mendocino, in 12-foot waves swept by 20-knot winds.

The Norwegian freighter Evamo radioed the coast guard earlier that the 100-foot motor yacht Morning Star had been sliced in two by an unidentified vessel at about 7:30 a.m., and that six persons were rescued immediately.

The seventh person rescued about four hours later was Hal Lacy, owner of the Vancouver-based yacht. The coast guard said he was spotted through the fog hanging onto debris from Morning Star.

The others rescued were Lacy's wife; their 18-year-old daughter, Donna; her husband, Tom Dennis, 20, who suffered a broken leg; Dean Lacy, 20, Becky Harris, 18, and Greg Duvic, 20.

Sensitive Stage, Says Nixon

UPI, AP

President Nixon said in Washington Thursday that Vietnam peace negotiations are in a "sensitive stage", but declined to predict when or if a settlement will be reached.

In a wide-ranging news conference, he also shrugged off his election opponents' corruption charges and condemned "congressional overspending" as a threat to his pledge not to increase taxes.

In responding to a question about the possibility of a negotiated Vietnam settlement before the election, Nixon said the campaign will not influence "what we do at the negotiating table."

He mentioned the possible negotiation of a bombing halt. Later he described as "a very, very great mistake" the unilateral bombing halt ordered by Lyndon Johnson in 1968 because it came without agreements from the other side.

"We are not going to make that mistake now," Nixon said.

Meanwhile, the Times of London hinted today that the U.S. and North Vietnam have reached an understanding which could lead toward ending the Vietnam war.

The Times said:

"There is reason to believe that a broad agreement on Vietnam has already been reached between Mr. Henry Kissinger (President Nixon's national security adviser) and North Vietnamese representatives during their recent meetings in Moscow and Paris."

The Times said the details of the reported agreement will not be completed, "or at least not announced," until after the Nov. 7 U.S. presidential election.

On the war front, U. S. gargantuan B-52 bombers launched their heaviest raids in the Saigon area in more than three years Thursday night and this morning, as communist troops stepped up their attacks throughout South Vietnam, military spokesmen said.

The U. S. command ordered 13 waves of the B-52s to dump more than 1,100 tons of bombs within 39 miles of the centre of Saigon.

Child Killed In Blaze Near Duncan

DUNCAN — A child died Thursday night as fire swept through a two-storey home in the Mission Road area on the Cowichan Indian reserve, about three miles southeast of Duncan.

Volunteer firemen from Duncan and the North Cowichan Southend fire department continued to fight the blaze, which broke out shortly after 11 p.m., and was still flaring at midnight.

Bomb Blasts Saloon In Belfast

BELFAST (AP) — A bomb blasted a crowded saloon Thursday night in a Protestant district here, killing one person and injuring at least five others, three seriously.

The explosive was planted in a car outside the pub on Bruce Street in the Sandy Row area. It went off without warning, causing widespread damage to property.

Guerrilla bombers in Londonderry infiltrated a security cordon and blasted a city centre garage with 60 pounds of explosives. They blast caused no casualties but wrecked the building and cars inside.

Newfoundland Ending Ex-Parte Injunctions

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Ex-parte injunctions will be eliminated in legislation being prepared for introduction when the Newfoundland legislature resumes sittings later this year, Labor Minister Ed Maynard said Thursday.

Maynard told about 170 delegates attending the annual convention of the Newfoundland Federation of Labor that removal of the injunction provisions would be accomplished by an amendment to the provincial Labor Relations Act.

The injunctions are used mainly to halt picketing by strikers in labor disputes.

Canada Slams Import Of U.S.-Banned Cars

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport department has made representations to the United States government and General Motors over a proposal by the company to sell 1,100 1972-model cars in Canada because they do not meet U.S. safety standards.

The cars, Camaros, Novas and Firebirds, were manufactured in the U.S. after new safety regulations regarding bumpers, inflammability of interior materials and illumination of instrument panel controls, went into effect.

General Motors attempted to have the vehicles exempted from the regulations for sale in the U.S. However, when the exemption was turned down by the U.S. transportation department, it proposed to sell them in Canada.

Similar safety regulations do not go into effect in Canada until Nov. 1, 1972.

Oil Firms, Arabs In Accord

NEW YORK (AP) — Western oil companies announced Thursday a tentative agreement with five Persian Gulf countries which would eventually give the Arab states a 51-per-cent interest in oil operations in their countries.

The agreement calls for each gulf state to negotiate separate agreements with the oil companies operating within its territory.

"I am very satisfied with the offer," said Sheik Ahmed Yamani, Saudi Arabia's minister of oil and minerals and chief Arab negotiator.

He said he would leave for the Middle East Thursday night to submit the agreement to his government.

The five Arab states, Abu Khabi, Qatar, Kuwait, Iraq, and Saudi Arabia, account for approximately 28 per cent of oil production in non-Communist countries, an oil company spokesman said.

Observers said they did not anticipate the agreement would result in any immediate change in the market price of oil.

Lorimer Favors Upgrading Boards

More Regional Clout

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Regional boards might be given a share of revenue from B.C. timber licences and other sources sometime in the future so that they can assume a more meaningful role, Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer says.

In an interview this week, the minister said he is in favor of granting regional boards greater autonomy; there should be less interference in regional matters by the provincial government and regions should have a stronger voice in their future development.

Lorimer said regional boards, "must have a part of the action if they are to function properly."

He said he is very impressed with the regional board concept. The former government should be "very proud of it," but there had been too many restrictions on the boards.

"I haven't prepared any detailed plan of how to help the regional districts toward greater autonomy, but there are quite a number of provincial revenue sources which could, and should, go partly to the regions," Lorimer said.

Welfare Woman Hides Nothing

"Some of the things that happen around here you just wouldn't believe," a city of Victoria official said Thursday.

Here's what he was talking about:

To qualify for next month's welfare cheque, recipients must submit a signed statement listing additional earnings during the current month.

One such statement, submitted last month by a Victoria woman on welfare, specified additional income from these sources: shoplifting, $10; prostitution, $50.

Next Calgary Police Chief?

Rumors Buzz Around Nelson

There was speculation in Calgary Thursday that the Alberta city's next police chief would be a senior Mountie from Victoria.

A shower of calls to The Colonist from Calgary radio stations and newspapers sought information, but they sought in vain.

The Calgary reports had it that the new chief constable would be Supt. James Nelson of the RCMP in Victoria. Nelson refused comment of any kind when questioned by the Colonist. He said only there was supposed to be a meeting in Calgary today.

A Calgary source said that city council was to meet at 1:30 p.m. Calgary time today, probably to reach a decision, but that strict security was being maintained on its proceedings.

Certainly, said the Calgarian, no official of that city was uttering a single word before the council meeting.

Reason for all the turmoil—and security—was the furor created at the beginning of August when Calgary appointed an American, Police Chief Charles Gain of Oakland, Calif., as Calgary's chief.

The uproar was immediate and widespread.

Why, asked many including Calgary aldermen, should an "alien" be appointed chief when there were Canadians with the experience and ability to take on the position?

The choice of Gain was made by Calgary's police commission, headed by Mayor Rod Sykes. Council, however, split 5-5 on a motion by Sykes to welcome Gain.

Opposition came, too, from the B.C. Federation of Peace Officers which labelled the appointment a "dastardly blow" for Canadians.

The controversy was soon resolved when Gain himself withdrew his application for the Calgary post.

In the intervening two months, Calgary has been conducting a new canvass for a police chief.

City Staff Girding For Crunch

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

A major battle is shaping up between Victoria and a number of civic-employee unions whose contracts expire this year.

A total of eight contracts are up for renewal, involving more than 600 employees.

Those charged with negotiating on behalf of the city say that negotiations are expected to be "somewhat hectic," and the general feeling throughout the union membership is that things may come closer to a strike this year than ever before.

Sources indicated Thursday that major unions will be demanding pay increases of up to 28 per cent over two years, plus fringe benefits.

The two major contracts concern 250 inside workers and 270 outside workers, all represented by the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

In addition to that, the city negotiates on behalf of Greater Victoria Public Library for renewal of a contract involving 60 inside workers, also represented by CUPE.

Five more contracts, each involving a relatively small number of employees, will also expire this year.

Each union will bargain for a different group which includes 14 nurses, three carpenters, 12 electricians, and eight operating engineers, three of them at the library.

Negotiations with the Victoria Firefighters' Union and the Victoria Police Union are already in the mediation stage.

It has been indicated that one reason the unions are expected to take a strong stand is the Social Credit government's defeat by the New Democratic Party.

"With the Socred government gone," one official said, "there goes the 6-per-cent ceiling on wage increases.

He also said a confrontation between the city and unions was "almost inevitable," because of Mayor Peter Pollen's strong opposition to recent demands by the city's police force.

The police were seeking parity with the Vancouver police force, but Pollen called their demand absurd.

Before the dispute went to mediation, the mayor and the police union clashed head-on in a series of press statements in which the union accused Pollen of not bargaining in good faith, and the mayor charged the union with wanting to destroy the community.

"If that sort of thing happens in the next few months with the other unions, the place is going to be in utter chaos," one city hall official said.

Bail Reform Working

People in Victoria are living up to the spirit of the bail-reform law that went into effect across Canada last Jan. 2, even if those in Vancouver apparently are not.

Until the start of this year, Canadians appearing in courts for trial did so by way of summons or on remand after being arrested and then being released on bail or a recognizance.

The new law added two new forms — appearance notices and promises to appear — and some authorities felt this might mean a big increase in the number of policemen working on warrants for failure to attend court.

The Vancouver city prosecutor's office disclosed this week that it has. Officials said 390 persons who gave their undertaking to appear in court for trial during the first three months of 1972 did not do so, compared to 123 in the first three months of 1971.

In Victoria, police disclosed that 143 appearance notices and 28 promises to appear were approved between Jan. 2 and the end of August, and only 13 of those 171 persons failed to show up in court — despite the increasing number of transients on arrest lists.

Police said figures for "no-shows" on remand or summons were not kept in previous years, but the problem was similarly small.

One sergeant said a reason for the lack of a no-show problem here is that the area is still small enough that police know many of the repeaters in crime — and vice-versa. But when it comes to crime, he said, Vancouver is a big city.

Blue Book on Doctors' Pay Sent Relations Downhill

By JOHN MATTERS
Colonist Medical Reporter

Publication of the "blue book" of doctors' earnings was the point at which relations between B.C.'s physicians and the former Social Credit government started to deteriorate seriously, says Dr. Peter Banks of Victoria, president-elect of the Canadian Medical Association and the British Medical Association.

His views are stated in an interview published by the CMA Journal in its current number.

Warned

Banks points out that former premier Bennett announced that doctors' medicare earnings would be published according to the Public Finance Information Act, despite a four-page memo from Banks warning of the alienation that would occur.

Banks also reviews some of the events that occurred before the publication in 1970 of the B.C. Medical Service Commission's first "blue book" of physicians' medicare earnings.

At that time, Banks was a government appointee to the three-member MCS, which administers medicare.

Too Much

Banks recalls that about four years ago, coinciding with an annual meeting of the BCMA at Harrison Hot Springs, a New Westminster newspaper published an editorial that stated doctors were earning too much money from medicare in B.C.

"Of course, they were right. Some of them were — there was no question about it," Banks told the CMAJ interviewer. "But the newspaper played it up and demanded to know what doctors earn."

However, the editorial inflamed members of the BCMA, who subsequently adopted a motion that condemned any invasion of physicians' freedom and privacy.

Thin Ice

"By this time the government had put me on the commission—this was a government appointment and the ice was a bit thin between me and the profession, anyway, so I couldn't get up and say 'Fellows, we've got this solved, we think. We are just going to publish the averages for neurologists, internists and so on. We think we can get away with this . . .' "

Banks recalls that reporters subsequently pressed Bennett for an explanation of what the government might do, since it was now faced with open defiance from BCMA members.

Reduced

In late 1971, the provincial government reiterated that there was no money for physician's fee increases and earlier this year, after the doctors reduced their demands about one-half, to roughly 6.5 per cent, a settlement was achieved.

That agreement expires next March 31, and the BCMA is hoping to open negotiations soon with the newly-elected New Democratic Party government.

The former premier replied that the clause of the B.C. Public Finance Information Act requiring disclosure of all sums paid in excess of $500 would also apply to the doctors.

Banks also recalls that a five-year agreement between the BCMA and the government which expired in 1969 contained an escalator clause that permitted the fee schedule to increase at roughly the same rate as the cost of living.

". . . The government held us down to what I thought was a very fair level, but . . . many members of the profession thought that it was a harsh level," he adds.

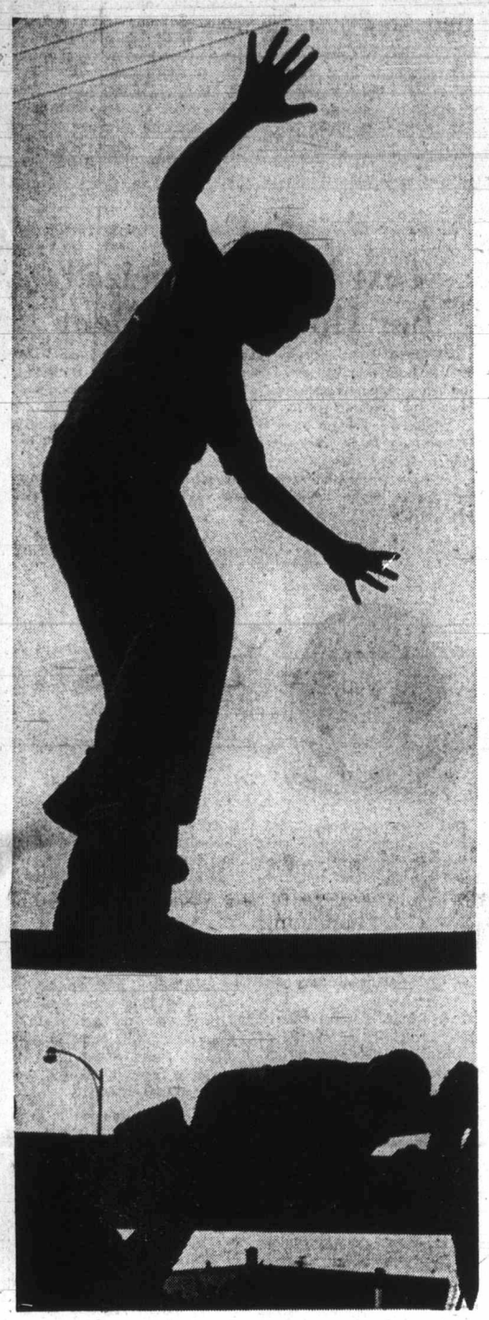

'You're Nuts'

"When I got word that the government would be willing to re-sign the agreement for another five years, I phoned over to Vancouver (the BCMA head office).

"The fellows over there said: 'No, the indices aren't good enough,' I said, 'You're nuts.'

"But anyway, the government got re-elected in the 1969 election and when the agreement ran out, Mr. Bennett said there was no more money. I was sent for and had to tell the doctors. It was pretty traumatic."

Banks was apparently referring to a talk he gave to the annual BCMA meeting in Vernon in 1970, when doctors decided there would be a moratorium on fee increases. They said they were supporting the anti-inflationary position being taken by the provincial government at that time.

Social Worker Acquitted In Boys' Case

A 30-year-old social worker was acquitted by a Victoria County Court jury Thursday of a four-count charge alleging sexual acts with two young boys.

The accused, William Dawson Herriott of Mark Lane in the Highlands district, had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Trial began Monday with a ruling from Judge M. L. T. Drakes that the public be excluded from the courtroom, except for the press, because of the nature of the evidence.

One of two boys mentioned in the charge later testified about visits he made to Herriott's home, where, he said, marijuana was sometimes smoked and sexual acts sometimes committed.

Herriott, testifying in his own defence, denied having had any sexual contact with the two boys, or ever having had any homosexual relationships.

The all-male jury deliberated more than two hours Thursday night before returning its not-guilty verdict.

Burns Suffered In Accident

Michael Scarr,, 27, of 230 Gorge, received treatment Thursday afternoon at Royal Jubilee Hospital after suffering face, neck and arm burns in an accident at Colwood Corners. Langford firemen said Scarr was working for Farmer Construction in clearing a site for a new Safeway store when he accidentally used gasoline to start a stump fire.

Mechanical Faults Described at Inquest

A large convertible involved in a three-car crash in the Colwood area early Sept. 17 which claimed the lives of two Saanich men was in faulty mechanical condition, a mechanic testified at an inquest Thursday night.

Killed in the crash were Douglas Bruce Barkley, 24, of 3119 Rutledge, and Dennis Robert Neis Halstrom, 25, of 971 Jasmine. They were riding in a small car.

Witness John Smith, who identified himself as a "motor engineer," told the six-man jury that his inspection of the large old convertible disclosed faulty brakes, some wear on the tires and a bent and loose torsion bar.

Driver of the convertible was identified as Irving Samson Norris, 16, of Westholme. Driver of the third vehicle, a station wagon pulling a boat, was not identified at Thursday night's inquest session, which is being conducted by Victoria area coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre.

Victoria General Hospital pathologist Dr. William Hay testified that Barkley, who was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital, had died as a result of severe head, chest and abdominal injuries.

Hay said Halstrom, who died shortly after arrival at hospital, died as a result of massive hemorrhage in his aorta and spleen. He said head injuries also contributed to Halstrom's death.

An RCMP constable testified that Norris, in a voluntary statement given later in the day at the Colwood detachment, said he had consumed a moderate amount of alcoholic beverages prior to the mishap.

The constable told the inquest that tests taken more than seven hours after the crash showed Norris had a blood-alcohol content of .02.

The constable, who investigated the mishap, said he believed the Norris vehicle was driving southward down the middle lane of the three-lane highway when it met head-on with the northbound small car, which was also in the middle lane. He said Norris denied he was in the middle lane in his statement.

RCMP said they believe the small car, owned by Barkley, was driven by him. Questioning of witnesses by police after the crash showed Barkley's body was thrown out of the car.

Seven witnesses testified at the inquest session, leaving nine more to be heard. The inquest continues at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 17 in the Victoria law courts building.

Two Runaways Picked Up

Two inmates of the William Head minimum security institution in Metchosin who cut short their stays in September have been picked up by police in Edmonton and the Vancouver area, Colwood RCMP said Thursday.

Police said Benjamin Joseph Grandbois, 32, who failed to return at 8 p.m. Sept. 29 after being released on a day pass, was apprehended by Edmonton police and would be returned to Victoria to face a charge of being unlawfully at large.

David Jack O'Brien, 28, one of three men who escaped Sept. 17, surrendered to police in Vancouver through a former parole officer, and a charge laid in connection with the escape will be waived for hearing in New Westminster.

O'Brien was sentenced Aug. 11, 1971, at Vancouver to three years for trafficking in a narcotic. Details of Grandbois' sentence were not specified. The two men who escaped with O'Brien, David William Valouche and Neil Thomson, remain at large.

Mail Run Bonanza In Dole

EDMONTON (CP) — A man using about 50 different names managed to collect between $10,000 and $20,000 in unemployment insurance benefits, the RCMP reported Friday.

They said the man apparently covered northern Alberta as a regular mail run, collecting the cheques whenever due.

Bernard James Winiwski, 21, of Teepee Creek, Alta., was charged with fraud in the case. He is scheduled to appear in court Tuesday.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield described the government's unemployment insurance program Friday night as a disaster and a fiasco.

He was commenting on Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey's statement that the government likely will end up paying $780 million to $820 million in unemployment benefits this year.

"It is no longer just platform rhetoric to find this government lacking in competence and credibility," Stanfield told a hastily called news conference.

He called the government irresponsible and said the word "scandal" in reference to the condition of unemployment insurance may be an understatement.

In Vancouver, former Liberal cabinet minister Paul Hellyer, who is contesting the Toronto-Trinity riding for the Progressive Conservative party, said Friday the federal
